This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
CENSUS OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1, 1894.

SIR:

I have the honor to transmit herewith the final report on the Statistics of Churches, as prepared by Henry K. Carroll, LL. D., special agent in charge.

The religious statistics gathered in the Seventh and Eighth Censuses embraced only churches, church accommodations, and value of church property. The Ninth Census added organizations.

A vast amount of information regarding churches was gathered in the Tenth Census, but in the exigencies of the work it failed to be published. A very wide range of inquiries for desirable information was then used, producing a greater mass of detailed replies than under the conditions could be made available. This made it important to restrict the inquiries of the Eleventh Census to a small number of essential points.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

CARROLL D. WRIGHT,
Commissioner of Labor in charge.

HON. HOKE SMITH,
Secretary of the Interior.

INTRODUCTION.

All religious bodies are embraced in the statistics of this volume. Every church or denomination having organizations with members or communicants was requested to furnish the information called for by the statistical inquiries. In some instances distinct denominational titles cover hardly a score of members; but no religious body was excluded because its followers were few. One church having at least a nominal existence was, however, omitted, simply on the ground that while it had 21 members and 1 minister, it had no organization or congregation. The members were scattered over 3 states (Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Missouri), not enough of them residing in any one place to maintain an organization. Though the Census Office was desirous to report every denomination, without regard to the character of its creed or polity, it could not properly report a body having no organized existence. Returns are given not only for all distinct religious bodies, but for 156 independent congregations. These are found in various parts of the country, chiefly in the cities. They acknowledge no ecclesiastical allegiance to any denomination, and there is no common bond uniting them. Some of them are mission churches or chapels, supported by members of various denominations. A few of these have no members, their converts being expected to unite with some denomination.

SCOPE OF THE INQUIRY.

The census of 1850, also that of 1860, gave returns for churches, church accommodations, and church property. In 1870 a fourth item was included. The term "churches", it was thought, had not been clearly understood in the previous censuses, for "it was not possible, in any particular case, to say whether organizations or church edifices had been returned". The inquiries were changed therefore so as to call for statistics of (1) organizations, (2) edifices, (3) sittings, and (4) property. No explanation is given in the report of 1870 of any of these terms, and no one can determine precisely what is covered under the head of "Property". There are several kinds of church property, namely, church edifices, church furnishings, church lots, church parsonages, church cemeteries, camp meeting grounds, and the like. It seemed desirable for the census of 1890 that the terms should be so defined as to insure results free from ambiguity. Three items were added to those of 1870 for the detailed returns, and a fourth, concerning ministers, for the totals only by denominations, the whole embracing these points:

1. Organizations.
2. Church edifices.
3. Seating capacity.
4. Halls, schoolhouse, etc.
5. Seating capacity.
6. Value of church property.
7. Communicants or members.
8. Ministers.

It is manifest that any exhibit of church accommodations is incomplete if it does not show how many halls and schoolhouses are occupied by congregations for public worship, and how many sittings these afford. Many private houses are also used, for a longer or shorter period, as meeting places. These are counted with the halls and schoolhouses, but no attempt was made, for obvious reasons, to represent their seating capacity.

No religious statistics are deemed complete in these days without a column for communicants. The growth of a denomination is measured, almost invariably, by its returns of communicants for various periods. All denominations accustomed to publish statistics give communicants or population. As uniformity in the census tables was recognized as of the first importance, so that the totals should not represent distinct classes of statistics under a single head, the Roman Catholic Church, which had hitherto reported only "population", was induced to accept the census basis and make returns for communicants. One rule of classification is thus applied to all denominations, no one having any advantage, so far as the general plan of statistics is concerned, over any other. Only one religious body is without representation in the column of communicants. The Chinese have no such relation to their temples as is common among christian denominations. No list is made of their worshipers, and it was not possible to ascertain how many resort to any particular temple. It is generally assumed among them that all Chinese, who have not departed from the ancestral faith and become christians, worship in the temples regularly or occasionally. The returns for ministers, which are given by denominations only, and not by counties, states, or ecclesiastical divisions, have been gathered for the most part from printed lists, which most denominations revise annually.

MEANING OF THE TERMS USED.

Every schedule and every circular prepared for returns of conferences, dioceses, associations, and the like, or for single congregations, contained the following explanations and directions:

1. "Organizations" is meant to embrace churches with or without pastors; missions or stations, when they form a separate congregation or are separately organized; chapels, when they are separate from churches and have separate services; meetings, as among the Friends, Plymouth Brethren, and others, and societies, as among the Unitarians.

2. "Church edifices" is intended to embrace all buildings owned and used for worship, whether consecrated or unconsecrated. If an organization meets in a hall, schoolhouse, or private house, indicate the fact by the letter [h] in brackets in the case of a hall, [sh] in the case of a schoolhouse, and [ph] in the case of a private house. If a church and its chapels are simply different rooms under the same roof, count as 1 edifice only. When the chapel is under another roof, whether adjoining the church or at a distance from it, and is used by the church simply for prayer and other social meetings, count as 2 edifices. When 2 denominations own a building in partnership, indicate the proportion that belongs to the denomination for which the return is made in this schedule, as ½, ⅓, ¼, or other fractional part, as the case may be, and give the same proportion of valuation.

3. By "Seating capacity" is meant the number of persons any edifice used for worship is arranged to seat.

4. The item "Value of church property" is intended to embrace the present estimated value of buildings, with their sites, their furniture, organs, bills, etc., owned and used for worship. It does not include halls or other places which are simply rented; nor parsonages, parochial school buildings, theological seminaries, monasteries, or convents (only the chapels attached thereto); nor buildings of the Young Men's Christian Association, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, or similar organizations. Care should be taken not to count the value of chapel and mission property twice.

5. "Communicants" is meant to embrace all, without distinction of sex, who are privileged to participate in the ordinance of communion in denominations which observe it, and all members in other denominations, such as Unitarians, Friends, and Jews.

Organizations include what are variously called churches, congregations, or societies. The designation most common is "church"; but this word is variously used to signify (1) the house in which public worship is held, (2) occasionally the service itself, (3) an entire denomination, (4) all christian bodies, as the "Church of Christ", and (5) the congregation or society. "Organization" is a more definite term than "church" and more comprehensive than "congregation" or "society", and its use can hardly lead to confusion.

Church edifices are sometimes owned and occupied jointly by organizations of 2 or more denominations. In such cases the portion belonging to each would be fractional. Thus, if a church edifice in Augusta, Me., is owned by Methodists, Christians, and Freewill Baptists in equal shares, each is credited with a third of the valuation in the column "Value of church property". The seating capacity is given entire in each instance, as the building is occupied by 3 entirely different congregations. The returns for seating capacity for denominations therefore are strictly correct from that point of view, but in the general summaries by denominations and states the totals include for each church edifice owned and occupied or occupied jointly twice, thrice, or more its actual seating capacity, according to the number of denominations occupying it. For example, suppose that a church in Lowell, Mass., having a seating capacity of 500 is owned and occupied by 3 denominations, Congregational, Baptist, and Methodist, each having a one-third interest. The church would be reported with 500 seating capacity in the Congregational, Baptist, and Methodist returns. And this would be correct from that point of view, for each of these denominations provides accommodations for 500 persons in that church edifice; but in the totals for Massachusetts, for the United States, and for all denominations, that particular piece of church property would be credited with one value but with three times its actual seating capacity. It seemed impossible to avoid this duplication, which will amount to a number close to 2,800,000, which, deducted from the gross seating capacity, 43,564,863, leaves a net seating capacity approximating 40,764,863 for the whole country.

A number of organizations which own no church edifices use buildings belonging to another denomination, and they pay rent for such use. These are indicated by footnotes. Some organizations worshiping temporarily in halls, schoolhouses, or private houses own lots upon which they are building or are about to build church edifices. The value of such lots is given in the column for church property.

No account has been made of church debts. In perhaps a majority of cases church property is mortgaged for a larger or smaller percentage of its value, and it sometimes happens (though rarely) that building and lot are lost to a denomination by foreclosure, but it was not deemed necessary to ascertain and deduct the amount of incumbrances. The design of the column was not to represent the net value, or equity, to those holding the title, but the entire value of property devoted to public worship.

The four branches of (Plymouth) Brethren have no church property whatever. They hold their services in public halls, schoolhouses, or private houses, not believing that it is necessary or advisable to have buildings of their own consecrated to worship, as is the custom of most other denominations. This is also true of the Christadelphians.

METHOD OF GATHERING THE STATISTICS.

The statistics of 1850, 1860, and 1870 were gathered by United States marshals or their agents. In 1880 extensive preparations were made by the Census Office for the collection of information concerning each organization, chiefly by means of correspondence. The schedules sent out carried a long list of inquiries. If full answers had been received a mass of exceedingly valuable facts with respect to the cost, debt, and date of erection of church edifices, the finances of each organization, including its benevolences, how the sexes were represented in church membership, and the like would have been available for tabulation. It is a matter of regret that circumstances prevented the results from being published. No church statistics were issued in connection with that census.

The method adopted in 1890 was the one which seemed to promise the fullest, promptest, and most accurate returns. It was regarded as quite certain that any attempt at direct correspondence with upward of 165,000 organizations, belonging to more than 140 denominations, must fail at many points. In the first place no complete list of the organizations was in existence. Secondly, too much time would be required to prepare such a list. Thirdly, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to secure accuracy in this way. Fourthly, similarity of denominational titles would be likely to lead to confusion. There were other reasons which made the objection to this method quite conclusive. The more natural and feasible plan was suggested by the fact that denominations have ecclesiastical divisions and subdivisions. The great majority of churches have an orderly arrangement or collocation of organizations or congregations, corresponding in some degree to the civil divisions of county, district, state, and federal union.

For example, all Presbyterian bodies have a regular succession of church courts, from the session, representing the local organization or church, to the general assembly, the supreme authority. The presbytery consists of a number of organizations within a given territory; the synod embraces all the presbyteries within a state or other large area. Each presbytery has a clerk, who keeps its minutes and a roll of the organizations belonging to it. The clerk knows where each is situated, when new churches are organized or old ones disbanded, and he is in correspondence with all. He is, moreover, the recognized statistical officer, whose duty it is to gather and report annually the statistics of the churches of his presbytery to the general statistician of the denomination. Obviously, the presbyterial clerks were the proper persons to gather the information of Presbyterian churches desired for the census. Each clerk was furnished with a large schedule for his presbytery and with circulars and other necessary materials for correspondence with church clerks or pastors. Among the Lutherans, the secretaries of synods rendered most satisfactory service, while the numerous local churches not connected with any synod were reached by circulars sent direct.

The Methodist bodies have, instead of presbyteries, synods, and assemblies, a system of conferences. The annual conference corresponds to the presbytery. It is divided into districts, except in a few of the branches, and over these districts are placed presiding elders, who visit each church in their districts 4 times a year. For statistics of the Methodist bodies and also of the Evangelical Association and United Brethren, which have a similar ecclesiastical system, application was made to the presiding elders. Each had a comparatively small territory to cover, and knew it so thoroughly that he could make full and accurate returns with comparatively little trouble.

The Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches, having a complete diocesan system, it was natural to make the diocese the ecclesiastical unit in gathering their statistics. The correspondence was addressed to the bishop in charge of each diocese, who either designated the chancellor, or secretary, or other proper diocesan officer to do the work, or undertook it himself.

Among the Baptists, the association rather than the state convention was taken as the proper division for statistical purposes. The latter receive reports from associations, the clerks of which are also statistical officers, gathering yearly the returns of the churches. As some of the Baptist bodies are very large, reporting a million or more of members each, and as they have no close system of ecclesiastical organization, no plan seemed to promise such satisfactory results as that of requesting the clerks of associations to make returns, each for the churches connected with his association. Where the clerks were new and unaccustomed to their duties, the moderators did the required service for the census.

The Congregational churches usually have state conventions, but no organizations exactly corresponding to Baptist associations. State secretaries were therefore selected for the census work. They were thoroughly furnished for it, and made full and prompt returns.

The statistics of the Unitarians and a few other smaller bodies were secured by direct correspondence with each local church.

This was the general plan. In all denominations having ecclesiastical systems which group local churches into associations, conferences, presbyteries, or dioceses, the secretaries or clerks of these divisions were requested to furnish the information desired; in other cases communication was had with each local church direct or some other method was adopted

FORM OF THE RETURNS.

It should be understood that while separate statistics of single organizations do not appear in the tables except where there happens to be but one in a county, it was deemed necessary to have the name and location (county, town, or city) and statistical items given in the schedules for every local church or congregation. Every table in this volume is made up, not from totals furnished for districts, associations, dioceses, or presbyteries, but from the detailed statistics of every local church or congregation of whatever denomination. This made it possible to apply rigid tests to all the returns, and also to combine them in a variety of ways: by counties, by cities, or even by towns and villages if desired. The following is an illustrative form from a page of a schedule exhibiting the manner in which returns were made:

RECORD OF THE SCHEDULES.

In order to avoid confusion and to insure prompt returns from every diocese, presbytery, synod, and kindred body a system of accounts was devised. Books were opened and a record was made of every schedule sent out. Each schedule bore its appropriate number; also particulars like these. "Report of Longville Association, Regular Baptist churches, state of Alabama". These lines, with the number, were entered in a blank book, together with the name and address of the secretary to whom the schedule was sent; also the date. When it was received an entry was made stating whether it was properly filled, partially filled, or returned blank. If it was not returned within a reasonable period a letter of inquiry was sent out. Many schedules were returned unfilled by several persons in succession, and were worn out in transit. All the changes were duly noted in the account kept with that particular number, and it was not closed until the completed schedule was received. This system prevented confusion and undue delays, and proved an efficient safeguard against errors and omissions. Several thousand schedules were kept under control by it. The following is a facsimile of one of these entries:

DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED.

Various difficulties arose in the prosecution of the work. The first was in obtaining full and accurate lists of the ecclesiastical subdivisions, such as associations and districts. Those denominations which have a complete ecclesiastical system and a more or less thorough statistical method gave little or no trouble, but with others whose forms of government are less centralized, and whose attempts at statistical work are less perfect and persistent, it was necessary to enter upon an extensive correspondence in order to obtain preliminary information indispensable to correct statistical work. The lists of associations of white and colored Regular Baptists in the south were not finally completed until shortly before the last returns were received for tabulation. These associations are very numerous, reaching in the aggregate well toward 1,100. Every year changes take place among them. New associations are organized, old ones divided, boundaries and names are changed, associations or portions of associations are united, and clerks are not always careful to report these important occurrences. For the 12 bodies of Mennonites there was no publication affording any information. Most of them make no effort to gather the statistics of their churches.

The second difficulty was in obtaining statistics of bodies which do not believe that it is either necessary or right to "number Israel". They pointed to the statement of the scriptures that David sinned in doing this, and that punishment followed. Some individuals among them furnished information for the particular church or congregation with which they were connected, because it was asked for by the government. While they had conscientious scruples against "numbering the people of God" for their own purpose, they held that the scriptures required them to be in obedience to those appointed to rule over them. On this ground some made returns; others refused. The following action was taken by representatives of the Old Order Brethren, or Dunkards:

Whereas a number of our elders have received papers and blanks from one who claims authority from the United States as census agent to collect statistics and secure the enumeration of church membership, etc.; and whereas a number of elders and speakers were in council at Donels Creek, Clark county, Ohio, and took the matter into consideration and unanimously agreed that we could not consistently, according to our understanding of the former usages of our ancient brethren, take part in numbering our people in this way; and we further agree to publish this, our conclusions, in The Vindicator, and that a copy be sent to the aforesaid census agent. So ordered and provided for in the presence of Elders A. Flory, H. D. Davy, E. Hoover, and a number of others.

The statistics of most of the churches of this branch were obtained by special methods. A representative of another denomination, few in number, made answer to the effect that Christ said, "My sheep hear my voice and I know them and they follow me"; therefore he "knows his sheep, but me or you don't". Another correspondent, a minister, stated that he belonged to the "church of the first born who are written in heaven". Of this body, he wrote, "God keeps the class book, the family register, in heaven; therefore, having no example from either Christ or the apostles, we keep no registry or enrollment. We know each other by the one spirit God has given all his people, and not by any class book system". If such cases had been numerous, the census of the churches would have been far from complete.

PLAN OF TABULATION.

The statistics are tabulated by counties, states, and territories; by conferences, dioceses, presbyteries, and the like, and by cities. The county is the territorial unit, and county lines have been observed in tabulating by ecclesiastical divisions as well as by states. A glance at the tabulation for any state will show in what counties any particular denomination is represented. Under the head of conferences, presbyteries, and the like, the tables indicate what counties are embraced in each conference, presbytery, etc. This plan, however, was so far modified as to except Baptist associations, which are very numerous and often very irregular in their boundaries. The division of communicants by counties is not, of course, always absolutely exact. In the nature of the case it could not be. There are many churches on or near county lines whose members reside in 2 or more counties. Take, for example, the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield, in New Jersey. These two places, separated only by a narrow brook, with the same post office and the same railroad station, are divided by county lines. Plainfield is in Union and North Plainfield is in Somerset county. The former has a population of 11,267 and the latter of 4,250. Nearly all of the churches are in Plainfield. Only 3, besides a mission, are situated in North Plainfield. The explanation is, that hundreds of residents of North Plainfield are members of churches in Plainfield and attend service there. They are counted, of course, with their churches, and are therefore credited to Union county in the returns. Such instances are liable to make the figures for certain counties seem too large or too small. If this fact is kept in mind no one need be misled in any case.

HISTORICAL AND EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS.

The historical and explanatory statements are given as carefully and succinctly as possible. They are designed to make the statistics of the different denominations more intelligible and valuable. The objects in view in preparing them were to make an accurate showing of the place, date, and circumstances of the origin, the facts of the development, the distinctive points of the belief, the chief features of the polity, and the peculiar usages of the various religious bodies. Those who wish to know the differences between the branches of any denominational family can find them by studying the introductory statements. The materials for these statements were gathered from authoritative sources, and, in many cases, what was written was approved by a competent representative of the denomination described.

DENOMINATIONAL TITLES.

Not a few of the 143 denominations represented in the census are without definitive titles, and in many cases it is not easy to distinguish particular bodies by the official designations.

There are, for example, in the Presbyterian group 2 bodies thus named, "Presbyterian Church in the United States of America" and "Presbyterian Church in the United States". These titles vary only in that the first is longer by the 2 words "of America", but there is nothing definitive in these words. They represent no geographical difference. There is nothing to indicate that the longer name belongs to the body popularly called the "Northern" Presbyterian Church or that the shorter designates the body known as the "Southern" Presbyterian Church. If the words "northern" and "southern" were not applied but few, comparatively, would be able to identify these 2 leading branches of the Presbyterian family. In the same family there are 4 other titles which show little variation: "Reformed Presbyterian Church in the United States of America", "Reformed Presbyterian Church in the United States and Canada", "Reformed Presbyterian Church in North America", and "Reformed Presbyterian Covenanted Church". The first and third are commonly distinguished by the use of the words "synod" and "general synod", respectively. The last makes "covenanted" a part of its title; but all Reformed Presbyterians are covenanters, and the difference implied is not therefore a real one. It is exceedingly difficult to distinguish between the 4 branches.

In the Reformed group these titles are found: "Reformed Church in America", and "Reformed Church in the United States". The distinction implied is geographical, but there is, of course, no real geographical difference. The words "America" and "United States" have here no territorial significance. Where it is necessary to distinguish between these kindred bodies, the first is called the "Reformed (Dutch) Church", the latter the "Reformed (German) Church".

There are various bodies of Brethren, some of which disclaim distinctive titles. One group is popularly known as (Plymouth) Brethren. There are 4 branches in this family, and to avoid confusion they appear thus in the census tables: (Plymouth) Brethren I, (Plymouth) Brethren II, (Plymouth) Brethren III, and (Plymouth) Brethren IV.

The 4 bodies usually spoken of as Friends, simply, or Quakers, are distinguished one from another by words which form no part of their names. This is also true of the 2 bodies called the United Brethren in Christ and of the 2 bearing the title, "Church Triumphant". The "Christians" do not wish to be known by any other name; but another denomination, otherwise called the Disciples of Christ, is also quite generally known as "Christians" simply. There is a Mennonite branch reported as the Church of God in Christ and an Adventist church designated the Churches of God in Christ Jesus.

In the large Methodist group there are 17 titles, and some of them show but little variation: "Methodist Episcopal" and "Methodist Episcopal, South", for example. The former has churches in all the southern as well as in the northern states, and the latter is not confined to the south. "African Methodist Episcopal", "African Methodist Episcopal Zion", and "Colored Methodist Episcopal". These are distinct negro branches. "Congregational Methodist", "Congregational Methodist, Colored", and "New Congregational Methodist".

The fact that some of the bodies which have titles that do not define and distinguish are small and comparatively obscure does not make a scientific nomenclature less desirable for the ecclesiastical student.

DENOMINATIONAL FAMILIES.

Religious bodies fall naturally into groups, as the Adventist, Baptist, Catholic, Methodist, and Presbyterian. The relationship is commonly but not invariably indicated by the name. Thus, all bodies that make the word "Methodist" a part of their name are, with one exception, considered as members of the Methodist family. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Church, now quite often called the Welsh Presbyterian Church, belongs to the Presbyterian family. It was Methodist in origin, but being Calvinistic in doctrine, and having other points of sympathy with the Presbyterians, it has become affiliated with them. All other Presbyterian branches are Presbyterian in name, history, and polity, and also in doctrine, with two exceptions, and all Methodist branches represent the results of division in the Methodist movement. All denominations bearing the Baptist name have historical ties, and all agree concerning the mode and subjects of baptism; but there are other bodies holding the same view of the ordinance which are not properly members of the Baptist family.

In associating branches in the same family no arbitrary rule has been followed. Neither title, history, doctrine, polity, nor usage is always conclusive as to the proper place of a denomination. The communistic societies differ widely in name, history, belief, and usage; but the distinctive feature of each is communal life, and this makes it proper that they should be brought together into one group. The Unitarians are historically a branch of congregationalism; but they have grown far apart from Congregationalists in doctrines and do not affiliate with them. The United Brethren in Christ and the Evangelical Association have strong resemblances to the Methodists in doctrine, church government, and usage, but historically they are rather branches of widely different churches. They prefer to be considered independent denominations, although they are usually represented in the conferences of ecumenical Methodism.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE LEADING RELIGIOUS SECTS

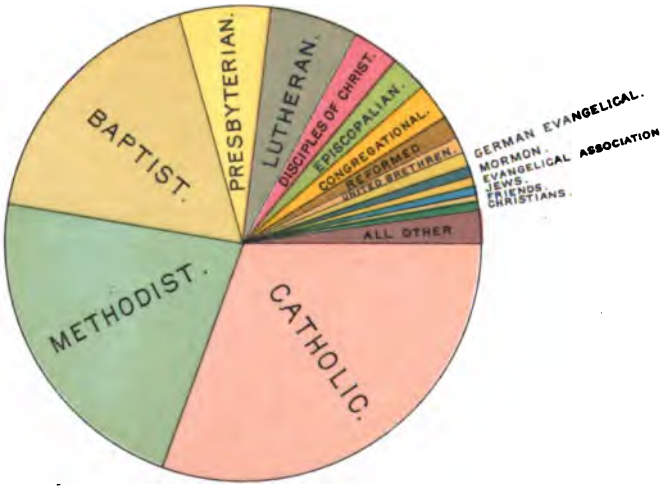
UNITED STATES.



THE AREA OF THE CIRCLE REPRESENTS THE CHURCH MEMBERSHIP OF THE COUNTRY, THE SEVERAL SECTORS, THE PROPORTIONAL STRENGTH OF THE SEVERAL DENOMINATIONS.

DENOMINATIONS HAVING CHURCHES AND MISSIONS ABROAD.

This census being the census for the United States only, no organizations, edifices, or communicants are given in the statistics except those within the national boundaries. Most of the leading churches represented have organizations, with church property and communicants, in other lands. Missionaries, sent by the churches of the United States to Mexico, to the various countries of Central and South America, of Europe, of Asia, of Africa, to Hawaii, and other islands in all quarters of the globe, have secured converts, and established in those lands churches of the same name, faith, and order. More than 40 denominations are thus represented in foreign fields, with an aggregate of communicants exceeding 287,000.

STATISTICAL RESULTS.

There are 143 distinct denominations in the United States, besides independent Lutheran and unassociated Baptist churches and independent miscellaneous congregations. Of these 143 denominations, 119 are thus grouped:

Adventist	6	Mennonite	12	Dunkards	4
(River)Brethren	3	Presbyterian	12	Jewish	2
Catholic	7	Reformed	3	Lutheran	16
Communistic	8	Baptist	13	Methodist	17
Friends	4	(Plymouth) Brethren	4	Protestant Episcopal	2
Latter-day Saints	2	Christians	2	United Brethren	2

There are 119 denominations thus associated in ecclesiastical families or groups, and 24 which are not thus associated. The total of communicants of all denominations is 20,612,806, who belong to 165,177 organizations or congregations. These congregations have 142,521 edifices, which have sittings for 43,564,863 persons, and are valued, with their sites and furniture, at $679,630,139. Besides these edifices, 23,334 halls, schoolhouses, and private houses are occupied as places of worship, and the halls and schoolhouses provide sittings for 2,450,858 persons, making the grand total of sittings, 46,015,721. There are 111,036 regular ministers, not including lay preachers.

a No members reported.

There are 5 bodies which have 1,000,000 and more of communicants, 10 which have more than 500,000, 26 which have 100,000 and upward, and 37 having above 50,000. The 5 largest denominations represent a total of 12,310,802 communicants, or a little less than 60 per cent of the total, and the 10 largest 15,584,927, or more than 75 per cent of the whole number. The 26 denominations highest on the list have 18,957,944 communicants, or nearly 92 per cent of the whole; that is, 26 denominations represent nearly 92 per cent of all communicants, and the remaining 117, together with the independent congregations, both Lutheran and miscellaneous, have 1,654,862 communicants, or a little more than 8 per cent.

ORDER OF DENOMINATIONAL FAMILIES BY COMMUNICANTS.

Arranged according to number of communicants, the ecclesiastical families, or groups, stand thus:

1. Catholic 6,257,871
2. Methodist 4,589,284
3. Baptist 3,712,468
4. Presbyterian..... 1,278,332

ORDER OF DENOMINATIONS BY NUMBER OF ORGANIZATIONS.

The 26 denominations having 100,000 and more communicants stand thus in number of organizations:

1. Methodist Episcopal 25,861
2. Regular Baptist (South) 16,238
3. Methodist Episcopal, South..... 15,017
4. Regular Baptist (colored) 12,533

19. Lutheran Synodical Conference. 1,934
20. Colored Methodist Episcopal ... 1,759
21. African Methodist Episcopal Zion 1,704
22. Reformed in United States 1,510
23. Lutheran General Synod..... 1,424
24. United Norwegian Lutheran.... 1,122
25. German Evangelical Synod..... 870
26. Latter-day Saints 425

It will be observed that the Methodist Episcopal Church, which was second in number of communicants, is first in number of organizations, and that the Roman Catholic Church, which was first in number of communicants is fifth in number of organizations. There are other differences, but none so notable as this. The Roman Catholic organizations, as explained elsewhere, are much larger than those of any other denomination. While there are nearly 3 Catholic communicants to every Methodist communicant, there are 2½ Methodist organizations to every Catholic organization. Catholic parishes sometimes contain as many as 14,000 communicants.

The order of denominations by number of church edifices corresponds, with some exceptions, to that by organizations.

8. Regular Baptist (South)	18,196,637	17. Reformed in the United States	7,975,583	25. Methodist Protestant	3,683,337
9. Disciples of Christ	12,206,038

These 25 denominations have church property aggregating $631,110,033 in value, leaving a balance of $48,520,106 as representing the value of the property belonging to the 118 other denominations, together with the independent congregations. This shows that denominations having 89 per cent of the total of communicants have nearly 93 per cent of the total value of church property.

The order by denominational families is quite different from that of individual denominations:

1. Methodist	$132,140,179	5. Baptist	$82,328,123	8. Jewish	$9,754,275
2. Catholic	118,371,366	6. Lutheran	35,060,354	9. United Brethren	4,937,583
3. Presbyterian	94,869,097	7. Reformed	18,744,242	10. Friends	4,541,334
4. Episcopalian	82,835,418

Individual denominations report higher figures than some of these ecclesiastical families. The Congregationalists have large wealth in church property, returning $43,335,437. The Disciples of Christ are credited with $12,206,038, the Unitarians with $10,335,100, and the Universalists with $8,054,333.

HOW THE RELIGIOUS FORCES ARE DISTRIBUTED AMONG THE STATES.

In number of communicants and value of church property, New York leads and Pennsylvania follows, but in number of organizations and church edifices Pennsylvania is first and Ohio second. The order by communicants in 10 states is as follows:

1. New York	2,171,822	5. Massachusetts	942,751	8. North Carolina	385,194
2. Pennsylvania	1,726,640	6. Missouri	735,839	9. Georgia	679,051
3. Ohio	1,215,409	7. Indiana	693,860	10. Texas	677,151
4. Illinois	1,202,588

The list of the highest in order by value of church property is as follows:

1. New York	$140,123,008	5. Illinois	$39,715,245	8. Michigan	$18,682,971
2. Pennsylvania	85,917,370	6. New Jersey	29,490,414	9. Indiana	18,671,131
3. Massachusetts	46,835,014	7. Missouri	19,663,737	10. Connecticut	16,985,036
4. Ohio	42,138,862

In this table New Jersey, Michigan, and Connecticut appear in place of North Carolina, Georgia, and Texas, which are represented in the table of communicants.

The 10 leading states in order of number of church edifices are:

1. Pennsylvania	9,624	5. Georgia	7,008	8. Alabama	6,013
2. Ohio	8,857	6. North Carolina	6,512	9. Indiana	5,944
3. New York	7,942	7. Missouri	6,121	10. Tennessee	5,792
4. Illinois	7,352

In this table 2 states, Alabama and Tennessee, appear, which are not represented in either of the preceding tables.

According to number of organizations, the 10 leading states stand in the following order:

1. Pennsylvania	10,175	5. New York	8,237	8. North Carolina	6,824
2. Ohio	9,345	6. Missouri	8,064	9. Indiana	6,480
3. Texas	8,766	7. Georgia	6,899	10. Alabama	6,383

It will be observed that in this table New York, which occupies the first place in the table of communicants and value of church property and the third place in the table of church edifices, is fifth. Texas, which is tenth in the table of communicants and is not represented in the highest ten of church property or church edifices, takes the third place in the table of organizations. Six states appear in each of these 4 tables, namely, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, and Indiana.

PERCENTAGE OF POPULATION REPRESENTED BY COMMUNICANTS.

The percentage of the population represented by the communicants in the various states and territories is far from being uniform. The highest percentages are not found in the oldest states nor in fact in any of the states, but in the territories. In this respect New Mexico occupies the first position, the communicants in that territory constituting 68.85 of its population. New Mexico is strongly Roman Catholic. Utah territory is second in the list of high percentages. The communicants returned for it constitute 61.62 per cent of its total population. This high percentage is to be credited to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Arizona territory, which, like New Mexico, is strongly Catholic, is third, having a percentage of 45.24.

Among the states, South Carolina, a Baptist stronghold, has most communicants in proportion to its population, the percentage being 44.17; Rhode Island is second, with 42.84; North Carolina third, with 42.35; Massachusetts fourth, with 42.11; Connecticut fifth, with 41.45. In Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and Connecticut the Congregationalists are very strong, and there is also a heavy Catholic membership. Indeed, Catholic communicants are the most numerous in each of these New England states. North Carolina is a Baptist state. The following table shows the percentage of communicants to the population in 21 states and territories, beginning with the highest:

1. New Mexico	68.85	8. Connecticut	41.45	15. New York	36.21
2. Utah	61.62	9. Minnesota	40.91	16. Louisiana	35.76
3. Arizona	45.24	10. District of Columbia	40.89	17. New Jersey	35.18
4. South Carolina	44.17	11. Alabama	36.96	18. Virginia	34.37
5. Rhode Island	42.84	12. Georgia	36.96	19. Mississippi	33.39
6. North Carolina	42.35	13. Maryland	36.40	20. Ohio	33.10
7. Massachusetts	42.11	14. Florida	36.21	21. Wisconsin	32.98

The percentage of the other states and territories ranges from 32.84 for Pennsylvania down to 7.93 for Oklahoma. Next above Oklahoma is Nevada, 12.84; then in order is Washington, 16.83; Nebraska, 18.36, and Wyoming, 19.28. Oklahoma had just been opened to settlement when its returns were gathered in 1890. Nevada has a sparse and decreasing population, and Washington and Wyoming are among the newest states. The average percentage of communicants to the population in the United States, excepting Alaska and the Indian territory, is 32.85, which lacks a little more than 0.48 of being one-third. There are 21 states and territories whose percentages are higher than the average, and 28 states and territories whose percentage falls below the average. Of the 6 New England states, 3, namely, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and Connecticut, range from 8.60 to 9.99 above the average percentage for the United States, and 3, namely, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, range from 0.87 to 8.67 below the average.

GROWTH OF RELIGIOUS BODIES.

Certain returns of religious denominations appeared in the census reports of 1850, 1860, and 1870. These returns did not, however, include communicants. They embraced 3 items only in 1850 and 1860, and 4 in 1870. In the census of 1870 a distinction was observed between congregations and edifices. In the 2 preceding censuses there had been a column for churches, but the term was ambiguous, it being impossible, according to the report of 1870, to say, "in any particular case, whether church organizations or church edifices" were returned. In respect to organizations and edifices therefore no comparison can be made between the results of the censuses of 1850 and 1860 and those of 1890. The table on the following page was given in the report of 1870.

It appears that the increase in the value of church property in the 20 years since 1870 has been $325,146,558, or nearly 92 per cent. From 1850 to 1860 the increase was slightly over 96 per cent, while from 1860 to 1870 the increase was nearly 107 per cent.

The number of churches in 1850 was 38,061; in 1860, 54,009, indicating an increase of 15,948, or nearly 42 per cent. For the period of 20 years ending in 1890 there was a very large increase in the number of organizations and church edifices. In fact they were considerably more than doubled, that is, on the supposition that the report for 1870 was exhaustive, of which there is room for doubt. The number of organizations in 1870 was 72,459; in 1890 it was 165,177, showing an increase of 92,718, or nearly 128 per cent. The advance in church edifices was from 63,082 to 142,521, a net gain of 79,439, or nearly 126 per cent. These are very high rates of increase.

It is difficult in many cases to compare the position of various denominations in 1870 with that which they occupy in 1890. It is impossible, for example, to say what branches are included in the indefinite terms employed in the report of 1870, "Baptist (other)", "Miscellaneous", "Presbyterian (regular)", "Presbyterian (other)", and "Unknown (union)". The report says that the term "Christian" includes not only the Christians, or Christian Connection, but also the Disciples of Christ, which are often called Christians, though it is a denomination entirely distinct from the Christians or Christian Connection. These 2 bodies are credited in 1870 with 3,578 organizations; in 1890 they have an aggregate of 8,527, indicating an increase in the period of 4,949, or 138 per cent. There was an even more remarkable increase in Baptist organizations; they had but 15,829 in 1870, now they have 42,909, an increase of 27,080, or over 171 per cent. The Methodists a little more than doubled the number of their organizations. The Presbyterians advanced from 7,824 to 13,476; the Lutherans from 3,032 to 8,595, a gain of more than 183 per cent. There are other remarkable instances of increase, so remarkable, indeed, as to lead inevitably to the conclusion that the reports for 1870 were not exhaustive. The method by which they were obtained could not be expected to yield the fullest results.

INCREASE IN COMMUNICANTS SINCE 1880.

It is possible, by consulting the various denominational "year books", to ascertain how many communicants most of the leading Protestant denominations reported in 1880, and with these figures for a basis of comparison to show what the increase was in the decade ending in 1890. The following table embraces all the Protestant denominations for which the figures for 1880 are accessible or sufficiently definite to quote. They are believed to be fairly accurate. There is some doubt whether those given for the Disciples of Christ for that year are not smaller than they should be. They are not to be taken as exact returns.

This table indicates an increase of 3,895,129 communicants in the decade ending in 1890, or 42.05 per cent. The increase in the population of the country for the same period was 24.86. Consequently the percentage of increase of the churches named was greater by 17.19 than that of the population. The denominations not included in the table are comparatively small, except the Roman Catholic, and aggregate only 1,223,026 communicants. What the gains were for these bodies can not be shown. Enough is known about them, however, to make it certain that they did not maintain the rate of increase indicated in the above table. Some of them are believed to have made large gains, a few suffered losses; most of them had only a moderate increase. If all could be included in the comparison the percentage would, of course, be lowered, but probably not more than 5 or 6 points, leaving it 36 or 37 per cent.

The statistics given for the Roman Catholic Church in the denominational year books are for population, not for communicants, while those given in the census are for communicants, not for population. Comparison is obviously out of the question between the census returns of 1890 and the denominational returns of 1880. There is no reason to doubt that the growth of the church in the decade was large. Immigration brought great numbers of French Catholics from Canada, and Irish, German, Polish, Italian, and other Catholics from Europe to this country, and it would seem that the rate of increase must have exceeded that of the general population. The estimates of Catholic directories for 1880 and 1890 as to the Catholic population indicate an increase of nearly 30 per cent. All observation would lead to the conclusion that this is not an excessive figure.

COLORED ELEMENT IN CHURCH STATISTICS.

The term colored is used in the general census to include Indians, Chinese, and Japanese, as well as negroes and persons of negro descent. The term has been used in religious statistics to such a degree to designate negroes and those of negro descent that this use will be followed in this report except where otherwise explained.

It has been thought advisable to give separate tables of churches wholly colored, and of the colored organizations in churches embracing both white and negro communicants. There are 10 denominations wholly colored, and statistics are given of colored organizations in 19 other denominations. No attempt has been made to seek out every colored organization in these 19 denominations. In the Methodist Episcopal Church, for example, little more has been done than to select colored conferences and colored districts in other conferences. There are some colored organizations in that denomination which are not included in the tables. The same thing is true of the Northern Baptists and other denominations. Besides the colored organizations (probably not exceeding in the aggregate 100) not reported separately, there is a considerable number of negro communicants belonging to white churches not separately counted.

Of the 10 colored denominations, by far the largest is the Regular Baptist (colored), which has 1,348,989 communicants, connected with 12,533 organizations. These organizations report 11,987 church edifices, only 546 less than the number of organized churches. Some of the organizations, however, report more than one church edifice so that 663 organizations occupy halls, schoolhouses, and private houses as places of worship. The proportion of church edifices to organizations is remarkably large, but not larger than obtained among the other colored denominations. Evidently it is the rule among colored organizations to have church edifices of their own. The value of church property (including edifices, sites, and furniture) belonging to the Regular Baptists (colored) is $9,038,549. The second largest colored body is the African Methodist Episcopal Church, with 2,481 organizations, 4,124 church edifices (a singular excess), church property valued at $6,468,280, and 452,725 communicants. The African Methodist Episcopal Zion, a body kindred to the preceding denomination, with the same polity, discipline, and doctrines, is third, with 1,704 organizations, 1,587 church edifices, church property valued at $2,714,128, and 349,788 communicants. Eight of the 10 colored bodies are Methodist, 1 is Presbyterian, and 1 is Baptist. The aggregates for the 10 bodies are 18,835 organizations, 19,631 church edifices, church property valued at $20,389,714, and 2,303,151 communicants. The colored Methodist bodies aggregate 941,206 members, leaving 1,361,945 to the Baptist and Presbyterian bodies, of which number only 12,956 are Presbyterian.

The total of colored organizations in the 19 denominations containing white and negro communicants is 4,627, with 4,139 church edifices, church property valued at $6,236,734, and 370,826 communicants. Of these 19 denominations, 5 are Baptist, 3 Methodist, 3 Presbyterian, and 2 Lutheran. The largest colored constituency reported by any one of them is 246,249 communicants, by the Methodist Episcopal. The others range from 35,221, among the Northern Baptists, to 76 reported in connection with the Reformed Presbyterian Synod. Selecting the figures for the Baptist and Methodist bodies in both tables, the following results appear:

BODIES.	Organizations.	Communicants.
Total	22,407	2,594,419
Baptist (6 bodies)	13,289	1,403,559
Methodist (11 bodies)	9,118	1,190,860

The Baptists, it will be seen, are the more numerous, having 4,171 organizations and 212,699 communicants in excess of those reported for the Methodist bodies. Together the Baptists and Methodists have all the colored organizations except 1,055, and all the colored communicants except 79,558. The Baptist communicants constitute 52 49 per cent of the aggregate; the Methodist, 44.53; and the rest of the denominations, 2.98.

The aggregate for the 10 colored denominations and for the negro element in the 19 other denominations are as follows: organizations, 23,462; church edifices, 23,770; value of church property, $26,626,448; communicants, 2,673,977.

The negro population of the country, exclusive of Indian territory and Alaska, according to the census of 1890, is 7,470,040. As the churches report 2,673,197 negro communicants, exclusive of Indian territory and Alaska, it follows that 1 person in every 2.79 of the negro population is a communicant. Excluding Indian territory and Alaska, the total population is 62,622,250 and the total of communicants 20,568,679. The proportion here is 1 communicant in every 3.04 of the population. In other words, while all denominations have 328.46 communicants in every 1,000 of the total population, the colored organizations reported have 357.86 communicants in every 1,000 of the negro population. In order fully to appreciate the significance of this result, it should be remembered that the vast majority of the negro population were under the disabilities involved in slavery less than a generation ago. They were, as a rule, trained in the faith of their masters while they were slaves. Portions of the churches were reserved for them, and they had also places where they worshiped by themselves. It is not possible to ascertain exactly how many communicants there were among them in 1860. Some facts are known, however, which afford indications as to the probable number of them who were active church members. In 1860 the great majority of negro Methodists were in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. That church reported for that year 207,000 negro communicants, in round numbers. Other Methodist bodies had in addition, as far as can be ascertained, 65,000 to 70,000 more, making a total of about 275,000 negro Methodists. A careful examination of the returns of the Regular Baptists for that year and other years leads to the conclusion that 250,000 would be a liberal estimate for the colored Baptists. It would appear, then, that in the 30 years ending in 1890 the colored Baptists have increased from 250,000 to 1,403,559 and the Methodists from 275,000 to 1,190,860. It is, of course, quite possible that there were a number of negro communicants in 1860 of whom no record was made. Making due allowances, however, for imperfect returns in 1860, there seems to be no reason to doubt that the increase of Baptist and Methodist communicants among the negroes in the last 30 years has been at least fourfold.

Most of the church property belonging to colored church organizations in 1890 has been accumulated since the war. The amount, $26,626,448, is very large when the material condition of those who have secured it is considered. They have, of course, been generously helped by the other churches and by individuals of the white race in all parts of the country.

As to the distribution of negro communicants among the states, the great majority of them are to be found, as is natural, in the south. The following table shows in what particular states of the south they are strongest:

	COMMUNICANTS.		COMMUNICANTS.		COMMUNICANTS.
Total	2,529,443	Florida	64,337	Missouri	42,452
		Georgia	341,433	North Carolina	290,755
Alabama	297,161	Kentucky	92,768	South Carolina	317,020
Arkansas	106,445	Louisiana	108,872	Tennessee	131,015
Delaware	6,595	Maryland	58,566	Texas	186,038
District of Columbia	22,965	Mississippi	224,404	Virginia	238,617

This total for 15 states and the District of Columbia leaves only 144,534 negro communicants to be distributed among all the other 28 states and territories in which there are colored organizations. The largest membership is in Georgia, which has the largest negro population. South Carolina, which is third in negro population, is second in negro communicants, and Alabama, which is fourth in negro population, is third in negro communicants.

CHURCHES AND CITIES.

The cities present important problems to those interested in the success of religious work. They are crowded centers of population, to which both immigration from abroad and migration from the rural districts contribute diverse elements. Urban population is growing more rapidly than suburban or rural. Tables are given for all cities having a population of 25,000 and upward. There are 124 such cities, and to facilitate reference and the making of different combinations, they have been divided into three classes: first, cities having a population of 500,000 and over, there being 4 in this class; second, those having a population of 100,000 to 500,000, there being 24 in this class; third, those having a population of 25,000 to 100,000, there being 96 in this class.

The tables show that in the 124 cities all denominations have an aggregate of 5,302,018 communicants belonging to 10,241 organizations, which own 9,722 church edifices, and church property valued at $313,537,247. The number of communicants constitutes 25.72 per cent of the total for the whole country. The value of church property, $313,537,247, comes near to being half of the entire amount. The exact percentage is 46.13. This was to be expected, as city property, especially in land, is worth many times as much as in thinly settled communities, and city churches are generally placed in prominent positions, where sites are very costly. The number of church edifices bears but a slight relation to the total for the United States, being only 6.82 per cent of it. This shows how immense is their excess in value, less than 7 per cent of the church edifices having nearly half of the value of the whole 142,521. The percentage is nearly the same for organizations.

The cities represented have an aggregate population of 13,989,568. Of this population, 5,302,018 are returned as communicants. According to this the proportion of communicants to population is higher in the cities than in the whole country. In the latter 1 person in every 3.04 is a communicant; in the cities 1 in every 2.64 is a communicant. In the United States there are 328.46 communicants in every 1,000 of the population; in the cities there are 379.00 communicants in every 1,000 of the population. Much of this difference may be accounted for, however, by the fact that the Roman Catholic Church has its great strongholds in the larger cities.

New York holds the lead of all the cities in number of organizations, 644; in value of church property, $54,670,600, and in communicants, 556,954. In the number of church edifices Philadelphia is first, having 664, 130 more than New York. The 4 cities of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Brooklyn have 1,589,898 communicants, 2,187 organizations, and 2,081 church edifices, and church property valued at $116,839,069. These 4 cities have a combined population of 4,468,458, or a little less than one-third of the population of the 124 cities. They have considerably less than a third of the communicants, but much more than a third of the value of church property. Brooklyn has long been called the "City of churches", but Philadelphia has a far greater number in proportion to population. It has 1 church edifice for every 1,577 of its population; Brooklyn comes second, with 1 for every 2,105; Chicago third, with 1 for every 2,200, and New York fourth, with 1 for every 2,838.

The 24 cities constituting the second class have an aggregate population of 5,229,502. They report 3,770 organizations, 3,562 church edifices, church property valued at $109,499,919, and 2,035,064 communicants. These figures indicate a larger proportion of communicants to population than those of the cities in the first class.

The 96 cities in the third class, ranging from 25,000 to 100,000 in population, have in the aggregate 4,291,608, which is less by 176,850 than the population of the first, and 937,894 than that of the second class; yet they report 87,158 communicants, 1,998 church edifices, and 2,097 organizations more than those of the first class. They also have more organizations and church edifices than the cities of the second class. In value of church property they naturally fall below both the first and second classes.

The significance of these differences is indicated by the following comparisons:

NUMBER OF COMMUNICANTS IN EACH 1,000 OF POPULATION.

	COMMUNICANTS.
First class	356
Second class	389
Third class	391

PROPORTION OF EDIFICES TO POPULATION.

	ONE EDIFICE TO—
First class	2,147
Second class	1,468
Third class	1,052

From this it would appear that the smaller cities provide more edifices in proportion to their population than those of the more populous classes. The 4 largest cities have fewer edifices and fewer communicants in proportion to their population.

DENOMINATIONS IN CITIES.

Of the 143 denominations, 37 are not represented in any city having 25,000 population and upward. Of the 106 denominations, besides independent congregations, which have organizations in all or part of the 124 cities, the Roman Catholic has by far the larger number of communicants. The following table shows the strength of 23 denominations, arranged according to the number of communicants belonging to each:

DENOMINATIONS.	Organizations.	Value of church property.	Communicants.
1. Roman Catholic	1,512	$65,034,350	3,007,176
2. Methodist Episcopal	1,389	33,687,813	340,946
3. Protestant Episcopal	877	50,589,154	255,536
4. Presbyterian (North)	745	39,096,049	235 317
5. Regular Baptist (North)	716	23,566,584	200,525

21. Reformed in America	104	6,058,600	28,678
22. German Evangelical Protestant	28	1,010,400	28,192
23. Presbyterian (South)	94	2,891,250	23,026

These 23 denominations embrace all having 20,000 or more communicants in the 124 cities. Of these denominations, 3 have more than three-quarters of their entire strength in the cities: the Jewish (Orthodox), 91.71 per cent; the Jewish (Reformed), 84.57 per cent, and the German Evangelical Protestant, 77.97 per cent. Nearly half of the communicants of 3 other bodies are in the cities: the Roman Catholics, 48.26 per cent; the Unitarians, 48.08 per cent, and the Protestant Episcopal 48.03 per cent. The representation of 7 other denominations ranges between 25 and 39 per cent. The following table exhibits the percentages above 25:

	PER CENT IN CITIES.
1. Jewish (Orthodox)	91.71
2. Jewish (Reformed)	84.57
3. German Evangelical Protestant	77.97
4. Roman Catholic	48.26
5. Unitarians	48.08

9. Presbyterian (North)	29.85
10. Lutheran Synodical Conference	29.77
11. Lutheran General Council	25.75
12. Congregational	25.57
13. Regular Baptist (North)	25.06

The percentages of the other 10 denominations named in the table of bodies having 20,000 and upward in the cities fall from 18.73 per cent down to 3.93 per cent. The Regular Baptist (South) and Methodist Episcopal, South, the former with 1,280,066, the latter with 1,209,976 communicants, report, respectively, 4.20 and 3.93 per cent in the cities. The Methodist Episcopal, with 2,240,354 communicants, has 340,946, or 15.22 per cent in the cities.

Three denominations only are represented in all of the 124 cities. These are the Roman Catholic, the Methodist Episcopal, and the Protestant Episcopal.

a The denominational headings vary somewhat in the three classes of cities. Two bodies of Dunkards are, for example, included in the table of the first class, but not in those of the second and third classes. In the latter they are embraced under the title "Various bodies". Some denominations are well represented in the larger cities, but have few organizations in the smaller cities, and vice versa. Table 2 shows what denominations are represented in the 124 cities and what denominations are not represented.

ADVENTISTS.

The movement out of which the various Adventist bodies have come began about the year 1831 with a series of lectures on the personal coming of Christ, delivered by William Miller. Mr. Miller, a native of Massachusetts, was converted and joined the Baptist church at Low Hampton, New York, in 1816. According to his own statement he had been a Deist. A diligent study of the Bible inclined him to the belief, in 1818, that the millennium was to begin not before but after the end of the world, and that the second advent of Christ was near at hand. Further examination of the Scriptures fully convinced him of the correctness of his theory, and in August, 1831, he began to lecture on the subject. His study of the Apocalypse and the Gospels satisfied him that the "only millennium" to be expected "is the thousand years which are to intervene between the first resurrection and that of the rest of the dead"; that the second coming of Christ is to be a personal coming; that the millennium "must necessarily follow the personal coming of Christ and the regeneration of the earth"; that the prophecies show that "only four universal monarchies are to precede the setting up of God's everlasting kingdom", of which three had passed away, the Babylonian, the Medo-Persian, and the Grecian, and the fourth, that of Rome, was in the last stage; that the periods spoken of in the Book of Daniel of 2,300 days, of the "seven times of Gentile supremacy", and of 1,335 days, were prophetic periods, and, applied chronologically, led to a termination in 1843, when Christ would personally descend to the earth and reign with the saints in a new earth a thousand years. In 1833 he published a pamphlet entitled "Evidences from Scripture and history of the second coming of Christ about the year 1843 and of his personal reign of 1,000 years".

He made many converts to his views both among ministers and laymen of the Baptist, Christian, Methodist, and other denominations, and the new doctrine was widely proclaimed. In 1840 a general gathering of friends of the cause was held in Boston, and an address was issued which stated that while those who participated in the conference were not in accord in fixing the year of the second advent, they were unanimously of the opinion that it was "specially nigh at hand". A number of papers, one of which was a daily, appeared, bearing such titles as "The Midnight Cry", "The Signs of the Times", "The Trumpet of Alarm", etc., and helped greatly to spread Mr. Miller's views. When the year in which the advent was fully expected had passed, Mr. Miller wrote a letter confessing his "error" and acknowledging his "disappointment", but expressing his belief that "the day of the Lord is near, even at the door". He also attended a conference of Adventists, held in Boston late in May, 1844, and made a similar statement, admitting that he had been in error in fixing a definite time. Subsequently he became convinced that the end would come on or about the 22d of October, 1844, and said if Christ did not then appear he should "feel twice the disappointment" that he had already felt.

Some of those who had joined the movement left it after the time for the end of the world had passed without a fulfillment of their expectations; but many still believed that the second advent was near at hand and urged men to live in a constant state of readiness for it. Various views were developed among the Adventists, after the second date had passed without result, respecting the resurrection, immortality, and the state of the dead, and these differences are represented by different organizations.

At a conference of the Adventists held in Albany, New York, April 29, 1845, a report was adopted holding to the visible, personal coming of Christ at an early but indefinite time, to the resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust, and to the beginning of the millennium after the resurrection of the saints, and denying that there is any promise of the world's conversion prior to that period, or that the saints enter upon their inheritance or receive their crowns at death.

Small companies of Adventists, at various times after the failures of 1843 and 1844, set new dates for the second advent, and gathered in expectation of the great event; but the "time brethren", as they are often called, have at no time since 1844 formed a large proportion of the Adventists.

Ministers are ordained to the office of elder by the laying on of hands upon the recommendation of the churches of which they have been members and after approval by a committee of elders, and baptism is administered by immersion. The Adventists are congregational in polity except the Seventh-day branch, which has a government of presbyterial character. Camp meetings form prominent and popular annual gatherings among the Adventists. On these occasions some of their societies hold business sessions.

The following is a complete list of the Adventist bodies:

1. Evangelical.
2. Advent Christians.
3. Seventh-day.
4. Church of God.
5. Life and Advent Union.
6. Churches of God in Christ Jesus.

The tables show that they are represented in all the states and territories except Alaska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Wyoming. They have 1,364 ministers, 1,757 organizations, 774 church edifices, and 60,491 communicants. Their church edifices furnish, approximately, accommodations for 190,748 persons and the value of church property is $1,236,345. They also occupy 957 halls, etc., which have an aggregate seating capacity of 71,370.

They are most numerous in Michigan, where the Seventh-day branch has its headquarters at Battle Creek. In that state they have 5,724 communicants; Iowa comes second, with 3,610; Massachusetts third, with 3,428; Kansas fourth, with 3,205, and Minnesota fifth, with 3,023.

EVANGELICAL ADVENTISTS.

Those who could not accept the views of the Advent Christians as to the mortality of the soul began in 1855 to hold separate meetings and to be known as Evangelical Adventists. They believe that the soul is immortal; that all the dead will be raised, the saints first and the wicked last; that the former will enter upon the millennial reign with Christ and after the judgment receive as their reward an eternity of bliss; that the wicked who will rise at the end of the millennial reign will be sent away into everlasting punishment. They also hold, contrary to the Advent Christians, that the dead do not sleep but are in a conscious state. In most other respects their doctrinal views do not differ from those of this other branch.

They have 2 annual conferences, besides 5 congregations unattached, and are found in Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Pennsylvania.

ADVENT CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

A difference of opinion on the question of the immortality of the soul led to a division in 1855. Those who held that man both body and soul is wholly mortal, and that eternal life is to be had only through personal faith in Christ as the gift of God, constituted the branch known as the Advent Christian Church. They hold to the proximate personal coming of Christ, and that after he comes the millennium will begin. They deny the inherent immortality of the soul, insisting that those only shall put on immortality at Christ's coming who are his true disciples; they believe that all the dead are in an unconscious state; that all shall rise therefrom, the just first, to receive the gift of immortality and to reign with Christ; the unjust last, to receive sentence of banishment and to be punished by annihilation.

The Advent Christians are congregational in church government. They have 20 conferences, with which about three-fifths of them are connected. The rest are in congregations which are not associated. The congregations are somewhat loosely organized, there being no set of rules or particular form of government provided for them.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISTS.

The Seventh-day Adventists form a branch of the advent movement of 1840–1844. They differ from other Adventists in observing the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath, in interpretation of the prophetic periods, and in form of organization. They believe that the prophetic period of 2,300 days referred to in the book of Daniel closed in 1844, but that the coming of Christ was not to be looked for then, but is to occur in the indefinite future. They hold that Christ in 1844, at the termination of the 2,300 days, entered as priest upon the work of cleansing the heavenly sanctuary or temple from "the presence of our sins". This period, which is to be brief, is to close with the second coming, the time of which can not be forecast. The observance of the seventh day began with a congregation of Adventists in New Hampshire in 1844. Their views respecting the cleansing of the sanctuary have helped to establish and confirm this observance. They believe that the second advent is to precede, not follow, the millennium; that the state of the dead is one of unconsciousness, and that immersion is the proper form of baptism. They practice the ceremony of feet washing when the Lord's Supper is administered.

Their congregations are organized into conferences, of which there are 26, besides 5 missions. There is also a general conference, which meets annually, composed of delegates from the various state or district conferences. Ordained ministers are not pastors, but traveling evangelists. The local churches are served by local officers, who need not be ordained ministers. Members are expected to contribute a tenth of their income to the church.

There are 995 organizations, with 418 church edifices, 28,991 communicants, and church property valued at $645,075. The headquarters of the Seventh-day Adventists are at Battle Creek, Mich., and about a sixth of their communicants are in that state. Their congregations, however, are found in nearly all the states and territories.

CHURCH OF GOD.

The Church of God is a branch of the Seventh-day Adventists. A division occurred in different states among the Seventh-day Adventists in the years 1864–1866. This division resulted in the organization of the Church of God. The chief cause of the division was, it is stated, the claim of the Seventh-day Adventists that Mrs. Ellen G. White was inspired and that her visions should be accepted as inspired. There are minor differences between the two bodies on the subject of health reform, abstaining from swine's flesh, tea, and coffee, and with relation to prophecy. In church government there is little variation.

The Church of God has 3 annual conferences; also a general conference representing the whole church. The number of members is 647.

LIFE AND ADVENT UNION.

The Life and Advent Union differs from the Evangelical and Advent Christian branches of Adventists concerning the resurrection of the wicked dead. Both the latter believe that the wicked dead will rise at the end of the millennial reign and be sentenced to everlasting punishment, which, according to the Evangelical Adventists, will be everlasting suffering, and, according to the Advent Christians, everlasting destruction, or annihilation. The Life and Advent Union branch holds that they will not rise at all; that when they die they die never to wake, but are doomed to sleep eternal. This belief had adherents as early as 1844. The branch, however, dates from 1864. It was organized in Wilbraham, Massachusetts. It has 28 organizations and 1,018 members, which are distributed in 4 of the New England and 5 other states.

CHURCHES OF GOD IN CHRIST JESUS.

The members of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus are popularly known as Age-to-come Adventists. Congregations of them have been in existence many years. A general organization was formed in Philadelphia in November, 1888. They believe that God is pledged, through the mouth of the prophets, to the final restitution of all things. They expect to see the kingdom of God established on earth, with Christ as King of Kings, the saints being associated with him in the government of the world. They believe that Israel will be reorganized as a nation in the Holy Land; that the dead will have a literal resurrection, the righteous to receive the blessings of immortality and the wicked to be destroyed; and that eternal life comes only through Christ. They hold that acceptance of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Christ for the remission of sins are conditions to forgiveness of sins, and that a holy life is essential to salvation.

They have organizations in 23 states. They are associated in district conferences, and there is also a general conference. Each congregation selects an elder or elders and a deacon. The officers are, a president, a secretary, and a treasurer. The elder serves as president and looks after the welfare of the members. Ministers receive certificates from the state conference and also from the general conference. Those of the latter hold for a year.

BAPTISTS.

There are numerous bodies of Christians who are called Baptists. While they differ on other points they all agree on these: that (1) the only proper subjects of Christian baptism are those who have been converted and profess personal faith in Christ, and that (2) the only Scriptural baptism is immersion. They, therefore, reject infant baptism as invalid, and sprinkling, or pouring, as unscriptural. There are certain denominations which accept these principles in whole or in part: the Disciples of Christ, the Christians, the Mennonites, and others, but they are not Baptists in name and are not counted as such in any strict classification. The Disciples of Christ accept the two principles above stated, but also hold that it is only through baptism that "divine assurance of remission of sins and acceptance with God" is received. The Christians generally believe in immersion for believers, but do not refuse to tolerate pouring or sprinkling, while the Mennonites baptize usually by pouring.

The Baptists appear in history as early as the first quarter of the sixteenth century. Beginning in Switzerland in 1523, they soon took root in Germany, Holland, and other countries on the continent, whence they found their way to England, driven thence by the persecution which their rejection of infant baptism occasioned. Persons who had been baptized in infancy, on professing conversion and applying for admission to Baptist churches, were baptized again. Hence the persecuted people were often called Anabaptists. The first Baptist churches in England were organized before the middle of the seventeenth century. The American Baptists did not spring historically from the English Baptists. They trace their origin to Roger Williams, a minister of the Church of England, who came over to Massachusetts, whence he was banished because he held views regarding the powers of civil magistrates in religious matters which brought him into conflict with the court of Massachusetts. He became the founder of the colony of Rhode Island, which by the charter secured by him in 1644 was declared free to all forms of religion. Five years previously Mr. Williams had become a convert to Baptist principles, and had been immersed by one of the members of his church, Ezekiel Holliman, whom he in turn immersed, with 10 others. Of these he organized a Baptist church in Providence. Of course there were Baptists among the immigrants who came across the sea in the seventeeth century and later, and Baptist churches became numerous in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Georgia, and other states before the close of the eighteenth century.

The Baptists are variously divided. The Regular Baptists, who constitute the great majority in this country, exist in 3 bodies, northern, southern, and colored. They are Calvinistic in doctrine. The Freewill Baptists, of which there are 2 bodies, the General Baptists, and others are Arminian in doctrine. The Primitive or Old School Baptists, of which there are 2 branches, are strongly Calvinistic. They also oppose Sunday schools, missionary societies, and other "human institutions".

Baptist churches are defined as "bodies of baptized believers, with pastors and deacons, covenanted together for religious worship and religious work". All Baptist denominations are congregational in polity with, perhaps, the exception of the Original Freewill Baptists. Each church manages its own affairs. There are associations and similar organizations, composed of ministers and representatives of the churches, but they have no ecclesiastical power. There are also state conventions, variously constituted of representatives of associations, of other organizations, and of churches. Associations and conventions are chiefly concerned with the general interests of the churches, such as missions, Sunday schools, and education. Men are ordained to the pastorate by councils consisting of ministers and representatives of neighboring churches. Councils also "recognize" new churches and advise churches, whenever requested so to do, in cases of difficulty. Deacons are officers of the church.

The following is a complete list of the various Baptist bodies:

2. Regular (South).
3. Regular (colored).

REGULAR BAPTISTS.

There are 3 bodies of Regular Baptists, the northern, southern, and colored. They are not separate by virtue of doctrinal or ecclesiastical differences; but each, nevertheless, has its own associations, state conventions, and general missionary and other organizations.

The question of slavery was the cause of the separation between the Baptists of the northern and the Baptists of the southern states. In 1844 the controversy, which had been going on for some time, entered upon the decisive stage. The Alabama state convention, representing the Baptists of that state, adopted in that year a series of resolutions demanding "from the proper authorities in all these bodies to whose funds we have contributed * * * the distinct, explicit avowal that slaveholders are eligible, and entitled equally with nonslaveholders, to all the privileges and immunities of their several unions, and especially to receive any agency or mission or other appointment which may run with the scope of their operations or duties". The Board of Foreign Missions, which had its headquarters in Boston and received contributions from the whole denomination, made answer to the demand of the Alabama convention, saying: "If any one should offer himself as a missionary, having slaves and insisting on retaining them as his property, we could not appoint him. One thing is certain, we can never be a party to any arrangement which would imply approbation of slavery." The board of the Home Mission Society made a similar declaration of policy, and division took place in 1845.

The Regular Baptists accept the Bible as the only rule of faith and practice. To its authority all appeals are made. There are, however, two general confessions of faith, which have weight among them as expressions of their belief. The older one, known as the Philadelphia Confession, first appeared in London in the seventeenth century; the other, called the New Hampshire Confession, was adopted by the New Hampshire state convention in 1833. The Philadelphia Confession follows closely the Westminster (Presbyterian) Confession of Faith, with such changes and additions as were required to set forth the Baptist views as to the proper subjects and mode of baptism, and related questions, and as to church government. The New Hampshire Confession was formulated to express the views of the Calvinistic Baptists in their controversy with the Freewill Baptists, who were of the Arminian type of theology. It is regarded as fairly representing the doctrinal opinions of northern Baptists, while the Philadelphia Confession is more acceptable, perhaps, to southern Baptists. It is the common practice of southern associations to print articles of faith in their annual minutes. In a few instances the whole New Hampshire Confession thus appears; in other cases it is shortened by the omission of 2 or more articles. The following articles taken from it express the views of all Regular Baptists:

> We believe that a visible church of Christ is a congregation of baptized believers, associated by covenant in the faith and fellowship of the Gospel; observing the ordinances of Christ; governed by his laws, and exercising the gifts, rights, and privileges invested in them by his Word; that its only scriptural officers are bishops or pastors, and deacons, whose qualifications, claims, and duties are defined in the Epistles to Timothy and Titus.
> We believe that Christian baptism is immersion in water of a believer, into the name of the Father, and Son, and Holy Ghost; to show forth, in a solemn and beautiful emblem, our faith in the crucified, buried, and risen Saviour, with its effect in our death to sin and resurrection to a new life; that it is prerequisite to the privileges of a church relation; and to the Lord's Supper, in which the members of the church, by the sacred use of bread and wine, are to commemorate together the dying love of Christ, preceded always by solemn self-examination.

The southern associations generally set forth brief articles of faith, varying somewhat in phraseology, but declaring the same doctrines. One of these compendiums consists of 12 articles. It appears more often than any other form in the minutes of the various associations, sometimes with 2 or more articles omitted, sometimes with a distinct article added. Articles 1 and 2 state the doctrine of the Trinity and accept the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as the word of God and only "rule of faith and practice"; article 3 declares that "God chose his people in Christ Jesus before the foundation of the world" and "predestinated them unto the adoption of children"; article 4, that man is a sinner and consequently in a lost condition; article 5, that he has no power of his own free will and ability to recover himself from his fallen state; article 6, that sinners are "justified in the sight of God only by the righteousness of Jesus Christ"; article 7, that the elect are "called, regenerated, and sanctified by the Holy Spirit through the Gospel"; article 8, that "nothing can separate true believers from the love of God", and that they shall be "kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation"; article 9, that baptism and the Lord's Supper are ordinances of Christ, and that believers are the only subjects of them and immersion is the only baptism; article 10, that the dead shall rise and there shall be a final judgment; article 11, that the "punishment of the wicked will be everlasting and the joys of the righteous eternal"; article 12, that no minister has the right to administer the ordinances unless he is called of God, has "come under the imposition of hands by a presbytery", and is "in fellowship with the church of which he is a member".

This summary fairly represents the various forms of confession in use. Some of the colored associations insert as an additional article the doctrine that "pedobaptism by immersion is not valid even when the administrator himself has been immersed". One colored association in Louisiana has an abstract of faith which declares that the "blessings of salvation are free to all"; that election by God is consistent with man's free agency, and that only such as are real believers persevere to the end. These are modified statements of the doctrines of election, free agency, and final perseverance as usually held by Baptist associations in the south. A few associations enjoin the washing of the saints' feet as a religious rite.

The Regular Baptists have grown very rapidly, particularly in the last half century. They were credited with only 77 churches in 1770. At that date their oldest association, that of Philadelphia, had been in existence 63 years. In 1784 the churches had increased sixfold and there were upward of 35,000 members. In the next decade the churches had doubled in number, and by 1812 they had nearly doubled again, there being in that year

2,164, with about 173,000 members. These figures had been more than doubled in 1832, when there were 5,320 churches with 385,000 members. Eight years later the churches had increased to 7,771 and the members to 571,000. The increase in the last half century has been from 7,771 church edifices to 32,555, and from 571,000 communicants to 3,429,080. This indicates a percentage of growth in church edifices of 319; in members of 501.

REGULAR BAPTISTS (NORTH).

The Baptist churches in the northern states, after the division of 1845, continued to support, on an antislavery basis, the Home Mission Society and the American Baptist Missionary Union, the latter taking the place of the Board of Foreign Missions. In 1879 the question of the organic union of northern and southern Baptists came up, but nothing was accomplished. The southern Baptist convention of that year, in appointing 5 delegates to the anniversaries of the northern Baptist societies, expressed its fraternal regard, but insisted on "the wisdom and policy of preserving our separate organizations". On the part of the northern Baptists a leading denominational journal said they were generally agreed that it would be "wholly unadvisable to try to bring about organic union between the Baptists of the north and south".

The northern Baptists have churches in all the states north of the Virginias, Kentucky, Missouri, and Texas, including the District of Columbia. Some churches on the border divide their contributions for the general benevolences between the northern and southern Baptist bodies, and one educational society represents both.

There is a considerable number of German churches among those returned as Regular Baptists, most of which are in the northern and western states. The earliest of these German churches were organized in Pennsylvania in 1840 and 1841. They are reported in the various associations within whose bounds they are situated; but they also have conferences of their own. There are 5 of these conferences, the Eastern, Central, Southwestern, Northwestern, and Texas, and they meet annually. There is also a general conference in which they are all represented. This conference meets once in 3 years. There are in all upward of 200 German churches, with about 17,000 members. There are also some 200 Swedish churches, with more than 12,000 members, a few Danish churches, and a number of Welsh churches.

There are 414 associations of northern Baptists, who are strongest in the states of New York, 129,711; Illinois, 95,237, and Pennsylvania, 83,122. In 3 other states they have upward of 50,000 communicants each; Massachusetts, 59,830; Ohio, 57,685, and Indiana, 54,080. There are in all 800,025 communicants belonging to 7,902 organizations, with 7,066 church edifices, and church property valued at $49,524,504.

a As associations do not always conform to state lines, footings of associations by states are not given in this table.

b There are 67 organizations not connected with these associations. They are reported as "unassociated" churches. The 414 associations comprise 7,835 organizations. Separate statistics for them are not given in the tabulation by counties.

REGULAR BAPTISTS (SOUTH).

This is the more numerous branch of white Baptists. After the division of 1845 the southern churches organized the Southern Baptist Convention, which meets annually to consider, promote, and direct the general interests of the denomination, such as home and foreign missions and Sunday schools. It is composed of delegates from associations and other organizations and from churches. It has no ecclesiastical authority whatever. It represents churches in 16 states, including Kansas (which has a few churches belonging to an association in Missouri), the District of Columbia, the Indian territory, and Oklahoma.

The oldest Baptist churches and associations are in the north. Of the 77 churches reported for 1770 only 7 were in the south. These were in Delaware, the Carolinas, and Virginia. In the next decade churches rose in Georgia, Tennessee, and Kentucky. There were none, however, in Missouri, Mississippi, and Louisiana until after the present century opened, and none in Arkansas until a considerably later date. The first association in the south was that of South Carolina, organized in 1751; those of Sandy Creek and Kehukee, in North Carolina, were organized in 1758 and 1765, respectively; the Ketocton, in Virginia, in 1766, and the Holston, in Tennessee, in 1786. Virginia was in 1784 the Baptist stronghold, having more than 42 per cent of all the members. It maintained the lead for nearly half a century, lost it, and regained it from New York in 1850, and held it until Georgia took it some 15 or 20 years later.

Kentucky, North Carolina, Georgia, Texas, Missouri, and Tennessee are the great Baptist states of the south. They contain nearly two-thirds of the total of members. Kentucky has 153,668; North Carolina, 153,648; Georgia, 137,860; Texas, 129,734; Missouri, 121,985, and Tennessee, 106,632, making a total of 803,527 in these 6 states. Alabama reports 98,185; Virginia, 92,693; Mississippi, 82,315, and South Carolina, 76,216. In all, the Regular Baptists (South) number 1,280,066. These members are divided among 16,238 organizations, which report 13,502 church edifices, with an approximate seating capacity of 4,349,407, and church property valued at $18,196,637. Besides the church edifices, 2,641 halls, etc., are used as places of worship. They seem to be very thoroughly distributed over the states they occupy. They have organizations in all the counties in the state of Alabama, 66. In the state of Arkansas they have organizations in 74 counties out of 75; in Florida, in 44 out of 45; in Georgia, in 135 out of 137; in Kentucky, in 111 out of 119; in Louisiana, in 38 out of 59; in Mississippi, in 74 out of 75; in Missouri, in 114 out of 115; in North Carolina, in 95 out of 96; in South Carolina, in 34 out of 35; in Tennessee, in 92 out of 96; in Texas, in 185 out of 244; in Virginia, in 96 out of 100.

There are 658 associations, the largest of which is the Dover, of Virginia, having 11,711 members. The associations are given alphabetically under each state, but are not footed by states, because many of them cross state lines. The correct totals by states are given in the table by counties.

a As associations do not always conform to state lines, footings of associations by states are not given in this table.

b There are 24 organizations not connected with these associations. They are reported as "unassociated" churches. The 658 associations comprise 16,214 organizations. Separate statistics for them are not given in the tabulation by counties.

REGULAR BAPTISTS (COLORED).

The colored Baptists of the south constitute the most numerous body of Regular Baptists. Not all colored Baptists are embraced in this division; only those who have separate churches, associations, and state conventions. There are many colored Baptists in northern states who are mostly counted as members of churches belonging to white associations. None of them are included in the following tables.

The first state convention of colored Baptists was organized in North Carolina in 1866, the second in Alabama, and the third in Virginia in 1867, the fourth in Arkansas in 1868, and the fifth in Kentucky in 1869. There are colored conventions in 15 states and the District of Columbia.

In addition to these organizations the colored Baptists of the United States have others more general in character: the American National Convention, the purpose of which is "to consider the moral, intellectual, and religious growth of the denomination", to deliberate upon questions of general concern, and to devise methods to bring the churches and members of the race closer together; the Consolidated American Missionary Convention, the General Association of the Western States and Territories, the Foreign Mission Convention of the United States, and the New England Missionary Convention. All except the first are missionary in their purpose.

The American National Convention, in its annual session in 1890, adopted a resolution recommending that the practice of receiving into membership persons immersed in Pedo-Baptist churches be discontinued, on the ground that Pedo-Baptist organizations are not churches, and therefore have no power to administer baptism. The exchange of pulpits with Pedo-Baptists was also condemned as "inconsistent and erroneous".

It was extremely difficult to obtain returns of a third or more of the colored Baptist associations in the south. No response was made in many instances to repeated requests to clerks or moderators for statistics. Some of their state missionaries, college professors, and others were induced to undertake the work of gathering the returns of such associations, and after more than a year and a half of earnest endeavor, all possible resources being exhausted in the effort, full reports were secured from all but about half a dozen associations. The totals only for these are given. Several colored correspondents say that radical changes in associations are frequent. A few discontented churches often withdraw and form a new association, which continues for a year or two and then is absorbed by another association. The boundaries of these bodies change frequently, and sometimes they are also quite irregular, embracing not contiguous territory, but counties or portions of counties widely separated.

The Regular Baptists (colored) are represented in 15 states, all in the south, or on the border, and the District of Columbia. In Virginia and Georgia they are very numerous, having in the latter 200,516 and in the former 199,871 communicants. In Alabama they have 142,437, in North Carolina 134,445, in Mississippi 136,647, in South Carolina 125,572, and in Texas 111,138 members. The aggregate is 1,348,989 members, who are embraced in 12,533 organizations, with 11,987 church edifices, and church property valued at $9,038,549. There are 414 associations, of which 66 are in Alabama, 63 in Georgia, 49 in Mississippi, and 39 in North Carolina.

SIX PRINCIPLE BAPTISTS.

This small body goes back to Roger Williams and the year 1639 for its origin. The church which Roger Williams organized in that year in Providence, Rhode Island, became, it is claimed, the first Six Principle Baptist Church.

Six Principle Baptists differ from the Regular Baptists chiefly in holding to the Arminian instead of the Calvinistic system of theology, and in the practice of laying-on-hands in the reception of members. This is a kind of confirmation service such as is observed in the Roman Catholic, Protestant Episcopal, and other churches. The Six Principle Baptists have no fellowship with churches which do not recognize the ceremony. They find authority for it in the sixth chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, whence they derive the six principles which give them their distinctive title. These principles are as follows: (1) repentance from dead works; (2) faith toward God; (3) the doctrine of baptism; (4) the laying-on-of-hands; (5) the resurrection of the dead; (6) eternal judgment. Under the head of the third principle they recognize four baptisms, namely: (1) John's "baptizing with the baptism of repentance"; (2) the baptism of the Holy Ghost with fire on the day of Pentecost; (3) the baptism of Christ's sufferings; (4) the baptism of believers in Christ in the name of the Trinity.

The Six Principle Baptists have never been numerous. They have 18 organizations and 937 members. They are confined to the states of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS.

The first church of this order in the United States was organized in Newport, R. I., in 1671, by Stephen Mumford, who had previously been a member of a Sabbatarian Baptist church in England. From the church in Newport other churches sprang up in Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New York, and in the year 1700 another center was established in Philadelphia. From these two centers the denomination spread gradually into the south and west. Until 1818 they were called Sabbatarian Baptists, a name which they had borne previously in England and on the continent of Europe.

In doctrine they do not differ from other Baptist churches except in their view of the Sabbath. They believe that the seventh day of the week is "the Sabbath of the Lord"; that it was so ordained in Eden; that it was made of perpetual force when the Ten Commandments were delivered at Sinai, and that in its nature and in its relations to man it is irrepealable. They hold that any attempt to connect Sabbath observance with any other day of the week is illogical and inconsistent and destructive of the whole Sabbatic institution. They insist that the change to the first day of the week has no warrant in the Scriptures of the New Testament. In polity the Seventh-day Baptists are congregational. They have an annual conference, but it has no ecclesiastical power; its function is simply that of an advisory council. It is composed of 2 delegates from each church with an additional delegate for every 25 members. There are also associations, with 106 organizations; 78 church edifices, church property valued at $265,260, and 9,143 communicants.

FREEWILL BAPTISTS.

The first church of this denomination was organized by Benjamin Randall in New Durham, N. H., in 1780. Randall was at first a Congregationalist. Changing his views on the subject of baptism he became a Baptist, but he did not adhere to the Calvinistic doctrines of predestination, election, limited atonement, and final perseverance of the saints, as generally held at that time in that denomination. He was therefore adjudged unsound, and fellowship was withdrawn from him by the Baptists. This was in 1779. In 1780 he was ordained by two Baptist ministers who sympathized with his doctrinal views, and in the same year the first Freewill Baptist church was organized, as already stated. This church and others of like faith which sprung up in New England were simply called Baptist churches. At the close of the century the distinctive word "Freewill" was adopted, members having been popularly designated "Freewillers", in allusion to the doctrine held concerning the freedom of the will. The churches multiplied. At the end of the first year there were 5, at the close of the first decade 18, and at the close of the first half century 450, with 21,000 members. The denomination was gradually extended beyond the bounds of New England into the west. Its strong antislavery sentiment prevented its advance into the south. In 1835 the general conference, speaking for the whole church, took a pronounced position against slavery. In 1841 the Free Communion Baptists of New York united with the Freewill Baptists, adding 55 churches and 2,500 members. The church lost several thousand members, however, by the Adventist movement and by local divisions. It had 60,000 in 1845, but in 1857 this number had been reduced to less than 49,000. Its numbers also declined during the war, many of its ministers and members going into the army. By 1870 it had recovered from all its losses, reporting 60,000 members, as returned in 1845. A fact deserving mention is that women began to labor as preachers among the churches as early as 1791. They are not debarred from ordination.

The principles of doctrine and practice held by the Freewill Baptists are embodied in a "Treatise" ordered by the general conference in 1832 and published in 1834 and since revised. The doctrinal chapters, 21 in number, declare (to give their more distinctive statements) that though man can not in his fallen state become the child of God by natural goodness and works of his own, redemption and regeneration are freely provided for him. The "call of the Gospel is coextensive with the atonement, to all men", so that salvation is "equally possible to all". The "truly regenerate" are "through infirmity and manifold temptations" in "danger of falling", and "ought therefore to watch and pray lest they make shipwreck of faith". Christian baptism is immersion, and participation in the Lord's Supper is the "privilege and duty of all who have spiritual union with Christ", and "no man has a right to forbid these tokens to the least of his disciples". The denomination has always advocated open communion, as expressed in the foregoing sentence, in opposition to close communion, which is the rule among the Regular Baptists. In the brief articles of faith provided for churches the "human will" is declared to be "free and self-determined, having power to yield to gracious influences and live, or resist them and perish"; and the doctrine of election is described not as an "unconditional decree" fixing the future state of man, but simply as God's determination "from the beginning to save all who should comply with the conditions of salvation".

The Freewill Baptists have quarterly and yearly conferences, and a general conference meeting once in 2 years. The quarterly conference consists of delegates representing a number of churches. It inquires into the condition of the churches and is empowered to advise, admonish, or withdraw fellowship from them. It may not, however, "deprive a church of its independent form of government, nor its right to discipline its members, nor labor with individual members of churches as such"; it may only deal with the churches as churches. The yearly meeting is composed of delegates elected by quarterly meetings. It occupies the same relation to quarterly meetings as quarterly meetings do to the churches. The general conference, which is charged with the care of the general interests of the denomination, is composed of delegates from the yearly meetings. It may discipline yearly meetings but not quarterly meetings or churches. It is expressly forbidden to reverse or change the decisions of any of the subordinate bodies. Those desiring to become ministers are licensed for a year by the quarterly meeting and ordained by a council of the meeting. Each church, besides its pastor, clerk, and treasurer, has a board of deacons, who assist at baptism and the Lord's Supper, which is observed monthly, have the care of the poor, and conduct religious meetings in the absence of the pastor.

The denomination has 52 yearly meetings, besides churches and quarterly meetings not connected, with 1,586 organizations, 1,225 church edifices, church property valued at $3,115,642, and 87,898 communicants. It is represented in 33 states and territories, chiefly northern and western. It is strongest in New England, where it originated. In Maine there are 16,294 members. This is the banner state of the denomination.

ORIGINAL FREEWILL BAPTISTS.

In the first half of the eighteenth century a number of General Baptist churches were organized in North Carolina. These, with some which had been formed in Virginia a little earlier, constituted an association in 1729. Thirty years later many of these General had become Calvinistic or Regular Baptist churches. Those who did not unite with the Calvinistic associations were popularly called "Freewillers", because they held to the doctrine of the freedom of the will. Accepting that term they became known eventually as Original Freewill Baptists, the word "Original" probably referring to their early history.

Their doctrines are set forth in a confession of faith consisting of 18 articles. It declares that Christ "freely gave himself a ransom for all, tasting death for every man"; that God wants all to come to repentance; that "all men, at one time or another, are found in such capacity as that through the grace of God they may be eternally saved"; that those "ordained to condemnation" are the ungodly, and because they will not repent and believe the gospel; that children dying in infancy are not subject to the second death; that God has not "decreed any person to everlasting death or everlasting life out of respect or mere choice", except in appointing the "godly unto life and the ungodly who die in sin unto death"; that only believers should be baptized, and the only baptism is immersion. They believe in washing the saints' feet, and in anointing the sick with oil.

The churches hold, for business purposes, quarterly conferences in which all members may participate; they have a clerk, a treasurer, deacons who prepare for the communion service and care for the poor, and ruling elders to settle controversies between brethren. Communion and feet washing are as a rule held quarterly. Members of churches are forbidden to frequent the "race track, the card table, shooting matches, or any other place of disorder". In church trials it is provided that "no person of color within the pale of the church shall give testimony against any person" except one "of color". Only male members shall occupy the offices of the church. Annual conferences, composed of all the elders (pastors), ministers (ordained), and preachers (licentiates) in good standing, and of delegates from the churches, have power to "silence" preachers, try, and disown or discontinue elders, receive new churches, and settle difficulties in churches.

There are 3 conferences, with organizations in the two Carolinas. The number of organizations is 167, with 125 church edifices, church property valued at $57,005, and 11,864 communicants.

GENERAL BAPTISTS.

The General Baptists are thus distinguished, because originally they differed from the Particular or Regular Baptists in holding that the atonement of Christ is general, not particular, that is, for the whole race and not simply for those effectually called. There were General Baptists in England early in the seventeenth century; indeed some of their historians claim that they appeared both in England and America before the Particular or Regular Baptists.

General Baptists in New England associated themselves in a yearly meeting at the beginning of the eighteenth century. Churches of the same faith and order were also organized in the first half of that century in Maryland, Virginia, and the Carolinas. Most of these early churches, it appears, subsequently became Regular or Calvinistic churches.

The first association of General Baptists in the west, where the denomination now has its entire strength, was the Liberty of Kentucky, organized in 1824. In 1830 it adopted the practice of open communion, and about 1845 changed one of its articles of belief, which had been formulated at its organization so as to embrace "infants and idiots" in the covenants of God's grace, and another so as to say that "he that shall endure to the end, the same shall be saved", instead of declaring that "the saints will finally persevere through grace to glory". These changes indicated the desire to eliminate such elements of Calvinism as had been introduced when the articles were adopted a few years before.

In 1870 the General Baptists formed a general association, in which all General Baptist associations are represented. The purpose of the general association was to bring "into more intimate and fraternal relation and effective co-operation various bodies of Liberal Baptists". The denomination has received accessions of Freewill churches; but some of its churches have in turn joined Freewill and other Baptist bodies. It has increased in membership quite rapidly. In 1870 it had 8,000 members, in 1880, 12,367, and in 1890, 21,362. It is represented in the states of Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas, and Nebraska.

The confession of faith adopted by the general association declares that the bible is the only rule of faith and practice; that there is one God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; that man is "fallen and depraved" and has no ability in himself to salvation; that he that endures to the end shall be saved; that rewards and punishment are eternal; that the only proper mode of baptism is immersion; that the only proper subjects of baptism are believers; that none, save infants and idiots, can partake of the benefits of the atonement, which was made for all, except by repentance and faith. They are in substantial agreement with the Freewill Baptists.

The General Baptists have 22 associations, 399 organizations, 209 church edifices, church property valued at $201,140, and 21,362 communicants.

SEPARATE BAPTISTS.

The Separate Baptists of the last century were those who favored the great Whitefield revival movement. They separated from those Baptists who, for various reasons, opposed the revival. They had considerable accessions from the Congregational churches and became numerous in New England, Virginia, and elsewhere. Most of these Separate Baptists formed a union with the Regular Baptists a century or more ago, but a few still maintain separate organizations. Two associations which retain the word "Separate" in their title are counted as Regular Baptists.

Separate Baptists are generally in doctrinal agreement with the Freewill Baptists, holding to a general atonement and rejecting the doctrine of election and reprobation.

There is 1 association with 24 organizations, 19 church edifices, church property valued at $9,200, and 1,599 communicants.

UNITED BAPTISTS.

There being, in Congregational and Baptist churches in New England, some opposition to the great revival movement of the eighteenth century led by George Whitefield, a separation occurred in many instances, and there were "separates" both among the Congregationalists and Baptists. The latter were called Separate Baptists, and those from whom they separated were called, by way of distinction, Regular Baptists, a name which they still retain. The Separate Baptists became quite numerous in New England (where many of those who separated from the Congregational churches united with them) and elsewhere. But in the last quarter of the eighteenth century and the beginning of the present Separate and Regular Baptists came together in Virginia, Kentucky, and elsewhere and called themselves United Baptists. The great body of these are now known as Regular or Missionary Baptists.

There are still a few United Baptists who retain the old title and an independent existence. These are tabulated herewith separately. A few associations in full fellowship with the Regular Baptists still use the word "United". The doctrinal basis on which the union of Separate and Regular Baptists was accomplished in Kentucky in 1801 was not distinctly Calvinistic. While it did declare the final perseverance of the saints it did not set forth election or reprobation, and it stipulated that the holding of the doctrine that "Christ tasted death for every man" (general atonement) should be "no bar to communion". The United Baptists, according to the articles of faith set forth by most of their associations, are now moderately Calvinistic. These articles declare that Christ "suffered and died to make atonement for sin", not indicating whether this atonement was general or particular; that though the gospel is to be preached to all nations and sinners are to be called upon to repent, such is their opposition to the gospel that they freely choose a state of sin; that God in his "mere good pleasure" elected or chose in Christ a great multitude among all nations; that through the influences of the Holy Spirit he "effectually calls them", and they "freely choose Christ for their saviour"; that those who are united to God by a living faith are forgiven and justified "solely on account of the merits of Christ"; that those who are justified and regenerated will persevere to the end; that baptism should be administered only to believers and by immersion; that the Lord's Supper should be "observed by those who have been regenerated, regularly baptized, and become members of a gospel church"; that feet washing ought to be practiced by all baptized believers.

There are 12 associations of United Baptists, 204 organizations, 179 church edifices, church property valued at $80,150, and 13,209 communicants.

BAPTIST CHURCH OF CHRIST.

This body holds a separate position among Baptists. Their oldest associations, the Elk River and Duck River, were organized in 1808 in Tennessee, where more than half of the communicants reported are to be found. Their articles of faith set forth a mild form of Calvinism, with a general atonement. They declare that Christ "tasted death for every man" and made it possible for God to have mercy upon all who come unto Him on gospel terms; that sinners are justified by faith; that the saints will persevere; that true believers are the only proper subjects of baptism; that immersion is the only proper baptism; and that baptism, the Lord's Supper, and feet washing are ordinances of the gospel to be continued until Christ's second coming. This body claims to be the oldest body of Baptists, and that there were no others in Tennessee until 1825, when the Two Seed churches came into existence as the result of what is known as the antinomian controversy.

There are 152 organizations, 135 church edifices, church property valued at $56,755, and 8,254 communicants. Of the latter, 5,065 are in Tennessee; the rest are divided between Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, and Texas.

a As associations do not always conform to state lines, footings of associations by states are not given in this table.
b There are 4 organizations not connected with these associations. They are reported as "unassociated" churches. The 10 associations comprise 148 organizations. Separate statistics for them are not given in the tabulation by counties.

PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS.

Those who are variously known as "Primitive", "Old School", "Regular", and "Antimission" Baptists are so called because of their opposition, begun more than 50 years ago, to the establishment of Sunday schools, mission, bible, and other societies, which they regard as modern human institutions unwarranted by the scriptures and unnecessary.

Opposition among Baptists to the missionary and other church societies was manifested some years before the division began. In 1835 the Chemung association, having churches in New York and Pennsylvania, adopted a resolution declaring that as a number of associations with which it had been in correspondence had "departed from the simplicity of the doctrine and practice of the gospel of Christ, uniting themselves with the world and what are falsely called benevolent societies founded upon a moneyed basis", and preaching a gospel "differing from the gospel of Christ", it would not continue in fellowship with them. It urged all Baptists who could not approve the new ideas to come out and be separate from those holding them. The Baltimore (Maryland) association made a similar declaration in 1836, and a gradual separation was the result. The Warwick association of New York issued a circular letter in 1840, which shows that a warm controversy was then in progress. This letter, which was written in behalf of the "new ideas", charged the primitive brethren with holding hyper-Calvinistic doctrines, and insisted that their predestinarianism was such as practically to deny any responsibility in man for his conduct or condition. It attributed to them statements to the effect that God carries on his work "without the least instrumentality whatever", and that "all the preaching from John the Baptist until now, if made to bear on one unregenerated sinner" could not "quicken his poor dead soul". The Primitive Baptists do not oppose the preaching of the gospel, but believe that God will convert the world in his own way and own good time without the aid of missionary societies.

Primitive Baptist associations generally print in their annual minutes articles of faith, a constitution, and rules of order. The articles of faith, while practically the same in doctrinal view, vary in length and phraseology. Some of them have 11 articles, some less, some more. They declare that by Adam's fall or transgression "all his posterity became sinners in the sight of God"; that the "corruption of human nature" is such that man can not, by his own free will and ability, "reinstate himself in the favor of God"; that "God elected or chose his people in Christ before the foundation of the world"; that sinners are justified "only by the righteousness of Christ imputed to them"; that the saints will finally persevere and "not one of them will ever be finally lost"; that "baptism, the Lord's Supper, and washing the saints' feet are ordinances of the gospel and should be continued until Christ's second coming"; that "the institutions of the day (church societies) are the works of man", that it is therefore "wrong to join them", and that no fellowship should be had with them. An article of the constitution declines "fellowship with any church or churches" which support any "missionary, bible, tract, or Sunday school union society, or advocates state conventions or theological schools", or "any other society", formed "under the pretense of circulating the gospel of Christ." The Primitive Baptists have no state conventions or theological seminaries. They acknowledge no other mode of baptism than immersion and insist that only believers are proper subjects of it, that it is a prerequisite to the Lord's Supper, and that no minister has a right to administer the ordinances unless he has been "called of God", "come under the imposition of hands by a presbytery", and is in "fellowship with the church of which he is a member".

The denomination is represented in 27 states and the District of Columbia. Its strongholds are Alabama, 14,903 members; North Carolina, 11,740; Georgia, 18,535; Virginia, 9,950; Tennessee, 12,987; Kentucky, 10,665, and Indiana, 7,078. It has little strength in any northern state except Indiana and Illinois. The total of members is 116,271. There are 3,107 organizations, which have 2,735 church edifices, with an approximate seating capacity of 868,073, and church property valued at $1,591,551.

According to the Baptist almanac of 1844 there were in that year 184 Primitive Baptist associations, with 1,622 churches, 900 ordained ministers, and 61,162 members. If these returns were correct they have gained since that date about 1,100 churches and 55,000 members. While their associations usually print annual minutes which give statistics of membership and number of churches, no general returns for the denomination are published. For many years its membership has been estimated at 45,000 by the statisticians of other churches. The census tables show that this estimate was wide of the mark, being less than half the actual membership. There are 272 associations, of which 22 are colored. Colored members are not numerous.

OLD TWO-SEED-IN-THE-SPIRIT PREDESTINARIAN BAPTISTS.

These are very conservative Baptists, who are not in fellowship with the Regular or Missionary, nor with the Primitive or any other body of Baptists. They are strongly Calvinistic, holding firmly to the doctrine of predestination, as their name indicates. The phrase "Two Seed" is understood to indicate their belief that there are two seeds—one of evil and one of good. This doctrine is generally accredited to Elder Daniel Parker, a native of Virginia, who was ordained in Tennessee in 1806, and labored in that state till 1817, in Illinois till 1836, and then in Texas, where he died. He published in 1826 a pamphlet, which set forth the Two Seed doctrine, and in 1829 another, entitled, "Second Dose of the Doctrine of Two Seeds". The following explanation of the doctrine has been given by a writer who had access to the pamphlets and other writings relating to it:

The essence of good is God; the essence of evil is the devil. Good angels are emanations from, or particles of, God; evil angels are particles of the devil. When God created Adam and Eve they were endowed with an emanation from himself, or particles of God were included in their constitution. They were wholly good. Satan, however, infused into them particles of his essence, by which they were corrupted. In the beginning God had appointed that Eve should bring forth only a certain number of offspring; the same provision applied to each of her daughters. But when the particles of evil essence had been infused by Satan, the conception of Eve and of her daughters was increased. They were now required to bear the original number, who were styled the seed of God, and an additional number who were called the seed of the serpent.

The seed of God constituted a part of the body of Christ. For them the atonement was absolute: they would all be saved. The seed of the serpent did not partake of the benefits of the atonement and would all be lost. All the manifestations of good or evil in men are but displays of the essence that has been infused into them. The christian warfare is a conflict between these essences.

Not all the associations accept the peculiar title given above. Some call themselves simply "Regular", others "Regular Predestinarian", and still others "Regular Two-Seed Predestinarian Primitive Baptists". Their articles of faith also vary in phraseology. One set is quite brief, having only 10 articles; another is more extended and embraces 12 articles. The latter declares that God was the creator of all things and governs all things in righteousness; that man was created holy, but by sin fell into a depraved state, from which he is utterly unable to extricate himself; that God's elect were chosen in Christ before the world began, and "appointed to faith and obedience in love", by the Spirit of God because of the "righteousness, life, death, resurrection and ascension" of Christ; that God's elect will in due time be effectually called and regenerated, the righteousness of God being imputed to them; that they will never finally fall away; that good works are the fruits of faith and grace in the heart and follow after regeneration; that ministers should receive "legal authority" through the imposition of the hands of a presbytery acting for a gospel church, and should be subject to the discipline of the church; that the "eternal work of the Holy Spirit" is manifested externally as well as internally in experimental religion and the call to the ministry, and the true church should distinguish itself from all "false sects" and have no fellowship with them; that the church is a spiritual kingdom which men in a state of nature can not see, and it should therefore receive as members only those who have hope in Christ and an experimental knowledge of salvation; that the ceremony of feet washing ought to be observed, and that the joys of the righteous and the punishment of the wicked will be endless.

Two-Seed Predestinarian Baptists differ from Primitive Baptists concerning the doctrine of predestination. The former hold that God predestined all his children to eternal life and the devil and all his spiritual children to the eternal kingdom of darkness; that he foreordained all events whatever, from the creation to the consummation of all things, not suffering, in his infinite wisdom and perfect knowledge, anything to occur to change his plans. The Primitive Baptists hold that while God predestined some to eternal life, his predestination did not extend absolutely to all things, for this doctrine would, they insist, blasphemously impute to the Almighty the existence of evil, and do away with sin and human accountability.

Many of the Two-Seed Baptists are strongly opposed to a paid ministry. They hold that the calling of the ministry is "to comfort Zion, feed the flock, and contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints". They are antinomians, and do not believe that the help of a minister is needed by the Saviour to reach and save sinners. He is a full and complete saviour and carries on the work of salvation without the help of men. "Modern institutions", such as the Sunday schools, theological seminaries, bible and missionary societies, are regarded with marked disfavor, as among the Primitive Baptists.

There are 50 associations, 473 organizations, 397 church edifices, church property valued at $172,230, and 12,851 communicants. Though the communicants are scattered over 24 states, they are most numerous in Texas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Arkansas.

a As associations do not always conform to state lines, footings of associations by states are not given in this table.

b There are 21 organizations not connected with these associations. They are reported as "unassociated" churches. The 50 associations comprise 452 organizations. Separate statistics for them are not given in the tabulation by counties.

UNITED ZION'S CHILDREN.

BRETHREN (RIVER).

Those who first constituted the body popularly known as River Brethren came to this country from Switzerland in 1750, and settled near the Susquehanna river in eastern Pennsylvania. They were, it is supposed, Mennonites. As the result of a revival movement, beginning in 1770, many of these people who had been formal in their worship became zealous believers and organized separate congregations. The first members were baptized, it is believed, in the Susquehanna river, and the denomination thus came to be known as River Brethren. Jacob Engle was their first minister.

In their belief they hold to trine immersion, the washing of feet, nonresistance, and nonconformity to the world. In many points in belief and practice they are like the Mennonites.

OLD ORDER OR YORKER BRETHREN.

This branch is generally called "Yorker" Brethren because when the (River) Brethren were divided in 1862 the churches in York county were not affected by the division. It is an extremely small body, holding to the original doctrines and practices of the River Brethren.

UNITED ZION'S CHILDREN.

This is a branch of the body known as River Brethren. It is the result of a division which occurred in Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, in 1853. It has the same confession of faith as the River Brethren, and differs from them only in unimportant particulars. In observing the ceremony of feet washing one person both washes and dries; among the River Brethren one person does the washing and another the drying. Services are held in the churches alternately every 6 weeks. Communion is celebrated once or twice a year.

The 25 organizations are all in Pennsylvania. They own that number of houses of worship, and have church property valued at $8,300. The number of members is 525.

BRETHREN (PLYMOUTH)—IV.

BRETHREN (PLYMOUTH).

This body of christians originated in several separate and spontaneous movements in 1827–1830. The first public meeting held by them was in Dublin, Ireland. A large company of them was gathered in Plymouth, England, whence they are popularly called "Plymouth" Brethren, a title they do not accept. They speak of themselves as believers, christians, saints, or brethren. Division soon came among them, and they now exist in England in several branches. From England they came to Canada and the United States.

The Brethren accept the scriptures as their only guide, acknowledging no creeds, rituals, or anything "which savors of reason or mere expediency". They do not allow that ordination is necessary to the ministry. They hold that gift is sufficient authorization for the exercise of the privilege of the priesthood of all believers, the Holy Spirit being the guide. Hence, they have no presiding officers in their public meetings. Woman's sphere is considered as private.

They accept the evangelical doctrines of the trinity, of the sinless humanity and absolute divinity of Christ, and of Christ's atonement by his sacrificial death, and hold that the Holy Spirit is present in the believer and in the church, and that believers are eternally secure. They look for the personal premillennial coming of Christ, and believe that the punishment of the wicked will be eternal.

Their view of the church is that it is one and indivisible. Christ is the head of it, the Holy Spirit the bond of union, and every believer a member. It was begun at Pentecost and will be completed at the second advent.

They regard the various denominations as based upon creeds, an ordained ministry and separate organizations, and do not therefore fellowship them. They meet every Sunday to "break bread", which is the term they use to designate the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Other meetings are held for bible study and prayer, and whenever occasion offers for the unconverted. They own no church edifices, but meet in halls and private houses.

The divisions in England are partly reproduced in the United States. The last division in this country, by which the third and fourth branches were created out of the third, was due to a question of belief. The following are the branches, the Roman numerals being introduced for the sake of distinction: 1. Brethren (Plymouth)—I. 2. Brethren (Plymouth)—II. 3. Brethren (Plymouth)—III. 4. Brethren (Plymouth)—IV.

BRETHREN (PLYMOUTH)—II.

Those constituting this branch are often called the "Open Brethren", because they are regarded as less strict in discipline than either of the other 3 branches. They also hold a somewhat different view of the ministry, a view approaching that common among the denominations which have regular pastors.

They have 88 organizations and 2,419 members, and are represented in 23 states, Illinois showing the largest number.

BRETHREN (PLYMOUTH)—III.

These are the strictest division of the Brethren. Their separation from the Brethren of the first and largest division some years ago was the result of a controversy on a point of doctrine and a matter of discipline. They claim that such divine power is vested in the church; that all the Brethren are under moral obligation to submit to a decision rendered by the church, even though the decision were regarded as unjust.

They have 86 organizations and 1,235 members in 28 states, the largest number being found in Illinois.

BRETHREN (PLYMOUTH)—IV.

This branch is due to a difference arising quite recently among those formerly constituting the third division. Some held that a second impartation of divine power must be received before a believer could be said to be in full possession of eternal life. This view gave rise to various complications respecting the person of Christ and the condition of the Old Testament saints. Those who refused to accept this teaching formed new assemblies or congregations, and constitute the fourth division.

They have 31 organizations, with 718 members. They are found in 15 states, nearly one-half being found in California, Ohio, and Massachusetts.

CATHOLICS.

As this term is commonly used it applies to the Church of Rome, to the Eastern or Orthodox churches, and to the Old and Reformed Catholic bodies, which have lately arisen. As the result of a controversy beginning in the ninth century the christian church was divided into the Roman and Greek churches. The Church of Rome, which is the more numerous division, is officially called the "Holy Catholic, Apostolic, and Roman Church", and claims to be the only church founded by Christ. It has a hierarchy, including a pope, who is supreme pontiff, a college of cardinals, and numerous archbishops and bishops. Its doctrine is expressed in the ecumenical creeds, the Apostles', the Nicene (with the Filioque), and the Athanasian, and in the decrees of 20 ecumenical councils, the latest of which was that of the Vatican, in 1870. The Greek Church, whose full title is "Holy Orthodox, Catholic, Apostolic, Oriental Church", includes the Church of Russia, the Church of Greece, the Armenians, and various other divisions. The Orthodox or Eastern Church holds to the decrees and canons of the first 7 ecumenical councils, accepting the Nicene creed without the Latin Filioque. This creed is its chief doctrinal expression. Its highest officials are patriarchs. It has, besides, metropolitans or archbishops and bishops. The Uniates are Greek christians, who have acknowledged the supremacy of the pope. The Old and Reformed Catholics are bodies originating in this country in withdrawals from the Roman Church.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The first christian congregations organized in the territory now constituting the United States were those of the Roman Catholic faith. The oldest was established in St. Augustine, Fla., shortly after that settlement was founded in 1565. But Catholic services were held on Florida soil long before this date. Missionaries accompanied the Spanish expeditions of discovery and settlement in the first half century after Columbus made his first voyage to America, and these raised the cross and conducted divine worship. John Juarez, who had been appointed by the pope bishop of Florida, landed with the expedition of Narvaez in 1528, but is supposed to have been slain or to have perished from hunger the same year. After St. Augustine was established many companies of missionaries went out into Florida, Alabama, Georgia, and Carolina to labor among the Indians.

The second oldest town, Santa Fe, was founded by Spaniards in 1582. Missionaries in connection with Coronado's exploring expedition preached among the Indians of New Mexico 40 years earlier, but they soon perished. After the founding of Santa Fe, missionary work was more successful and many tribes of Indians accepted the Catholic faith. Franciscans established missions in California in 1601 and French priests held worship on Neutral island, on the coast of Maine, in 1609, and 3 years later on Mount Desert island. Jesuit missions, begun on the Upper Kennebec in 1646, were more successful and permanent, many Indian converts being among their fruits. In 1665 Catholics sought to convert the Onondagas and other tribes in New York. Similar attempts among the Great Lakes were made as early as 1641.

The history of the Catholic Church among the English colonists began with the immigration of English and Irish Catholics to Maryland in 1634. They founded the town of St. Marys the first year. Ten years later, as the result of a conflict with Protestant colonists, their privileges of worship were curtailed, but restored in 1646. A toleration act was passed by the legislature of Maryland in 1649, but it was repealed in 1654. The Catholics received their rights again in 1660, to be restricted again in 1704, and these restrictions were not entirely removed until the period of the war of Independence. In Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, and New England, severe laws were enforced against Catholics for many years. In New York, which is now the stronghold of Catholicism, there were, it is said, no more than 7 Catholic families in 1696, and the few Catholics found on Manhattan island 80 years later had to go to Philadelphia to receive the sacraments.

In 1784, at the close of the Revolutionary war, the pope appointed the Rev. John Carroll prefect apostolic. Before this date the Catholics in this country had been under the jurisdiction of the vicar apostolic of London, England. Six years later Dr. Carroll was consecrated bishop in London, and Baltimore became the first Catholic diocese. The new bishop estimated the number of Catholics in the United States at that time at about 30,000, of whom 16,000 were in Maryland and 7,000 in Pennsylvania. The rest were scattered over a broad territory stretching into the west as far as Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois. The church was gradually extended to Kentucky (1787), South Carolina (1789), Ohio, and other parts of the country. It grew rapidly when immigration set in from Ireland and Europe. This has been the chief cause of the rapid increase of the church in the last half century. In 1807 there were about 80 churches and a Catholic population of 150,000. In 1820 this population had doubled; in 1830 it had doubled again. In the next decade it increased from 600,000 to 1,500,000; in 1850 it had become 3,500,000; in 1860, 4,500,000; and in 1876, 6,500,000. These figures were given by the late Prof. A. J. Schem, who was regarded as good authority in church statistics. An immense territory was covered until 1808 by the single diocese of Baltimore. In that year Baltimore became a metropolitical see, with 4 suffragan bishoprics: New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and Bardstown. The purchase of Louisiana in 1803 had added the diocese of New Orleans, which had been erected in that year. In 1846 Oregon city became a metropolitical see; in 1847 the same dignity was conferred on St. Louis, and in 1850 Cincinnati, New York, and New Orleans were erected into provinces. There are now 13 provinces, the metropolitan sees being those of Baltimore, Oregon, St. Louis, New Orleans, Cincinnati, New York, San Francisco, Santa Fe, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Boston,

Chicago, and St. Paul. Connected with these provinces are 66 dioceses, 5 vicariates apostolic, and 1 prefecture apostolic.

The doctrinal system of the Roman Catholic Church is embodied in the Apostles', Nicene, and Athanasian creeds, and the dogmatic decisions of the ecumenical councils from 325 to 1870. The doctrine of the church is that it consists of all who hold the true faith, receive the true sacraments, and acknowledge the rule of the pope of Rome as head of the church; while the bible, including the books commonly called apocryphal, is accepted as the word of God, the authority of ecclesiastical tradition is honored. The church is held to be infallible; the Virgin Mary, the saints, their pictures and relics are venerated; 7 sacraments: baptism, the eucharist, confirmation, penance, extreme unction, ordination, and matrimony are administered; justification is held to be by faith and works conjoined; transubstantiation and the adoration of the elements, baptismal salvation, priestly absolution, the sacrifice of the mass, prayers for the dead, the immaculate conception of the Virgin Mary, a temporary place between heaven and hell for departed spirits, are also features of Catholic belief. The worship of the church is conducted in the Latin language, according to an established ritual, the mass occupying the central place in the services.

The government of the church is hierarchical. At its head is the pope with a college of cardinals. Next in order are archbishops, who are set over provinces, bishops who preside over dioceses, and various other ecclesiastical dignitaries, besides the heads of orders, monasteries, etc. In the ministering priesthood there are two orders, those of priest and deacon. The governing authority of each diocese is its bishop, who receives his ecclesiastical power from the pope. The government of the church in the United States is conducted through the propaganda at Rome, the United States being regarded for this purpose as missionary territory.

In the specially difficult task of gathering the statistics of the churches, chapels, missions, and stations of the various dioceses and vicariates, the archbishops, bishops, and other ecclesiastical officers have given their cordial co-operation. At the earnest request of the special agent of the Census Office they nominated to him suitable persons to do the work at his appointment and under his instruction, urged those in charge of congregations to give the information required, and most of them inspected and approved the final returns before they were certified and reported to the Census Office for acceptance.

Precisely the same inquiries were asked as are asked of other denominations. As the Roman Catholic Church always gives in its published annual statistics the number of baptized members, or population instead of communicants, the census appointee in each diocese was requested to comply with the requirements of the census schedules and furnish the number of communicants in order that the statistics of all the denominations might be uniform. This was done in every case. According to information received from bishops, it is the custom of the church for baptized persons to make their first communion between the ages of 9 and 11 years. Baptized persons below the age of 9 years are not included therefore in the census returns. Some ecclesiastical authorities estimate that members of this class constitute about 15 per cent of the population of the church, which, of course, embraces both baptized members and communicants.

In order that proper significance may be given to the figures representing the seating capacity of churches chapels, etc., it will be necessary to take into consideration the fact that in populous places from 3 to 4, and sometimes as many as 6 or 7, services, or even more, are held in the same church on Sunday. In most Protestant churches there are 2 services only, and in some but 1 service. Separate services of the mass in Catholic churches are usually attended by different audiences. It may help to a better understanding of the matter to quote a few sentences from letters written by heads of dioceses.

Archbishop Elder, of Cincinnati, says:

> The most of our churches have at least 2, often 3, and as many as 6 masses every Sunday, and each is attended by a different body of worshipers.

Archbishop Janssens, of New Orleans, speaks of from "2, 3, to 6 masses", and refers to the fact that many persons stand during service. In the archdiocese of Baltimore, according to the secretary of Cardinal Gibbons, there are usually 4 different congregations on Sunday in a single edifice. In the archdiocese of Boston there are 5 services in the cathedral, which has a communicant membership of 12,000, and reports 2,600 seating capacity. Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, says the "same space is used over and over again by different worshipers at different hours". An examination of the returns for that see shows that of 77 churches in the city of New York 1 has 1 service of the mass, 6 have 2 services, 4 have 3, 12 have 4, 17 have 5, 22 have 6, 10 have 7, 3 have 8, 1 has 9, and 1 has 10 every Sunday. Of an equal number of churches in the rural part of the archdiocese 26 have 1 mass, 24 have 2 masses, 11 have 3, 4 have 6, and 1 has 5 every Sunday; 4 have mass twice a month, and 5 have it once a month. Bishop McGovern, of Harrisburg, says:

> It is true there are many services in our churches, but each service is not always attended by persons who were not at another service. Some persons attend all the services. Then, again, in some of the churches many stand up for want of seats.

Bishop Phelan, of Pittsburg, writes:

> We have in this diocese about 140 churches. In some there is 1, in many 2, in some 3, and in a couple even 4 morning services (masses) every Sunday. The afternoon or evening services should not count, as these worshipers are, or ought to be, the same who were present in the forenoon.

The use made of the accommodations for worshipers is also indicated by the number of communicants belonging to a parish. In many cases from 8,000 to 15,000 communicants are reported for a single parish. In 1 diocese there is a parish consisting entirely of Poles, which has 17,490 communicants, who are accommodated in a single church with a seating capacity of 1,900. Here the proportion of communicants to seating capacity is almost as 9 to 1. But this is an extreme case. The following table will show the average in the several archidoceses. The seating capacity is for church edifices only, exclusive of halls and schoolhouses, and the communicants are those belonging to parishes having church edifices.

ARCHDIOCESES.	Seating capacity of church edifices.	Communicants or members.
Baltimore	69,995	174,558
Boston	142,209	407,536
Chicago	115,065	324,632
Cincinnati	68,200	129,780

Oregon	11,462	26,145
Philadelphia	107,667	251,162
St. Louis	102,025	121,621
St. Paul	91,180	193,039
San Francisco	49,805	112,180
Santa Fe	89,370	81,315

It will be observed that the proportion of communicants to seating capacity varies in the different archdioceses. In Baltimore, Boston, and Chicago it is less than 3 to 1; in New York, more than 3 to 1; in New Orleans, nearly 4 to 1; in Oregon, Philadelphia, St. Paul, and San Francisco, upward of 2 to 1; in Cincinnati and Milwaukee, less than 2, while in Santa Fe it is less than 1. The average in the 13 metropolitan sees is about 2.25 to 1.

The total number of communicants is 6,231,417, who are attached to 10,231 organizations (churches, chapels, and stations), making an average of 609 communicants to each congregation. Of the 10,231 organizations, 1,469, or about 14.36 per cent, worship in halls, schoolhouses, or private houses, which, exclusive of private houses, represent a seating capacity of 69,159, while the 8,776 church edifices owned by the church have a seating capacity of 3,365,754, making a total of 3,434,913 for the whole church, which is somewhat more than half the number of communicants. Some of the parishes which have no church edifices, but use temporarily such accommodations as private houses can afford, are very large. One of these parishes reports no fewer than 14,000 communicants. In 8 of the 85 sees, including the archdioceses of New Orleans and Philadelphia, every organization has its own church edifice.

The total value of church property, including church edifices, the ground on which they stand, furniture, bells, etc., is $118,069,746. The metropolitan see of New York, with its 472,806 communicants, has church property valued at nearly $9,000,000; that of Chicago comes second, with property worth $6,457,064, and that of Boston third, with a total of $6,379,078. Brooklyn comes fourth, with a valuation of $5,751,907, and Newark fifth, with $4,297,482. These 5 sees have more than one-fourth of the entire valuation.

In the distribution of communicants, the archdiocese of New York comes first, with 472,806; Boston second, with 419,660; Chicago third, with 326,640; Philadelphia fourth, with 251,162; Brooklyn fifth, with 228,785; St. Paul sixth, with 203,484, and Baltimore seventh, with 176,578. There are 22 sees which contain upward of 100,000 communicants each.

In the tabulation by states the following facts appear: there are 959 organizations, with 1,153,130 communicants, in the state of New York (7 dioceses), and the value of church property is $25,769,478; in the state of Massachusetts (2 dioceses) there are 614,627 communicants, belonging to 381 organizations, with church property valued at $9,816,003; in the state of Pennsylvania (5 dioceses), 551,577 communicants, 654 organizations, and $10,068,770 of church property; in the state of Illinois (4 dioceses), 473,324 communicants, 688 organizations, and church property valued at $9,946,819; in the state of Ohio (3 dioceses), 336,114 communicants, 586 organizations, and $7,395,640 of church property. In these 5 states there are 3,128,772 communicants, or a little more than one-half of the total for the whole church, and there is church property of the value of $62,996,710, which is considerably more than half of the total valuation.

The church is represented in every state and territory in the country, including Alaska and the District of Columbia. It has organizations in every county but 1 in the 6 New England states; also in every county in New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, and other states and territories. The distribution of the church among the 5 groups of states is as follows:

Embracing immigrants from nearly all the countries of Europe, the Roman Catholic is a polyglot church. Confessions are heard, among other languages, in German, Polish, Lithuanian, Hungarian, Bohemian, French, Spanish, and Italian. In the diocese of Scranton there are 7 Polish, 7 German, 4 Hungarian, 1 Lithuanian, 1 Polish and Lithuanian, and Italian, besides English congregations.

GREEK CATHOLIC CHURCH (UNIATES).

The Greek Catholic Church, commonly called Uniates, represents a body quite numerous in Austria, Hungary, and other eastern countries in Europe. They are in communion with the Church of Rome, holding, contrary to the other Greek churches of the east, to the procession of the Holy Spirit from the Son as well as from the Father, in accordance with the belief of the Latin Church, but maintaining otherwise their ancient discipline, allowing the lower clergy to marry, administering the communion in both kinds (bread and wine) to the laity, and using the Greek language in its ritual. The congregations, whose statistics are given herewith, are not ecclesiastically connected with any of the dioceses of the Roman Catholic Church, and are not therefore included in the preceding tables.

RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH.

The full title of this body is the "Holy Orthodox, Catholic, Apostolic, Oriental Church". It arose in the middle ages from the Filioque controversy, there being a difference of doctrine between the eastern and western christians of Europe concerning the procession of the Holy Spirit. The western church maintains that the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son; the eastern that the procession is from the Father alone. The chief governing body of the Russian branch of the Greek church is the holy synod at St. Petersburg. The churches of this faith in California and Alaska are under the ecclesiastical oversight of Bishop Vladimir, of San Francisco, and many of them are supported financially by the imperial government of Russia.

This is the national church of the kingdom of Greece. It is the same in faith as the Orthodox Church of Russia. It has one chapel in this country, in connection with the consulate of Greece in New Orleans. This chapel is under the care of Archimandrite Misael.

ARMENIAN CHURCH.

The Armenian Church of Turkey is separate from both the Latin and Greek Catholic churches. As many Armenians have come to this country, congregations of them have been gathered during the past 10 years in New York, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island. They have no churches of their own, but meet for worship in chapels owned by the Protestant Episcopal Church. Their services are held in the Armenian language.

OLD CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The Old Catholic churches in this country are part of the Old Catholic movement in Europe, with which they are in sympathy in doctrine and polity. They have a bishop elect, not yet consecrated, who received orders in Switzerland as deacon and priest in 1885 at the hands of the Old Catholic bishop of Berne, in that city. They hold that the pope is a bishop simply, but is entitled to the primacy of honor. They agree with the Greek Church in rejecting Filioque in the creed, acknowledge 7 sacraments, revere the monastic life, and venerate saints, angels, and sacred icons.

REFORMED CATHOLIC CHURCH.

This movement began some 10 or 12 years ago in New York city. It renounces allegiance to the pope, and differs in doctrine, polity, and usage from the Roman Catholic Church. It has congregations in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Illinois.

CATHOLIC APOSTOLIC CHURCH.

CATHOLIC APOSTOLIC CHURCH.

In 1830 and 1831 several Presbyterians in Scotland and London prayed for a restoration of the "gifts of the Spirit". Members of the Episcopal Church were at the same time looking for such manifestations. In response, gifts of "tongues and prophesyings" came, it is said, upon a number of people, some of whom were connected with a Presbyterian church in London, of which the Rev. Edward Irving was pastor. Mr. Irving was identified with the movement, and has often been spoken of as the founder of the Catholic Apostolic Church. But its representatives, while cordially recognizing his services, do not so regard him. The spiritual manifestations were "accompanied by many works of divine power, such as the healing of the sick"; and in 1832, after the "reality of the prophetic gift had been fully established by the experience of almost 3 years", the office of apostle was revived, a layman of the Church of England being the first person designated by the Holy Ghost to fill it. Others were designated from time to time until the number was completed and there were 12. Several congregations were organized, and in time the movement extended to other countries.

The first church in the United States was constituted in Potsdam, N. Y., and the second in New York city in 1851.

The Catholic Apostolic Church accepts the 3 ecumenical creeds: the Apostles', Nicene, and Athanasian; holds to the plenary inspiration of the Scriptures and also to the traditions of the church as sources whence the doctrine of Christ is to be derived. It regards baptism as an ordinance for the conveyance of the new or resurrection life, and the Lord's Supper as a sacrament for the nourishing and strengthening of that life. It believes that the gift of the spirit is conveyed by the laying on of apostles' hands. The doctrine of predestination is accepted, although it is denied that God's mercies are limited to the elect.

In its system of worship the Eucharist has the central place. It is celebrated every Sunday. There is also a daily service, morning and evening. A full ritual is used in public worship.

Apostles, prophets, evangelists, and angels, or chief pastors, are recognized as constituting a fourfold ministry. Angels are pastors of local churches, in which there are also elders, deacons, and deaconesses. Each church is regarded as complete in itself.

The Catholic Apostolic Church has 10 organizations, 1,394 members, 3 church edifices, and church property valued at $66,050.

GREEK CATHOLIC CHURCH (UNIATES).

The Greek Catholic Church, commonly called Uniates, represents a body quite numerous in Austria, Hungary, and other eastern countries in Europe. They are in communion with the Church of Rome, holding, contrary to the other Greek churches of the east, to the procession of the Holy Spirit from the Son as well as from the Father, in accordance with the belief of the Latin Church, but maintaining otherwise their ancient discipline, allowing the lower clergy to marry, administering the communion in both kinds (bread and wine) to the laity, and using the Greek language in its ritual. The congregations, whose statistics are given herewith, are not ecclesiastically connected with any of the dioceses of the Roman Catholic Church, and are not therefore included in the preceding tables.

RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH.

The full title of this body is the "Holy Orthodox, Catholic, Apostolic, Oriental Church". It arose in the middle ages from the Filioque controversy, there being a difference of doctrine between the eastern and western christians of Europe concerning the procession of the Holy Spirit. The western church maintains that the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son; the eastern that the procession is from the Father alone. The chief governing body of the Russian branch of the Greek church is the holy synod at St. Petersburg. The churches of this faith in California and Alaska are under the ecclesiastical oversight of Bishop Vladimir, of San Francisco, and many of them are supported financially by the imperial government of Russia.

CHRISTADELPHIANS.

CHRISTADELPHIANS.

John Thomas, M. D., an Englishman, came to this country in 1844 and identified himself with the Disciples of Christ. Soon after his views changed and he became convinced by a study of the bible that the cardinal doctrines of the existing churches correspond with those of the apostate church predicted in scripture. He began to publish his views, and organized a number of societies in this country, Canada, and Great Britain. No name was adopted for these societies until the civil war broke out. The members applied to the government to be relieved from military duty in consequence of conscientious scruples, and finding it necessary to have a distinctive name, that of Christadelphians, or Brothers of Christ, was adopted.

The Christadelphians do not accept the doctrine of the trinity. They hold that Christ was son of God and son of man, manifesting divine power, wisdom, and goodness in working out man's salvation, and attaining unto power and glory by his resurrection. He is the only medium of salvation. The Holy Spirit is an effluence of divine power. They believe in the natural mortality of the soul and that eternal life is only given by God to the righteous; that the devil is the evil principle of human nature; that Christ will shortly come personally to the earth and set up the kingdom of God in place of human governments; that this kingdom will be established in Canaan, where the 12 tribes of Israel will be gathered; that at the end of a thousand years judgment will be pronounced upon all, the just receiving eternal life, the unjust eternal death.

The Christadelphians practice immersion. They have no ordained ministers. Those who speak and conduct services are called "lecturing" or "serving" brethren. Their meetings are, with few exceptions, held in public halls, private houses, and schoolhouses. They have in all 63 organizations, with 1,277 members, who are scattered over 20 states.

CHRISTIANS (CHRISTIAN CONNECTION).

This body, which is commonly known simply as the Christian Connection, but owns only the simple designation "The Christians", had its beginning in the early part of the present century in the union of 3 distinct movements: one, in which Rev. James O'Kelley, of Virginia, a Methodist, was prominent; another, in which Abner Jones, M. D., of Vermont, a Baptist, was first, and a third, in which Barton W. Stone and other Presbyterian ministers in Kentucky and Ohio co-operated. These three movements, each independent and unknown to the leaders of the others until 1806, were alike in taking the bible as the only rule of faith and in rejecting Calvinism. Mr. Stone and many ministers and congregations subsequently united with the Disciples of Christ, with which this denomination is often confounded. They are much alike in many respects; they have no creeds, taking the bible simply as their rule of faith and practice; they emphasize the importance of the union of all believers in Christ; they believe that immersion is the only true form of baptism (a few ministers among the Christians also believe that sprinkling is baptism), and that believers only are its proper subjects, rejecting infant baptism.

The Christians make difference of theological views no bar to membership. Holding to the inspiration and divine authority of the bible, they allow every one to interpret it for himself. They believe in the divinity of Christ and in his pre-existence, and that he made atonement for the sins of all men. They admit to the communion table believers of other denominations, and also receive into membership persons who do not believe in immersion.

In church government the body is congregational. It has, however, annual conferences, composed of ministers and lay delegates from the churches. These conferences receive and ordain pastors, but they can pass no regulations binding on the churches. There is a general convention which meets once in every 4 years, called the American Christian Convention, which cares for the missionary, educational, and other general interests of the church.

At the general convention held in Cincinnati in 1854, in consequence of the adoption of resolutions declaring against slavery, representatives of the southern churches withdrew. The two bodies have agreed upon a form of union by which each retains its general conference.

There are 75 annual conferences, covering in whole or in part 24 states. The strongholds of the denomination are in Ohio, where it has nearly 26,000 members, and Indiana, where it has somewhat less than 20,000. In all there are 90,718 members, 1,281 organizations, 963 church edifices, and church property valued at $1,637,202.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH (SOUTH).

In consequence of the adoption by the general convention of Christians, held at Cincinnati, in 1854, of resolutions opposed to slavery, and denouncing it as an evil, the churches of the south withdrew and formed a separate organization. The Christian Church (South) is in general agreement in doctrine and practice with the northern churches, and it is claimed by some that the two bodies are now practically one.

The southern church is strongest in North Carolina and Virginia. It has 5 annual conferences, with 143 organizations, 135 church edifices, church property valued at $138,000, and 13,004 communicants.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION.

This association represents, in christian work in Kentucky, a number of churches without name, without creed, and without any ecclesiastical system. Each church is entirely independent. The churches claim to be unsectarian. The first was organized in Berea by Mr. John G. Fee. The doctrines preached are those common to evangelical christianity. Immersion is held to be the proper form of baptism, but is not insisted upon. 10 ministers are reported.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS.

Christian Scientists are those who believe that all ills of body and all evils of whatever nature are subject to the healing power of mind or spirit.

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, of Boston, Mass., claims to have discovered in 1866 and introduced in 1867 the "first purely metaphysical system of healing since the apostolic days". She began in that year to impart information as to the principles of the system. Out of this beginning was developed the Massachusetts Metaphysical College, which was chartered in 1881. Mrs. Eddy, with 6 of her students, constituted the first Christian Scientist Association in 1876. Three years later a Christian Scientist church was organized in Boston, with 26 members. Mrs. Eddy was called to be its pastor the same year, and accepted the position. In 1881 she was ordained. Other churches and associations sprang up in different parts of the country, and in 1886 a National Christian Scientist Association was formed, the first meeting being held in New York city. There are regular organizations in 30 states, the District of Columbia, Oklahoma, and Utah, and Sunday services are held in numerous places where churches have not been organized. There are also 30 or more Christian Science dispensaries. The organ of the denomination, The Christian Science Journal (monthly), publishes many columns of cards of practitioners of the science of mind healing.

The principles of christian science have been set forth authoritatively by Mrs. Eddy. According to her statements all consciousness is mind, and mind is God. There is but one mind and that is the divine mind. This is infinite good, which supplies all mind by reflection instead of subdivision. God is reflected, not divided. Soul is spirit, and spirit is God. There is but one soul and that is God. The flesh is evil, not the soul. Soul is "substance in truth"; matter is "substance in error". Soul, spirit, or mind is not evil; nor is it mortal. Life is eternal. It implies God. Whatever errs is mortal and is a departure from God. Evil is simply the absence of good. Evil is unreal; good only is real. The divine mind is one and indivisible, and therefore never out of harmony. Man is immortal, being coeternal with God. The divine power is able to bring all into harmony with itself. Hence, christian science says to all manner of disease: "'Know that God is all power and all presence, and there is nothing beside Him'; and the sick are healed". "Sickness is a belief, a latent fear, made manifest in the body in different forms of fear, or disease. This fear is formed unconsciously in the silent thought". It is to be dissipated by actual consciousness of the "truth of science" that man's harmony is no more to be invaded than the rhythm of the universe. Suffering exists only in the "mortal mind"; "matter has no sensation and can not suffer". "If you rule out every sense of disease and suffering from mortal mind, it can not be found in the body". All drugs are to be avoided. The only means of cure proposed by christian science is spiritual. Sin, like sickness and death, is unreal. In order to cure it the sinner's belief in its reality must be overthrown.

INDEPENDENT CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN CHRISTIAN UNION.

INDEPENDENT CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN CHRISTIAN UNION.

This denomination had its beginning in the years 1862–1864. Those who led the movement out of which it was formed objected to "political preaching" and to the adoption of resolutions by church bodies favoring the war. They also stood for the idea of christian union. The principles of the denomination are as follows: (1) the oneness of the church of Christ; (2) Christ the only head; (3) the bible our only rule of faith and practice; (4) good fruits the only condition of membership; (5) christian union without controversy; (6) each local church governs itself; (7) partisan preaching discountenanced.

The church claims to be nonpartisan, nonsectarian, and nondenominational, and aims to avoid divisions by eliminating ordinary questions of doctrinal and ecclesiastical controversy. It has 18,214 communicants, who are divided among 17 states and 1 territory. There are 294 organizations, 184 church edifices, and church property valued at $234,450.

CHURCH OF GOD.

CHURCH OF GOD.

The organization of the Church of God is ascribed to Elder John Winebrenner, a young minister of the German Reformed Church. Mr. Winebrenner, while engaged in revival work in his pastoral charge in Harrisburg, Pa., and vicinity, underwent a change of views as to doctrine and polity and became separated from the church. In the course of a few years, his followers having become quite numerous, a distinct organization was effected in October, 1830. The conference thus organized was called an "eldership", which is a new term in ecclesiastical nomenclature, signifying a body of elders or ministers. The oldest eldership is that of east Pennslyvania. A second eldership, that of Ohio, was formed in 1836; a third, that of west Pennsylvania, in 1844, and as the movement spread other elderships came into existence, there being in all 16 of them at present.

The distinctive principles of the Church of God are: (1) the division of believers into sects is contrary to the teachings of the New Testament; (2) the believers should be known not by human names, but by the scriptural term "Church of God"; (3) creeds are divisive and unnecessary, the bible, without note or comment, being a sufficient rule of faith and practice; (4) three ordinances are binding upon all believers: immersion, washing the feet of the saints, and commemorating the sufferings and death of Christ in communion of bread and wine.

In polity and usage the Church of God is methodistic. Its annual elderships correspond in a measure to Methodist annual conferences, and it has itinerant and local ministers, exhorters, and circuits. Its itinerant ministers are appointed to charges by stationing committees of the various annual elderships. The chief legislative and judicial body is the general eldership, which meets once every 3 years. The presiding officer of the general eldership and of the annual elderships is termed the "speaker".

The Church of God is represented in 14 states and the Indian territory. Its chief strength, however, lies in the state of Pennsylvania, where it originated. More than one-half of the total of communicants is to be found in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana. There are 479 organizations in all, with 338 church edifices, and church property valued at $643,185.

CHURCH TRIUMPHANT (SCHWEINFURTH).

CHURCH TRIUMPHANT (SCHWEINFURTH).

The founder and head of this church is George Jacob Schweinfurth, who was born in Marion county, Ohio, in 1853. He entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Michigan, but soon left it and became a disciple of Mrs. Beekman, who, before her death, which occurred in 1883, declared herself the "spiritual mother of Christ in the second coming", and pronounced Schweinfurth the "Messiah of the New Dispensation". He accordingly became the acknowledged head of her followers, and removed the headquarters of the sect from Byron, 9 miles from Rockford, Ill., to the Weldon farm, 6 miles from Rockford, changing the name of the body to The Church Triumphant. A large frame house, called "Mount Zion" or "Heaven", is occupied by Schweinfurth and a number of his disciples. There are also other companies, each of which is presided over by an "apostle" who reads weekly the sermons previously delivered by Schweinfurth at Mount Zion. There are no rites, ceremonies, or forms of worship. The single condition of membership is recognition of Schweinfurth as the "Christ of the Second Coming", and discipleship.

The Church Triumphant accepts the bible as the word of God, but denies the essential divinity of Christ. He was a mere man, but passed through an experience in which he was freed from the power and curse of sin, after which he received the Spirit of God and became divine. Schweinfurth does not claim to be Jesus of Nazareth, but to have received the same spirit and to be equal to him. He claims to be sinless, to perform miracles, and to be able to bestow the spirit on whomsoever he chooses. He also declares his power over sin, not only to save from its curse but to save from its commission.

There are in all 12 organizations and 384 members. All the services are held in private houses with one exception.

CHURCH OF THE NEW JERUSALEM (SWEDENBORGIAN).

CHURCH OF THE NEW JERUSALEM (SWEDENBORGIAN).

The theological writings of Emmanuel Swedenborg, born in Stockholm, Sweden, in 1688, died in London, England, in 1772, led to the organization of the New Jerusalem Church. Its members are often spoken of as Swedenborgians. He was called, according to his own words, "to a holy office by the Lord himself, who most mercifully appeared before me, his servant, in the year 1743, when he opened my sight into the spiritual world, and enabled me to converse with spirits and angels". From that time he began to "publish the various arcana" or sacred truths, seen by or revealed to him, "concerning heaven and hell, the state of man after death, the true worship of God, the spiritual sense of the Word, and many other important matters conducive to salvation and wisdom". His voluminous religious works contain the body of doctrine to which his followers adhere. The greater portion of them consist of the exposition of the spiritual meaning of the scriptures.

The first meeting for organization was held in London in 1783, 11 years after his death. The next year his teachings were set forth in Boston and Philadelphia, and a congregation was established in Baltimore in 1792. This was the beginning of the church in this country. It was gradually established in other cities and towns, and is represented now in 29 states, besides the District of Columbia. It has 154 organizations and 7,095 members or communicants, about a fourth of whom are to be found in Massachusetts.

The doctrines of the New Jerusalem Church declared that God is one in essence, person, and nature, manifesting himself as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, the Father being the infinite divine essence, the Son the human organization with which the Father clothed himself to accomplish the redemption of mankind when immersed in sin, and the Spirit being the divine power flowing forth into act; that the Lord accomplished this redemption by fighting against and overcoming the infernal hosts which had long enslaved mankind, and restoring man to spiritual freedom; that life is not created, only the forms which receive it, man's mind and body being organic forms for the reception of life, which is maintained by the constant conjunction of man and God; that man has a spiritual body which is fitted to receive and manifest the divine forces, and the mind or spirit constitutes this spiritual body; that the material body is only the husk, so to speak, and its death is caused by man's resurrection from it; that the spiritual world is a substantial world, the realm of causes, and exists in three divisions, heaven, the world of spirits, and hell; that the world of spirits, which all enter immediately after death, is the place of preparation for heaven or for hell, according to the character brought into it; that the life in this intermediate state is similar to the one in this world, except that it is not a life of probation, but a life devoted to bringing discordant elements in man's nature into harmony, and to receiving instruction; that gradually the scene changes and men rise to heaven or sink to hell, drawn by the irresistible affinities of their true character; that hell is not a place or state of constant punishment, but its inhabitants have all the enjoyments of which their perverted nature is capable, living under restraint of penalties which follow every violation of law; that heaven is a place of useful activity, in which each finds his appropriate sphere of action and happiness, and becomes subject to the process of perfectibility which goes on forever; that in the scriptures there is a spiritual principle or fact corresponding to every natural act and object they record, a spiritual meaning distinct from, yet harmonizing with, and based upon, the natural meaning of every word and sentence; that while the books of the bible were written through various authors, each in his own natural style, it is nevertheless by virtue of the infinite store of truth within it, a divine book, the Lord himself being its author. This view of the bible is one of the chief distinctions of Swedenborgian belief.

The organization of the New Jerusalem Church is a modified episcopacy, each society being, however, free to manage its own affairs. There are associations of societies, generally conforming to state lines, and a general convention composed of representatives of the associations and also of a number of societies which have no associational connection. The service is generally liturgical. A variety of liturgies are in use in the different congregations or societies, the greater number, however, use the "Book of Worship", published by the general convention. Three orders are recognized in the ministry. In connection with each association there is a general pastor, who bears the same relation to the association that a pastor does to a society. There are also pastors of societies and preachers not yet in full orders.

COMMUNISTIC SOCIETIES

All societies observing the communal life, whether founded on a religious or secular basis, are embraced in these returns. Two of the societies are not religious, the Icarian and the Altruist, but it was deemed best not to omit them on the technical ground that they are not organized to practice a faith, but to apply a social principle.

a The Bruederhoef Mennonites also observe a communal life. They have 5 organizations, 5 church edifices, church property valued at $4,500, and 352 members. If these are added, the totals of communistic societies will be 37 organizations, 45 church edifices, church property valued at $111,300, and 4,401 members.

SOCIETY OF SHAKERS.

The oldest of all existing communities in the United States is that of the Shakers, or, more accurately, "The Millennial Church, or United Society of Believers". Their first community was organized at Mount Lebanon, N. Y., in 1792.

They count themselves as followers of Ann Lee, an English woman, who was born in 1736 in Manchester and died 1784 in this country. They revere "Mother Ann", as she was called, as the second appearance of Christ on earth. She was a member of the Society of Quakers, and in a persecution which arose against them was cast into prison. While in prison she saw Christ and had a special divine revelation, which showed her that the only way mankind could be restored to the proper relation to God was by leading a celibate life. She came to this country in 1774 and settled at Watervliet, N. Y., in 1775, and died there.

The popular designation "Shakers" was first used in England. Those Quakers who joined "Mother Ann" were noted for "unusual and violent manifestations of religious fervor", and were therefore spoken of as "Shaking Quakers". Hence the term "Shakers".

The Shakers are strict celibates, having a uniform style of dress, and use the words "yea" and "nay", but not "thee" or "thou". They are spiritualists, holding that there is a "most intricate connection and the most constant communion between themselves and the inhabitants of the world of spirits". They believe, as already stated, that the second coming of Christ is past and that they constitute the true church, and that "revelation spiritualism, celibacy, oral confession, community, nonresistance, peace, the gift of healing, miracles, physical health, and separation from the world are the foundations of the new heavens". They reject the trinitarian conception of God, holding that he is a dual person, male and female, and that the distinction of sex inheres in the soul and is eternal. Christ first appeared in Jesus as a male, and then in Ann Lee as a female. They worship only God.

Both sexes are represented in the ministry. Religious services, held on Sunday, consist of exhortation, singing, and marching and dancing to music. There is little audible prayer. There are 15 communities of Shakers, 3 each in Ohio and Massachusetts, 2 each in Kentucky, Maine, New Hampshire, and New York, and 1 in Connecticut. They have 16 church edifices, church property valued at $36,800, and 1,728 members. In 1875, according to Nordhoff's Communistic Societies, they had 18 communities and 2,415 members. This indicates that they are decreasing.

AMANA SOCIETY.

This society calls its organizations, of which there are 7, "True Inspiration Congregations". The community is confined to Iowa county, Iowa, where its members exist in 7 towns. They came from Germany in 1842, and settled near Buffalo, N. Y., whence they removed 13 years later to their present location in Iowa. They are a religious rather than an industrial community, and are devoted bible readers, believing that all parts of the book are inspired. They hold to the trinity, to justification by faith, to the resurrection of the dead, but not to eternal punishment. The wicked are to be purified by fire. They do not observe the sacrament of baptism, but make much of that of the Lord's Supper, which, however, is celebrated not oftener than once in 2 years. They believe that an era of inspiration began at the opening of the eighteenth century, the Holy Ghost revealing the secrets of the heart and conscience to messengers or new prophets. The elders or ministers are guided by the spirit of inspiration and the community has at its head some one (at one time it was a woman) who is under the direct inspiration of God. There are 3 orders of members: the highest, the middle, and the lowest, or children's order. They hold religious services every evening, and also on Sunday, Wednesday, and Saturday mornings. The general meeting is held Saturday morning; the other meetings are mostly for prayer.

HARMONY SOCIETY.

The founder of this society was George Rapp, who was born in Germany in 1757 and died in Economy, Pa., in 1847. His followers are celibates, having adopted this rule early in the present century, and follow the example of patriarchal rule set in the Old Testament and hold to a community of property. They are literalists in interpreting the scriptures. They believe that the millennium is near at hand and that all mankind will ultimately be saved, those who marry being classified with the number who will have to undergo a probation of purification. They do not believe in spiritualism. They observe as holy days Christmas, Good Friday, Easter, and Pentecost. They celebrate the Lord's Supper annually in October. They have 1 organization, 1 church edifice, church property valued at $10,000, and 250 members, in Beaver county, Pennsylvania.

SOCIETY OF SEPARATISTS.

The Separatists originated in Germany. They settled at Zoar, Ohio, in 1817, and adopted communal life in 1819. They were called Separatists in Germany because they separated from the state church, in the belief that they could thus enjoy a more spiritual faith. They reject religious ceremonies. Marriages are allowed but not favored. They are entered upon by a civil compact, there being no religious celebration. Their Sunday services do not include public prayer. There is 1 organization, 1 church edifice, church property valued at $3,000, and 200 members.

NEW ICARIA SOCIETY.

The New Icaria Society was organized in 1879. It has no creed but "rationalism founded on observation", and opposes all "antiscientific revelations". Marriage is approved. The system of rule is democratic.

SOCIETY OF ALTRUISTS.

The Altruists, like the New Icarians, are nonsectarian. The principles of the community are thus expressed: it holds the property of all its members in common, and all work according to their ability and are supplied according to their wants and live together in a common home for their mutual assistance and support and to secure their greatest wealth, comfort, and enjoyment. It allows equal rights and privileges to all its members, both men and women, in all its business affairs, which are conducted in accordance with their majority vote by its officers, who are thereby elected; and it makes no interference with the marriage or family affairs of its members, nor with their religious, political, or other opinions. The community has 25 members.

ADONAI SHOMO.

This community was organized and legally established as a corporation in 1876, in Petersham, Mass. At its organization it had 11 members. It came out of the Adventist movement. Its leading principles are faith in Christ as the Son of God, and a community of goods. All members, male and female, have an equal voice in matters of government and property. There is a common treasury, whence individual needs are supplied. All labor for the common maintenance, agriculture being the chief industry.

CHURCH TRIUMPHANT (KORESHAN ECCLESIA).

The founder of this body is Cyrus Teed. Cyrus in Hebrew is Koresh, hence the terms Koreshan Ecclesia, or the Koreshan Church and Koreshanity, the system of Koresh. The foundation principle of the movement is the "re-establishment of church and state upon a basis of divine fellowship", the law of which is love to neighbor. It has 3 departments: the ecclesia, or church; the college of life, or educational department; and the society archtriumphant. As the aims of Koreshanity can not be secured where the spirit of competition operates, the life of the disciples is communal. Celibacy is a fundamental doctrine. It is held as desirable in order to conserve the forces of life, and necessary to the attainment of that purity of life which issues in immortality. The disciples hope to pass out of the world as did Enoch, Elijah, and Christ. They number 205 members, with 5 organizations or communities.

CONGREGATIONALISTS.

The first church of the Congregational faith and order in the United States came over the sea to Plymouth, Mass., in the Mayflower, in 1620. Before the close of the first half of that century there were in New England 51 Congregational churches, besides 2 or 3 on Long Island and 1 in Virginia.

Congregationalism developed great strength in New England, spreading but slowly over other sections of the country. In 1801 a plan of union was entered into with the Presbyterian Church concerning the formation of churches in new settlements, and under it Congregationalists going west from New England generally entered Presbyterian churches. This plan continued in force until 1852 when it was formally abrogated by a convention of Congregationalists at Albany, on the ground that it practically excluded Congregationalism from the country west of New England. It is noticeable that in the older states where there are many Congregationalists there are comparatively few Presbyterians, and vice versa. Since the abrogation of the plan of union the growth of Congregational churches in the west, particularly in Illinois and the yet newer states in the northwest, has been quite rapid. Their antislavery record entirely shut them out of the states of the south until after the civil war. Their numbers in that section are still limited, and include a good proportion of colored members, to whose education they have been much devoted.

The Pilgrims and Puritans, who constituted the early Congregational churches, were not averse to Presbyterianism on doctrinal grounds. Congregationalists and Presbyterians were in substantial agreement, the Westminster Confession serving acceptably as the doctrinal symbol of both for many years. It was adopted by the Congregationalists at a general synod at Cambridge, Mass., in 1646–1648. The Savoy Confession of Faith, which is similar to that of Westminster, was adopted by local synods in 1680 and in 1708, and a national council held in 1865, in Boston, Mass., expressed its adherence to the faith "substantially embodied" in these two confessions, and adopted a declaration, known as the "Burial Hill Declaration", affirming the general unity of the church of Christ in all the world, and setting forth the "fundamental truths in which all christians should agree," as a basis of general co-operation and fellowship. In 1871 a national triennial council was held in Oberlin, Ohio. The following was adopted as a part of the constitution of the council:

> They (the Congregational churches) agree in belief that the Holy Scriptures are the sufficient and only infallible rule of faith and practice; their interpretation thereof being in substantial accordance with the great doctrines of the christian faith, commonly called evangelical, held in our churches from the early times, and sufficiently set forth by former general councils.

Dr. William Ives Budington, the moderator of the council, afterward gave the following interpretation of this paragraph:

> Any churches recognizing the independency of the local church, and professing the historic faith of Christ's church, are actually and intentionally embraced within the fellowship of the national council. The distinctions of the old school and new school were ignored and just as much Arminianism and Calvinism.

According to this, Congregationalism welcomes Arminians as well as Calvinists to its churches. In 1883 a commission appointed by the national council formulated a confession, consisting of 12 articles. It is of a general evangelical character.

The polity of the Congregational churches is based on the principle of the complete autonomy of each local church. Connected with this principle is that of the fellowship of the churches. The Cambridge platform, adopted in the middle of the seventeenth century, declares that "although churches be distinct and therefore may not be confounded with one another (and equal and therefore have not dominion one over another), yet all churches ought to preserve church communion one with another, because they are all united unto Christ, not only as a mystical but as a political head, whence is derived a communion suitable thereunto". The fountain of ecclesiastical power is in the local church and not in any association or council of churches. Each church manages its own affairs. When differences arise between churches or between members of the same church, or between a church and its pastor, they may be referred to a council specially summoned, composed of pastors and representatives of neighboring churches of the same faith and order. The decisions of councils are, however, not mandatory, but simply advisory. Councils have to do chiefly with questions of denominational fellowship. They examine, ordain, and install pastors, and recognize churches. There are local associations purely ministerial, meeting for fellowship, and which in some sections assume the duty of examining candidates for license to preach, the license being in the nature of a certification to the churches of the fitness of the licentiate. There are also local and state associations, or conferences, of churches and ministers which hold regular meetings for consultation concerning the benevolent and missionary work of the churches within their bounds. The triennial national council embraces representatives of all the local associations and conferences; but equally with the local bodies it has no other province than that of giving counsel to the churches and benevolent societies.

The Congregational idea of the minister is that he is a teacher who is primus inter pares. He is a member of the church which he serves, and is subject to its discipline like any other member. The officers of a church consist of one or more pastors, also called bishops or elders, and of deacons, who are laymen charged with the administration of the sacraments and of the charitable interests. Connected with most churches is a religious society embracing all members and supporters of the church. The church calls a pastor, and the society approves the call and fixes the salary.

In New England for many years Congregationalism was the established religion. In the colonies of New Haven and Massachusetts membership in a Congregational church was a condition of the exercise of the political franchise, and the churches in most of New England were supported by moneys raised in the tax levies. In course of time this system was modified so as to allow persons to contribute to whatever church they preferred. It was formally abolished in Connecticut in 1816 and in Massachusetts in 1833.

There are Congregational organizations in all the states except Delaware, and in all the territories except Alaska. The total of members in this country, not including several thousand converts in connection with missions of the American Board in foreign lands, is more than half a million. Massachusetts, where Congregationalists were the first colonists, has a larger proportion of the total than any other state, 101,890; Connecticut comes second, with 59,154; New York third, with 45,686; Illinois fourth, with 35,830; and Ohio fifth, with 32,281. Of the total valuation of church property, $43,335,437, Massachusetts has more than a fourth, or $11,030,890; Connecticut, $5,366,201; New York, $5,175,262; and Illinois, $2,975,812. The 4,868 organizations occupy 4,736 church edifices and 456 halls, etc.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST.

This body, often called also Christians, was one of the results of the great revival movement which began in Tennessee and Kentucky in the early part of the present century. Rev. Barton W. Stone, a Presbyterian minister, who was prominent in the revival movement, withdrew from the Presbyterian Church, and in 1804 organized a church with no other creed than the bible and with no name but that of Christian. One of his objects was to find a basis for the union of all christian believers. A little later, Thomas and Alexander Campbell, father and son, who came from Ireland, where the former had been a Presbyterian minister, organized union societies in Pennsylvania. Changing their views as to baptism, they joined the Redstone Association of Baptists. Shortly after, when Alexander Campbell was charged with not being in harmony with the creed, he followed the Burch Run church, of which he was pastor, into the Mahoning Baptist Association, which, leavened with his teachings, soon ceased to be known as a Baptist association. In 1827, after some correspondence with Rev. B. W. Stone and his followers of the Christian connection, there was a union with a large number of congregations in Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee, and the organization variously known as "Disciples of Christ" and "Christians" is the result.

The leading principles of the Disciples of Christ are, to quote from one of their tracts: (1) "to restore the lost unity of believers and so of the church of Christ by a return in doctrine, ordinance, and life to the religion definitely outlined" in the New Testament; (2) no human creed, but the bible only as the rule of faith and practice; (3) baptism by immersion of believers only, in which "comes a divine assurance of remission of sins and acceptance with God"; (4) the celebration of the Lord's Supper as a "feast of love" every Sunday. The central doctrine of their teaching is that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God". They hold that "personal trust in a personal redeemer" is the faith that is necessary to salvation.

In polity they are congregational. Their ministers are ordained, but are not, in denominational usage, addressed with the title "reverend". They have as church officers elders, also called bishops, pastors, or presbyters, deacons, and evangelists. The latter are itinerant missionaries. The churches are united in state and district associations for missionary work, and there is also a national convention for home and another organization for foreign missions, and a woman's board of missions for both home and foreign missions.

The Disciples of Christ are represented in all the states but New Hampshire and Nevada, and in all the territories except Alaska. In number of members Missouri leads the states, with 97,773; Indiana is second, with 78,942; Kentucky third, with 77,647; Illinois fourth, with 60,867, and Ohio fifth, with 54,425. They have an aggregate of 7,246 organizations, 5,324 church edifices, church property valued at $12,206,038, and 641,051 members or communicants.

In many states no little difficulty was encountered in the attempt to gather full statistics for the census. The most competent person in each state was appointed to do the work, but it was not possible to get returns for all congregations known or believed to be in existence. This was particularly true of Tennessee, where estimates only, founded on various sources of information, were possible for several counties. A small percentage of members in a number of the states is not therefore embraced in the tables on the following pages, which are believed, however, to be the most complete of any ever before published.

DUNKARDS.

The Brethren, sometimes called German Baptists, but more often Dunkards or Tunkers, trace their origin to Alexander Mack, one of a small company of Pietists who had fled to the province of Witgenstein, Germany, to escape persecution. Meeting together for the study of the bible, they were led to renounce the creed in which they had been instructed and to form the purpose to follow literally the teachings of the scriptures. In 1708 Alexander Mack became their minister, and after the members had been baptized in the Eder by trine immersion a church was organized. Mr. Mack preached both in Germany and in Holland, whence he and his whole company came to America in 1719 and settled in Philadelphia and vicinity. From this beginning they have spread over the northern, the border, and the western states. Among the early immigrants was Christian Saur, who first printed the bible in German in America. It is said that after the battle of Germantown in the Revolutinary war, the British soldiers littered their horses with unbound sheets of this bible. After the soldiers evacuated the place, Mr. Saur secured from the stables sufficient unsoiled sheets to make severel complete bibles. In doctrine the Brethren do not differ from other evangelical churches. In practice they aim to follow very closely what the scriptures set forth and to preserve the primitive simplicity of the apostolic church; hence, they regard nonconformity to the world as an important principle. They enjoin plainness in dress, settle their difficulties among themselves without resorting to the courts, affirm instead of taking an oath, refrain from active participation in politics, keep aloof from membership in secret societies, and discountenance the use of tobacco. For more than 100 years they have had a rule against the manufacture, sale, and use of intoxicants. In usage they observe the form of trine immersion, usually in rivers or other running waters. They baptize believers only, dipping them face forward at the mention of each name of the trinity in the baptismal formula. The ceremony of communion of bread and wine is observed in the evening after a full meal served at tables, which is called the Lord's Supper. Before the supper is eaten the ordinance of feet washing is observed, the brethren washing one another's feet with basin of water and towel and the sisters performing the same service among themselves. After the supper, before the communion is administered, the members of the sexes separately extend the right hand of fellowship to one another and exchange the "kiss of charity".

The congregations are organized into districts, and the districts elect representatives to an annual meeting, whose decisions are binding on the whole church. The ministry consists of bishops, or elders, ministers, and deacons, all of whom are elected by the congregations. Deacons are advanced to be ministers, ministers are advanced to the second degree, and bishops, or elders, are elected from the list of ministers of the second degree.

In the year 1882–1883 the Dunkards were divided into 4 branches, which are popularly distinguished as the Conservative, Progressive, Old Order, and Seventh-day Brethren. At first all information respecting the Old Order branch was refused.

DUNKARDS (CONSERVATIVE).

The Conservative Brethren are the main branch of Dunkards. In the division which was caused by differences concerning the enforcement of the principle of nonconformity to the world the Conservatives occupy a position midway between the Progressive and Old Order bodies. They have established Sunday schools and schools for the higher education, and also conduct missionary enterprises. They are represented in 28 states and 2 territories, being strongest in Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Ohio, where more than half of their communicants are found. While they have only 720 organizations, they occupy 854 church edifices and 180 halls, etc. The excess of buildings occupied over organizations is explained by the fact that an organization often embraces several congregations. The churches or meetinghouses are generally very plain structures.

Ministers usually pursue some industrial or business avocation, and do not draw their support from the church except in special cases.

DUNKARDS (OLD ORDER).

This is one of the three branches into which the Dunkards were divided in 1882–1883. The Old Order brethren adhere more strictly to the principle of nonconformity to the world than either of the other bodies. They oppose as innovations many practices which are tolerated in the Conservative and Progressive branches, such as Sunday schools, schools for the higher education, departures from simplicity in dress, in the furnishing of houses, etc. It has been very difficult to obtain statistical information from them. Some responded to inquiries, but others politely excused themselves on the ground of the following action, reported in The Vindicator, their organ, printed at New Lebanon, Ohio:

Whereas a number of our elders have received papers and blanks from one who claims authority from the United States as census agent to collect statistics and secure the enumeration of church membership, etc.; and whereas a number of elders and speakers were in council at Donels Creek, Clark county, Ohio, and took the matter into consideration, and unanimously agreed that we could not consistently, according to our understanding of the former usages of our ancient brethren, take part in numbering our people in this way, and we further agree to publish this, our conclusions, in The Vindicator, and that a copy be sent to the aforesaid census agent. So ordered and provided for in the presence of Elders A. Flory, H. D. Davy, E. Hoover, and a number of others.

The following table, however, represents them quite fully. The statistics were obtained partly from sources outside the denomination, and partly from sources within, and have been verified.

They have 135 organizations, 63 church edifices, church property valued at $80,770, and 4,411 communicants. They are strongest in Ohio, where they number 1,766.

DUNKARDS, OR BRETHREN (PROGRESSIVE).

The Progressive Brethren became a separate body because of dissatisfaction with the decisions of the annual meeting in enforcing the principle of nonconformity to the world. They thought these decisions in many instances were too strict. They have 8,089 communicants, divided among 15 states, with their chief strength, like the Conservative branch, in Indiana, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. They call themselves simply Brethren, or The Brethren, and do not wish to be known as Dunkards.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS (GERMAN).

This body is the result of a secession from the Dunkards in the first half of the eighteenth century. Conrad Beissel, the leader of the movement, published, in 1725, a tract against the observance of the first instead of the seventh day as the Sabbath. In 1728 Beissel and a number of others associated in a settlement called Ephrata, on the banks of the Cocalico river, in Pennsylvania, and began to observe the seventh day. In 1732 they entered upon a conventual or celibate life. Branch settlements were established in York county, Pennsylvania, in 1756, and in Bedford county in 1763. The body is now represented in 4 counties, having 6 organizations, with 194 members.

EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION.

Jacob Albright, originally a Lutheran, born in 1759, was the founder of the Evangelical Association. Near the close of the last century he became an earnest revival preacher. He labored among the German speaking population, and in 1800 formed a society of converts in Pennsylvania for "social prayer and devotional exercise every Sunday and every Wednesday night". This was the rise of the movement which resulted in the Evangelical Association. The first conference was held in 1807. This conference elected Jacob Albright a bishop. Two years later a church discipline very similar to that of the Methodist Episcopal Church was published. Some years after the death of Bishop Albright (1808) the name Evangelical Association of North America was adopted. Previous to this his followers had been known as "The Albright People", or "The Albrights".

In doctrine and polity the Evangelical Association is methodistic. It has annual conferences, a quadrennial general conference, which is the supreme legislative and judical body, quarterly conferences, presiding elders, an itinerant and a local ministry, exhorters, class leaders, etc. It also has bishops, who, however, are not elected for life, but for a term of 4 years. Its articles of faith, 21 in number, are the same in substance and almost the same in language as the 25 articles of the Methodist churches, with a few omissions.

Formerly the constituency of the church was almost entirely German; now it is largely English.

The Evangelical Association has 26 annual conferences. Four of the conferences are in other lands; 1 in Canada, 1 in Germany, 1 in Switzerland, and 1 in Japan.

The church is in a divided state. In October, 1891, 2 conferences, each claiming to be the legal general conference, were held, one in Indianapolis, the other in Philadelphia, and each elected a different set of bishops and general church officers. The differences are of long standing. They were augmented in the application in 1890 and 1891 of the disciplinary processes to the 3 bishops of the Association, each of whom was tried and suspended. The Philadelphia general conference took order restoring Bishop Dubs to his functions. That of Indianapolis, representing the majority, declared the proceedings against Bishops Esher and Bowman void. The secular courts have been appealed to in various cases growing out of these troubles, and have in almost every case decided that the Indianapolis conference was the regular conference of the church.

The church is strongest in Pennsylvania, where it has 42,379 communicants. There are in all 2,310 organizations, who occupy 1,899 church edifices, and own church property valued at $4,785,680.

FRIENDS.

The Friends, or Quakers, as they are often called, own as their founder George Fox, an Englishman, born at Drayton, Leicestershire, in 1624. He began to preach experimental holiness of heart and life in 1647. He had large congregations, and in 1656 was assisted by 60 ministers. The first general meeting of Friends was held in London in 1668, the second in 1672. The yearly meeting was established in 1678. Encountering much opposition and severe persecution in England, many Friends emigrated to other lands, some of them arriving in this country at Boston in 1656, whence they were subsequently scattered by persecution.

The first yearly meeting in America is believed to have been held in Rhode Island in 1661. George Fox met with it in 1672, and in 1683 it was set off from the London yearly meeting. It was held regularly at Newport until 1878. Since that date it has alternated between Newport and Portland, Me.

Yearly meetings were organized in Maryland in 1672, in Pennsylvania and New Jersey in 1681, in North Carolina in 1708, and in Ohio in 1812.

The Friends have no creed; no liturgy, and no sacraments. They believe in a spiritual baptism and a spiritual communion, and hold that the outward rites are unnecessary. They accept the Old and the New Testament as the word of God, and the doctrine of the atonement by Christ and sanctification by the Holy Spirit. Belief in the "immediate influence of the Holy Spirit" is pronounced by President Chase, of Haverford college, the most distinctive feature of their faith. They believe in the guidance of the Holy Spirit in worship and all religious acts. Periods of silence occur in their meetings, when no one feels called upon to speak, and when each worshiper is engaged in communion with God and inward acts of devotion. The Friends believe that a direct call to the ministry comes to persons old or young or of either sex. Those who, after a sufficient probation, give evidence of a divine call, are acknowledged as ministers and allowed seats at the head of the meeting. Besides ministers, there are in the local meetings or congregations elders of both sexes who are appointed by monthly meetings and who advise the ministers, and if necessary admonish them.

Their societies or congregations are usually called meetings, and their houses of worship meetinghouses. There are monthly meetings, embracing a number of local meetings. They deal with cases of discipline, accept or dissolve local meetings, and are subordinate to quarterly meetings, to which they send representatives. Quarterly meetings hear appeals from monthly meetings, record certificates of ministers, and institute or dissolve monthly meetings. The highest body is the yearly meeting. No quarterly meeting can be set up without its consent. It receives and determines appeals from quarterly meetings, and issues advice or extends care to subordinate meetings.

The Friends are divided into 4 bodies, popularly distinguished as the Orthodox, Hicksite, Wilburite, and Primitive.

FRIENDS (ORTHODOX).

These constitute by far the most numerous branch. In 1887, at a general conference of Orthodox Friends, held in Richmond, Ind., a "Declaration of Christian Doctrine" was adopted as an expression of "those fundamental doctrines of christian truth that have always been professed by our branch of the church of Christ". This declaration sets forth the evangelical view of the trinity, the scriptures, the fall of man, justification and regeneration, the resurrection and the final judgment, the issues of which are eternal. In the article on the Holy Spirit these sentences appear:

> We own no principle of spiritual light, life, or holiness inherent by nature in the mind or heart of man. We believe in no principle of spiritual light, life, or holiness but the influence of the Holy Spirit of God bestowed on mankind in various measures and degrees through Jesus Christ our Lord.

The article on public worship recognizes "the value of silence not as an end but as a means toward the attainment of the end: a silence not of listlessness or of vacant musing, but of holy expectation before the Lord".

The discipline of the western yearly meeting makes as "disownable offenses", for which members are disowned, or excommunicated, denial of the divinity of Christ, the revelation of the Holy Spirit, the divine authority of the scriptures, engaging in the liquor traffic, drunkenness, profanity, joining the army, or encouraging war, betting, participating in lotteries, dishonesty, taking or administering oaths, etc.

Each yearly meeting has its own discipline, but fellowship is maintained between them by epistolary correspondence. There is also a general agreement between them on the fundamentals of doctrine and discipline. The Philadelphia yearly meeting, which is the oldest, has a discipline incorporating various decisions and advices adopted since its organization in 1681.

There are 10 yearly meetings, with 794 organizations, 725 church edifices, church property valued at $2,795,784, and 80,655 members.

FRIENDS (HICKSITE).

This body of Friends is so named from Elias Hicks, a minister who was foremost in preaching doctrines which became a cause of separation. They object to being called Hicksites. Elias Hicks was born in 1749 and died in 1830. He emphasized the principle of "obedience to the light within", and so stated the doctrines of the pre-existence, deity, incarnation, and vicarious atonement of Christ, of the personality of Satan, and of eternal punishment that he was charged with being more or less in sympathy with unitarianism.

Those identified with this body of Friends insist that Mr. Hicks' views were "exactly those of Robert Barclay", an English Friend of the seventeenth century, whose "Apology for the True Christian Divinity" is still regarded as a fair exposition of the doctrinal views of Friends. They decline to make orthodox theology a test of membership.

The separation took place in the Philadelphia yearly meeting in 1827, and in New York, Baltimore, Ohio, and Indiana in 1828. There was no separation in New England or North Carolina. The Genesee, in western New York, and the Illinois yearly meeting were formed many years later.

They have 7 yearly meetings, with 201 organizations, 213 church edifices, church property valued at $1,661,850, and 21,992 members.

FRIENDS (WILBURITE).

The Wilburite Friends are thus called because John Wilbur, of New England, was their principal leader in opposing Joseph J. Gurney and his teaching. They separated from the orthodox body in the New England yearly meeting in 1845, in the Ohio in 1854, and in the western Iowa and Kansas in 1877. They are very conservative, and were unwilling to adopt the new methods devised, as the church became aggressive in evangelistic and missionary work. They make much of the doctrine of the light within, holding that every man, by reason of the atonement, has an inward seed or light given him, which, as it is heeded, will lead him to salvation. They deny instantaneous conversion and the resurrection of the body. The controlling portion of the Philadelphia yearly meeting hold to the views of Wilbur, but have never separated from the body of the church further than to decline epistolary correspondence with all branches. They are counted as orthodox, though not affiliating with that body.

They have 5 yearly meetings, with 52 organizations, 52 church edifices, church property valued at $67,000, and 4,329 members. They are represented in the states of Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Rhode Island.

FRIENDS (PRIMITIVE).

The Primitive Friends are in faith and practice Wilburite. They separated from the Philadelphia yearly meeting because that body refused to correspond with the New England and Ohio (Wilbur) yearly meetings, and they do not affiliate with the latter, because they recognize the Philadelphia meeting by ministerial visitations and by exchanging certificates of membership.

They have 9 organizations, 5 church edifices, church property valued at $16,700, and 232 members. They are found only in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, and Rhode Island.

FRIENDS OF THE TEMPLE.

FRIENDS OF THE TEMPLE.

The Temple, or Temple Society, originated in Wurtemburg, Germany, in 1853. The Rev. Christopher Hoffmann was one of its chief organizers, whence its members are known as Hoffmannians. They were also formerly called Jerusalem Freunde, or Friends of Jerusalem, because of the interest they take in that city, which is to be, as they believe, the "mother and queen of the nations in the approaching messianic kingdom on earth". Four colonies of the Friends of the Temple have been established in the holy land, where their industries are agriculture and viticulture.

The Temple Society at Schenectady, N. Y., was served for 36 years by the Rev. William F. Schwilk, who resigned as pastor in 1890 on account of advanced age. All the societies in this country are German, that at Gypsum, Kan., having been transplanted from Germany. The Temple in Jerusalem is regarded as the chief organization, and its president exercises a general supervision over the Temple in Germany and America.

In doctrine, the Temple generally accepts the essential features of the christian system, though it holds to no creed but the bible, which it believes has been generally neglected, or erroneously interpreted, or spiritualized by other churches, with which the Temple has no relations. It does not countenance membership in secret societies. Its great aim is declared to be to "build up a spiritual temple" according to the apostolic precept: "Ye, also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ". All questions arising with reference to the administration of baptism and the Lord's Supper are left to the convictions of individual members.

GERMAN EVANGELICAL PROTESTANT CHURCH.

GERMAN EVANGELICAL PROTESTANT CHURCH.

This is a body of Germans, liberal in belief, independent or congregational in polity, and without synodical organization. Its ministers are associated in vereins, or district unions. Some of its churches are older than the present century. Its chief strength lies in Pennsylvania, 12,287 communicants, and in Ohio, 11,793. It has in all 36,156 communicants, belonging to 52 organizations.

GERMAN EVANGELICAL SYNOD OF NORTH AMERICA.

GERMAN EVANGELICAL SYNOD OF NORTH AMERICA.

The German Evangelical Synod of North America represents in this country the state church of Prussia, which is a union of Lutheran and Reformed elements. The first ecclesiastical organization was formed October 15, 1840, at a meeting held at Gravois settlement, Missouri, by 6 evangelical ministers. Out of the principles then agreed upon the constitution of the synod has been gradually developed. In 1850 the society formed in Missouri and the German Evangelical Society of Ohio formed in 1850, united. To this union there was a further addition in 1860, when the United Evangelical Society of the East was consolidated with it. In 1872 two other bodies (the Evangelical Synod of the Northwest and the United Evangelical Synod of the East) entered and completed the union. All were kindred bodies, holding the same doctrines and governed by the same ecclesiastical principles.

The synod accepts the bible as the only rule of faith and practice, holding to the Augsburg Confession, Luther's catechism, and the Heidelberg catechism as correct interpretations of it. Upon those points in which these symbols do not agree the synod stands upon the scripture passages relating to them, and allows liberty of conscience.

The church is divided into districts, of which there are 15. They correspond as nearly as possible to synods in the Lutheran Church. A general conference representing the whole church meets once every 3 years. It is composed of the presidents of the districts and of delegates, clerical and lay, in the proportion of 1 for every 9 ministers and 1 for every 9 churches.

Since 1872, when the union of the various evangelical societies was completed, the church has grown rapidly. It had then 219 organizations and 8,032 communicants. Now it has 870 organizations and 187,432 communicants, the organizations having been multiplied by nearly 4 in this period of 18 years and the communicants by more than 23. It is represented in 22 states, being strongest in Illinois, 37,138; Ohio, 31,617; Missouri, 25,676; and New York, 17,409.

JEWISH CONGREGATIONS.

JEWISH CONGREGATIONS (ORTHODOX). JEWISH CONGREGATIONS (REFORMED).

JEWISH CONGREGATIONS.

The first company of Jews in this country came from Brazil in 1654. The first synagogue was established in Mill street, New York city, now known as Broad street. It was called the Shearith Israel (Remnant of Israel), and the society is still in active existence, occupying a building on West Nineteenth street. As according to custom, 10 males above the age of 13 can form a Jewish congregation, it is quite probable that there was Jewish worship before the first synagogue was opened, although it was doubtless conducted with some secrecy, as a petition to the authorities of New Amsterdam in 1685 for the privilege of exercising the rites of the Jewish religion was denied. "No public worship", so ran the reply, "is tolerated by act of assembly but to those that profess faith in Christ". Later some of the Jews in New York removed to Newport, R. I., and there held regular services, securing in 1763 a synagogue, to which the chief contributors were sons of the minister of the congregation, the Rev. Isaac Touro. One of these sons, Abraham Touro, gave $10,000 for the completion of the Bunker Hill monument. Jewish congregations were organized in Savannah, Ga., in 1733; in Lancaster, Pa., in 1776; in Philadelphia in 1780 and 1782, and in Charleston, S. C., in 1791. Of these congregations, those in the south and one of those in Philadelphia used the ritual of the Portuguese Jews, the others that of the German Jews.

The Jews of America have no religious head. Each congregation is autonomous and responsible to its members only. It is said that an effort in New York to bring the orthodox congregations under the care of a chief rabbi is not wholly satisfactory.

The statistics of Jewish congregations are not frequently or periodically gathered, as is the custom of most religious denominations; but twice at least in the last 40 years efforts have been made to ascertain the number of Jewish congregations in the United States, once in 1854 and again in 1880. According to the earlier report there were, in 1854, 97 regularly organized congregations, of which 30 were in the state of New York. The latter count was made under the auspices of the board of delegates of American Israelites and the union of Hebrew congregations, and it required several years to complete the compilation. The results, which have been regarded as quite accurate, indicated the existence of 270 congregations, with 12,546 members, or about 50,000 communicants. The value of the real estate held by the congregations was returned at $4,706,700, with other property aggregating $1,497,878, or a total of $6,204,578, exclusive of burying grounds.

The work of gathering the statistics of the Jewish congregations for the Eleventh Census was committed to Mr. Philip Cowen, of the American Hebrew, who spared no pains to secure full and accurate returns. The tables presented herewith show that there are now 533 congregations of Orthodox and Reformed Jews, with 130,496 communicants. It should be noted that in Jewish congregations the head of a family only is counted. The members of the family are represented by one person. The number given as communicants therefore does not indicate the number of members of a synagogue. Members of families may, on attaining their majority, rent a pew and be counted as a member of a synagogue or temple, but they seldom do so until they have a household of their own. The two branches or schools have together 301 church edifices, with an approximate seating capacity of 139,234. Besides these edifices, 231 halls, etc., are occupied by congregations. These halls have a seating capacity of 28,477. The total value of the synagogue property is $9,754,275, indicating an increase in 10 years of $3,549,697. In the same period the number of communicants advanced from about 50,000 to 130,496. Much of this extraordinary increase is due, of course, to a large immigration.

JEWISH CONGREGATIONS (ORTHODOX).

There are 2 branches or schools of thought in the Jewish religion, commonly designated the Orthodox and the Reformed. The attempt is here made to tabulate the statistics in accordance with this classification. It is difficult, however, in some cases to know how to draw the lines. Under the above heading those congregations are embraced which adhere to the ancient rites and ceremonies, observing the bible as expounded and expanded by the prophets and rabbis. The Orthodox Jews accept the Schulchan Aruch as authoritative in all its requirements. It is a codification, made by Rabbi Joseph Karo in the middle of the sixteenth century, of the laws and ceremonies expounded by the rabbis of the Talmud and handed down from generation to generation by tradition. It provides for the minutest details of Jewish life, and those who accept it consider it as binding as the law of Moses itself.

JEWISH CONGREGATIONS (REFORMED).

Under this classification are included all Jewish congregations which do not recognize as absolute the authority of the Schulchan Aruch. In some cases the departure from orthodoxy is slight, as in worshiping with the hat off, the mingling of the sexes in the synagogue or temple, and the introduction of the organ and female choir.

LATTER-DAY SAINTS.

CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS.
REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS.

LATTER-DAY SAINTS.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is of American origin. It was founded in 1830, by Joseph Smith, its first prophet. He was born in Sharon, Vt., in 1805, removing to Palmyra, N. Y., 10 years later. Between the ages of 14 and 15 he began earnestly to inquire how he could with certainty save his soul, and how he might ascertain which one of the many denominations was the true church of Christ. While thus seeking he had a vision of a great light, and two "glorious personages" appeared and informed him that his sins were forgiven, and instructed him in the doctrine of the one true religion, which was not, he was told, represented by any of the existing churches. Another vision was granted him in 1823, when an "angel of the Lord" appeared and told him that the preparatory work for the second coming of Christ was soon to begin and that he was to be chosen to bring about some of the purposes of the coming dispensation. The vision was frequently renewed. By the directions received in one of them he was enabled to obtain the sacred records, which have since been known as the "Book of Mormon". These records were received, it is stated, in 1827. They were "engraved on plates which had the appearance of gold", and these plates were "filled on both sides" with words in reformed Egyptian characters. Having become the subject of persecution on account of the visions, he fled to Pennsylvania, and translated, "by the gift and power of God", the records which had been miraculously delivered to him. The Book of Mormon claims to give a history of ancient America from a settlement by a colony who came from the tower of Babel at the confusion of tongues.

An angel appeared in 1829, it is stated, to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery and ordained them as priests of the order of Aaron, and directed them to baptize each other. In 1830 a church was organized at Fayette, Seneca county, N. Y. The new gospel was preached, miracles were announced as an attestation of the new faith, and missionaries were sent out, among whom Brigham Young, Sidney Rigdon, and the Pratt brothers (Parley and Orson) were prominent. Churches were established in several states. In 1831 the headquarters of the denomination were removed west to Kirtland, Ohio, and a colony was formed in Jackson county, Missouri. After having been driven out of Missouri a settlement was made at Nauvoo, Ill., where a large temple was erected, and where the headquarters of the church were fixed. In 1843 Joseph Smith announced a revelation in favor of the celestial order of marriage, including polygamy. In disturbances which subsequently arose he was shot and killed by a mob June 27, 1844, at Carthage, Ill., and Brigham Young became his successor as prophet. In 1846 and 1847 there was a general migration from Illinois to Salt Lake, the present headquarters of the church.

There are two divisions, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS.

Those who migrated to Salt Lake devised a system for active propagation of the doctrines of the Book of Mormon and subsequent revelations, and their numbers increased steadily. The "celestial law of marriage" was openly practiced after 1852, when it was promulgated. After the death of Brigham Young, August, 1877, John Taylor succeeded as president of the church. In 1890, Wilford Woodruff, the successor of John Taylor as "seer, revelator, and first president", announced a revelation prohibiting the contracting of further polygamous marriages.

The chief points of the doctrinal belief of the Latter-day Saints, as stated by President Wilford Woodruff, are in substance: God exists as a trinity of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; men are to be punished for actual sins, and not for the transgression of Adam; salvation is for all men, through the atonement of Christ, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the gospel; these ordinances are faith, repentance, baptism by immersion for the remission of sins, and the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost; men are called of God to the ministry by prophecy and the laying on of hands by those in authority; there is the gift of tongues, prophecy, revelation, visions, healing, and interpretation of tongues; the bible is the word of God so far as it is translated correctly, also the Book of Mormon; God has revealed much and has much yet to reveal; there is to be a literal gathering of Israel and the restoration of the 10 tribes; Zion is to be built on this continent; Christ will reign personally upon the earth, which is to be renewed.

The organization of the church includes features of both the Jewish and christian systems. There are two orders of the priesthood, the Melchizedek, or higher, and the Aaronic, or lesser. The first embraces apostles, patriarchs, high priests, seventies, and elders, and has charge over all the spiritual interests of the church, preaching, baptizing, laying on hands for confirmation and ordination, healing, blessing, administering the Lord's Supper, and officiating in all the ordinances. The Aaronic priesthood, including bishops, priests, teachers, and deacons, administers, under the direction of the Melchizedek priesthood, the outward ordinances and temporal affairs. In organization for church government the place of the ordinary parish is taken by the ward. Each ward has its meetinghouse and bishop and 2 counselors. A number of wards constitute a stake of Zion. At the head of each stake, or district, is a president and 2 counselors, who are high priests, and a council of 12 high priests, who sit as a court in church matters. There is a general conference, which meets in April and October of each year, for the management of the general affairs of the church. The missionaries and preachers are organized into seventies. Each seventy has 7 presidents, and is under the direction of the 12 apostles. The highest officers are those of the first presidency, which has supreme authority, and are elected by the whole church.

The chief strength of the church is in Utah, but it has organizations in 22 states and territories. There are in all 425 organizations, 266 church edifices, church property valued at $825,506, and 144,352 communicants.

REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS.

Like the Mormons of Utah, the members of this organization, sometimes called Nonpolygamous Mormons, trace their origin back to the movement begun by Joseph Smith in 1830. They claim to represent this movement and to be true to the principles and doctrines proclaimed by him, and insist that those who followed Brigham Young were led away from the truth into error. They deny that the revelation concerning polygamy, which was communicated to the church in Salt Lake in 1852 by Brigham Young was genuine, and declare that the true successor to Joseph Smith in the presidency of the church was not Brigham Young, but Joseph Smith's eldest son, Joseph. It is said that none of the members of the family of the first prophet have united with the Utah branch, but all have become members of the Reorganized Church.

The first conference was held in 1852, and it was then that the leadership of Brigham Young, James J. Strang, Sidney Rigdon, and others was disowned and the society organized. Its headquarters are at Lamoni, Iowa, where it has a large publishing house.

The Reorganized Church accepts 3 books as of divine origin: first, the bible; second, the Book of Mormon; third, the Book of Covenants. The latter consists of the revelations given to the church in the present century as a guide in church government. The Book of Mormon is accepted as a history of the ancient inhabitants of America and the revelation given them by God, beginning at a period 2,000 years before Christ and continuing until 400 years after Christ. In doctrine they adhere to the trinity, to the atonement by Jesus Christ, to the resurrection of the dead, to the second coming of Christ, and to the eternal judgment, believing that each individual will receive reward or punishment in strict measure according to the good or evil deeds done in life. They hold that men are to be saved by faith in God and Christ, by forsaking sin, by immersion for the remission of sin, and by the laying on of hands. They believe that revelations of God are still given by the Holy Spirit for the guidance of the church, and that the gifts, blessings, and powers of the Holy Spirit in bible times are continual. Their order of church government is such as they find authority for in the New Testament and such as they understand that the apostolic church observed. It includes the presidency, consisting, when full, of 3 persons, which has jurisdiction over the whole church as its chief presiding authority; 12 apostles, whose special duty is to take charge of all missionary work abroad; one or more quorums of 70, who are set apart from the body of elders and assist the apostles; high priests who have charge over states and districts; priests or pastors, teachers and deacons, and bishops, of whom 3 are set at the head of the business affairs of the church. Other bishops and agents assist in collecting the tithes. As to marriage, they believe that it is ordained of God, and that there should be but one companion for man or woman in wedlock until the contract is broken by death or transgression. They characterize the doctrine of polygamy, or plural wives, as an abomination.

The Reorganized Church is represented in 36 states and 3 territories, including that of Utah. It returns 21,773 members, of whom 5,303 are in Iowa. The next largest number, 3,189, is in Missouri; Illinois has 1,909, Michigan 1,540, and California 1,396. There are 431 organizations, with only 122 church edifices. Meetings are also held in 254 halls, schoolhouses, etc. The value of the church property is $226,285. It appears that 247 of the organizations are connected with districts, of which there are 34, and that 184 are not so connected.

LUTHERANS.

The earliest Lutherans in America came from Holland to Manhattan island in 1623 with the first Dutch colony. For some years they had great difficulty in establishing worship of their own, the Dutch authorities, ecclesiastical and civil, having received instructions "to encourage no other doctrine in the New Netherlands than the true Reformed" and "to allure the Lutherans to the Dutch churches and matriculate them in the Public Reformed religion". A Lutheran pastor, the Rev. John Ernest Goetwater, was sent to this country in 1657 by the Lutheran consistory of Amsterdam to minister to 2 Lutheran congregations, one at New York the other at Albany. He was not allowed, however, to enter upon his ministrations, but was sent back to Holland by representatives of the Reformed faith. When the English took possession of New York the Lutherans were allowed full liberty of worship.

The Lutheran faith was also established on the banks of the Delaware by a Swedish colony, who erected the first Lutheran church in America near Lewes in 1638. Swedish immigration was soon checked, and the large Lutheran influx from Germany did not begin until early in the eighteenth century, the first German congregation of Lutherans having been organized at about that time in Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, with the Rev. Justus Falckner, who was ordained in this country by the Swedes, as its first pastor. In 1710 a large number of exiled Palatines settled in New York and Pennsylvania, and in 1734 a colony of Salzburgers planted the Lutheran faith in Georgia.

While immigration brought many Lutherans to this country, they were in a scattered and unorganized condition until the arrival of the Rev. Henry M. Muhlenburg, who drew them closer together, formed them into congregations, and inspired them with new life. In 1748 he, with 6 other ministers and lay delegates from congregations, organized the first Lutheran synod in this country, the Synod, or Ministerium, of Pennsylvania. In 1786 the second synod, the Ministerium of New York, was formed.

The recent extraordinary growth of the Lutheran communion in this country is due in part to immigration from Lutheran countries. A large proportion of Lutherans are either German immigrants or the offspring of German immigrants. There are also large bodies of Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Lutherans, with a number from Finland and other European countries.

The system of faith held by all Lutherans is set forth in the Augsburg Confession and in a number of other symbols, known as Luther's catechisms, the Apology of the Augsburg Confession, the Smalcald Articles, and the Formula of Concord. The cardinal doctrine of the system is that of justification by faith alone. The ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper are held by Lutherans to be not mere signs or memorials, but channels of grace. Their view of the Lord's Supper is peculiar. They believe that "in the holy supper there are present with the elements and are received sacramentally and supernaturally the body and blood of the Lord Jesus Christ", but reject both transubstantiation as held by the Roman Catholic Church and consubstantiation as attributed by some writers to the Lutheran Church. They observe the various festivals of the christian year, and have a liturgical form of worship.

In polity, while the sovereignty of the individual congregations, which includes the office of preaching the gospel and administering the sacraments, is recognized, in the synodical system as it prevails a measure of judicial and executive authority is conferred upon the individual synods by individual congregations. General bodies, such as the General Synod, General Council, etc., are formed by the union of a number of synods and have chiefly advisory powers. Synods may withdraw from the General Synod, General Council, and other general bodies, and may afterward rejoin the body they withdrew from, or join another body, or take an independent position.

LUTHERANS ACCORDING TO LANGUAGE.

In the table on the following page Lutheran synods are arranged as nearly as possible according to language. It will be observed that 7 languages are represented, if the Norwegian be considered as differing from the Danish. Synods having 198,997 communicants are wholly English; synods having 232,512 communicants are partly English and partly German, and synods having 461,706 communicants are German almost wholly. Besides these, there are 190,154 Norwegians, 88,700 Swedes, 13,674 Danes, 1,991 Icelanders, and 1,385 Fins. It should be understood that some of these divisions are only given approximately. Independent congregations are not included.

GENERAL BODIES.

GENERAL SYNOD.

This is the oldest general body of Lutherans. It was organized in 1820 by representatives of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania; the oldest synod, the Ministerium of New York; the next oldest, the Synod of North Carolina; the third oldest, the Synod of Maryland and Virginia. The General Synod was the only general body until the civil war cut off its southern synods and led to the organization of the General Synod, South, now known as the United Synod in the South. It never had, however, the adherence of all the synods. One withdrew and afterward joined again; some held aloof from it for many years, so that from the first there has scarcely been a period in which there have not been synods in an independent attitude.

The chief cause of the changes which synods have made in their attachments to the general bodies, and also of the organization of the General Council and Synodical Conference, has been differences concerning the acceptance and interpretation of the doctrinal symbols. There have been no secessions or divisions among Lutherans on account of questions arising in church government, except several instances among the Germans, when charges of hierarchical tendencies were broached. The reception in 1864 of the Franckean Synod by the General Synod led to a division on confessional grounds.

It was objected by many that the Franckean Synod had not announced its acceptance of the Augsburg Confession, and it was thought to be doctrinally unsound. It was contended in behalf of those who adhered to the General Synod that the Franckean Synod had accepted the Augsburg Confession in accepting the constitution of the General Synod, in which is set forth the confessional basis. The minority, including the representatives of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania, presented a protest against the admission of the Franckean Synod, and the representatives of the ministerium withdrew. Two years later, however, at the next meeting of the General Synod, delegates from the ministerium were in attendance, but not being allowed to participate in the election of officers on the ground that the ministerium must be considered as "in a state of practical withdrawal from the governing functions of the General Synod", they retired, and their example was subsequently followed by the Pittsburg, English Ohio, Minnesota, and Texas synods, and the ministerium soon after led in a movement for the formation of another general body.

The following is the confessional basis of the General Synod:

> We receive and hold with the Evangelical Lutheran Church of our fathers the Word of God, as contained in the canonical scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and the Augsburg Confession as a correct exhibition of the fundamental doctrines of the Divine Word and of the faith of our church founded upon that word.

The General Synod Lutherans affiliate more readily with other evangelical denominations than the Lutherans attached to the General Council, the Synodical Conference, or the Ohio Synod. They do not refuse to exchange pulpits with ministers of evangelical churches as do their stricter brethren, who condemn these relations under the general term "unionism".

The General Synod has connected with it 23 synods, the oldest of which, that of Maryland, was organized in 1820, and the newest, that of middle Tennessee, in 1878. It is represented in 25 states and in the District of Columbia and territory of New Mexico. Nearly one-half of its communicants, or 78,938, are to be found in the state of Pennsylvania. Three other states have over 10,000 each, viz, Ohio, 18,437; Maryland, 17,288; and New York, 15,611. Of its 1,424 organizations, Pennsylvania has 596. There are 1,322 church edifices, and church property valued at $8,919,170. Only 72 of the 1,424 organizations meet in other than church buildings.

The largest synods are those of west Pennsylvania, 21,575 communicants; Maryland, 19,864; and east Pennsylvania, 17,994. The boundaries of Lutheran synods are very irregular. Those of the synods belonging to the General Synod are more regular than those of any of the other Lutheran general bodies, but it will be noticed that there are but 5 of the 23 which do not cross one or more state lines.

UNITED SYNOD IN THE SOUTH.

Soon after the beginning of the civil war the 4 synods of North and South Carolina and of Virginia and southwest Virginia withdrew from the General Synod because of the adoption by that body, at its convention in 1862, of resolutions concerning the war which gave offense to the south. These synods and the Synod of Texas were not represented in the convention of 1862 on account of the outbreak of hostilities and the condition of the country. The next year (1863) the 4 synods above mentioned and the Synod of Georgia constituted the General Synod, South. A few other southern synods afterward became connected with it. In 1886 a new organization, known as the United Synod in the South, took its place, consisting of 6 synods which had belonged to the General Synod, South, and the independent Tennessee and Holston synods.

The type of Lutheranism represented by the United Synod in the South is similar to that of the General Synod, though perhaps a little stricter. Its confessional basis is as follows:

The Holy Scriptures, the inspired writings of the Old and New Testaments, the only standard of doctrine and church discipline.

As a true and faithful exhibition of the doctrines of the Holy Scriptures in regard to matters of faith and practice the three ancient symbols, the Apostolic, the Nicene, and the Athanasian creeds, and the Unaltered Augsburg Confession of Faith; also the other symbolical books of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, viz, the Apology, the Smalcald Articles, the Smaller and Larger catechisms of Luther, and the Formula of Concord, consisting of the Epitome and full Declaration as they are set forth, defined, and published in the Christian Book of Concord, or the Symbolical Books of the Lutheran Church, published in the year 1580, as true and scriptural developments of the doctrines taught in the Augsburg Confession and in perfect harmony of one and the same pure scriptural faith.

The United Synod in the South is represented in 9 of the southern states, including Tennessee and West Virginia. It has 414 organizations and 379 church edifices, church property valued at $1,114,065, and 37,457 members.

GENERAL COUNCIL.

This was the third general body to be organized in the order of time. When the General Synod consented in 1864 to the admission of the Franckean Synod, which was regarded by the minority of the General Synod as un-Lutheran and as not having definitely accepted the Augsburg Confession, the delegates of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania protested (a number of others joining in the protest) and withdrew. At the next session of the General Synod, being excluded from participation in its organization, they retired from the body. The Pittsburg, the New York, the English Ohio, the Minnesota, and the Texas synods also dissolved their connection with the General Synod. The withdrawal of the delegates of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania was approved by that body at its next session, and a committee was appointed to issue a "fraternal address to all Evangelical Lutheran synods, ministers, and congregations in the United States and Canada which confess the Unaltered Augsburg Confession, inviting them to unite in a convention for the purpose of forming a union of Lutheran synods". The proposed convention was held in December, 1866, representatives of the synods of Pennsylvania, New York, English Ohio, Pittsburg, Wisconsin, English district of Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Canada, Illinois, and the Joint Synod of Ohio participating. "Principles of faith and church polity" were adopted, and the next year the first convention of the new body was held. Thus was the General Council organized.

In the first year of its history the Joint Synod of Ohio withdrew and the German Synod of Iowa assumed a semi-independent position, sending delegates and participating in the debate, but taking no part in the voting. This body still sustains this relation. The withdrawal of the Joint Synod of Ohio, and a few years later of the synods of Wisconsin, Illinois, and Minnesota, and the semi-independent position taken by the German Synod of Iowa, were on account of the refusal of the General Council to give a satisfactory declaration on what are called the "four points". It was the desire of these bodies that some expression should be given concerning chiliasm, and that the admission of non-Lutherans to communion, the exchanging of "pulpits with sectarians", and membership in secret societies should be unequivocally condemned. The council would not commit itself fully at that time on these points, though it has since practically done so, especially on the questions of pulpit and altar fellowship.

The confessional basis of the General Council is as follows:

We accept and acknowledge the doctrine of the Unaltered Augsburg Confession in its original sense as throughout in conformity with the pure truth, of which God's Word is the only rule. We accept its statements of truth as in perfect accordance with the canonical scriptures. We reject the errors it condemns, and believe that all which it commits to the liberty of the church of right belongs to that liberty.

In thus formally accepting and acknowledging the Unaltered Augsburg Confession we declare our conviction that the other confessions of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, inasmuch as they set forth none other than its system of doctrine and articles of faith, are of necessity pure and scriptural. Pre-eminent among such accordant pure and scriptural statements of doctrine, by their intrinsic excellence, by the great and necessary ends for which they were prepared, by their historical position, and by the general judgment of the church, are these: the Apology of the Augsburg Confession, the Smalcald Articles, the catechisms of Luther, and the Formula of Concord, all of which are, with the Unaltered Augsburg Confession, in perfect harmony of one and the same scriptural faith.

One of the most perplexing questions Lutherans have had to deal with in this country has been that of language. It is agreed that the communion sustained very heavy losses down almost to the middle of this century by insisting that synodical proceedings and church services generally should be in the German tongue. The children, having learned English, desired to have the services conducted in that language; failing in this they joined other denominations. The General Council proposed from the beginning that the different languages and nationalities "should be firmly knit together in this New World in the unity of one and the same pure faith", and declared that "no distinction of language" must be allowed "to interfere with the great work" before the church in this country. It includes American, German, and Scandinavian elements; but English is the official language of the General Council, though the German and Scandinavian tongues are also used. It has many large English churches in the eastern cities, but a majority of the congregations are German and Scandinavian and employ those languages. But few of the ministers are incapable of speaking and writing in English. All the correspondence of the Census Office with Lutherans of whatever synodical connection was in English, and scarcely a score out of the thousands of letters received were in any other tongue.

There are 9 synods connected with the General Council, including 1 in Canada, which of course is not given in these tables. While the General Council, the General Synod, and indeed most other denominations of this country, have churches and communicants in other countries, these churches and communicants are omitted in the census reports. Only those congregations are included which are within the territorial limits of the United States. The General Council has 2,044 organizations, with 1,554 church edifices, church property valued at $11,119,286, and 324,846 communicants. Of the latter, 107,025 are attached to the Ministerium of Pennsylvania, the oldest Lutheran synod in the United States. Some 375 organizations hold worship in halls, schoolhouses, etc.

While there are only 8 synods, there are congregations in 32 states and the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, of course, maintaining the lead, with 616 organizations, or nearly one-third of the whole number, and 124,163 communicants. The next largest number of communicants, 39,430, is found in New York, Minnesota coming third, with 27,906, and Illinois fourth, with 26,860. The Synod of Texas is the only synod that does not cross state lines. The Scandinavian Augustana Synod, though second in numbers to the Ministerium of Pennsylvania, embraces in its territory no fewer than 30 states, being in fact almost as widespread as the entire General Council. Besides the District of Columbia, Delaware and West Virginia are the only two states covered by the General Council which are not also covered by the Scandinavian Augustana Synod. This body of wide boundaries was organized in 1860 with only about 5,000 communicants, and is composed of Swedish Lutherans. The synod is subdivided into 7 conferences, or subsynods, which meet semiannually. The synod itself is assembled yearly. The German Iowa Synod has 5 districts, and covers several states.

SYNODICAL CONFERENCE.

The latest and largest of the Lutheran general bodies is the Synodical Conference, organized in 1872 by representatives of the Missouri, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, and Norwegian synods. Four of these synods, the Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Illinois, had taken part in the organization of the General Council, but had withdrawn. The conference was intended to represent a type of Lutheran confessionalism stricter than that of the General Council, as that of the General Council was stricter than the General Synod. The following is its confessional basis:

The Synodical Conference acknowledges the canonical scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as God's Word and the confession of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of 1580, called the Concordia, as its own.

The central body of the Synodical Conference, and the influence which constitutes the peculiar type of Lutheranism which it stands for, is the Synod of Missouri, Ohio, and other states, which was organized in 1847. The nucleus of this synod was a Saxon colony of Lutherans, who settled in Missouri in 1839. When the synod was constituted it embraced 12 congregations and 22 ministers.

Proclaiming a Lutheranism of a most positive character, it attracted to itself hosts of German immigrants who were dissatisfied with the result of the union of the Lutheran and reformed religions in the fatherland and were pleased with the absolute and unreserved acceptance of the Augsburg Confession required by the synod and with its stern antagonism to every form of syncretism (union services, union communion, union congregations) and its insistance on pure Lutheran literature, pure Lutheran services, and a pure and positive Lutheranism. Some questions which most other Lutheran bodies might consider open questions are not so held by the "Missourians", as they are called. For example, they maintain that antichrist is the Roman pontiff; that their doctrine as to the ministry and the church is the true and settled scriptural doctrine, and that all forms of chiliasm, or millenarianism, are to be condemned. They allow no differences on these and some other extra confessional points; therefore their type of doctrine and practice has become known, both in this country and Germany, where it has obtained some favor, as "Missourian".

In 1881 the Joint Synod of Ohio withdrew from the Synodical Conference as the result of a controversy which arose on the doctrine of predestination, and was followed in 1882 by the Norwegian Synod. The Synod of Missouri maintained that predestination to salvation is not due to God's foresight of faith in man, but faith and perseverance in faith are included in the decree. The adherents of the Ohio party opposed this as Calvinistic, and a division was the result.

The Synod of Missouri, Ohio, and other states is by far the largest Lutheran synod in the United States, and embraces in its territory 31 states and the District of Columbia. It is divided into 13 districts or subsynods, and reports 1,589 organizations, with 1,261 church edifices, church property valued at $6,759,535, and 293,211 communicants. Its statistics were promptly and efficiently gathered for the Census Office by Prof. M. Guenther, of St. Louis, who assumed the difficult task with the most ready compliance.

The Synodical Conference has 1,934 organizations, 1,531 church edifices, church property valued at $7,804,313, and 357,153 communicants. The constituency of the Synodical Conference is almost wholly German. Services in English are, however, being extensively introduced, and exclusively English congregations have been founded.

INDEPENDENT BODIES.

There are 12 Lutheran synods which are not connected with any of the four general bodies, and are therefore called independent bodies. They occupy this attitude for various reasons. In at least two cases, those of the Suomai Synod, a body of Finns, and the Icelandic Synod, the reason doubtless is peculiarity of language; in other cases it is differences of view on various doctrinal and practical questions and in national peculiarities. Some of these bodies are small, 4 of them having less than 5,000 communicants each; but some of them are large enough to constitute separate denominations.

JOINT SYNOD OF OHIO AND OTHER STATES.

This body was organized in 1818. It occupied an independent attitude until 1867, when it assisted in constituting the General Council, but only to withdraw in the following year, because it was not fully satisfied with the position of the council concerning the question of pulpit and altar fellowship with other denominations. It has ever been conservative and strictly confessional in character, and it was for 9 years connected with the Synodical Conference, from which it withdrew in 1881, because it could not accept the views of the majority concerning the doctrine of predestination. Since then it has occupied an independent position. Its constituency is for the most part German, but in about a third of its congregations both German and English are used. Like other large Lutheran synods, it is divided into a number of districts.

While its chief strength is in the state of Ohio, it has many communicants in Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Indiana. It embraces 23 states and the District of Columbia, New York constituting the most easterly and northerly portion of its territory, Texas the most southerly, and Oregon the most westerly. It has 421 organizations, 443 church edifices, church property valued at $1,639,087, and 69,505 communicants. Only 10 of its organizations hold services in other than church edifices.

BUFFALO SYNOD.

This synod was organized in 1845 by the Rev. J. A. A. Grabau, who came from Germany, where he had suffered for his opposition to the union of the Reformed and Lutheran religions. The synod has held views concerning the ministerial office which other Lutherans have considered as hierarchical. It insists that ordination, unless by ordained ministers, is not valid; that ministers created by congregations have no divine authority to pronounce absolution or to consecrate the elements of bread and wine; that congregations may not pronounce excommunication; that obedience is due to ministers, and that the synod is the supreme tribunal in the church.

The synod has congregations in 6 states, with 25 church edifices, church property valued at $84,410, and 4,242 communicants.

HAUGES SYNOD.

This is a body of Norwegian Lutherans, organized in the period 1846–1850 by immigrants from Norway. It took its name from Hauge, a leader of a strong spiritual movement in that country. Its followers lay much stress upon conversion, and are noted for their earnestness. The laymen participate in prayer and exhortation in public assemblies, contrary to the practice of some other bodies of a more churchly character. This synod has always occupied an independent attitude. It has 175 organizations, divided among 11 states, but with more than two-thirds of its strength in Minnesota, South Dakota, and Wisconsin, 100 church edifices, church property valued at $214,395, and 14,730 members.

NORWEGIAN CHURCH IN AMERICA.

This body was organized by Norwegian immigrants a few years later than Hauges Synod. Like the latter, it has always maintained an independent position, except for the short period when it was connected with the Synodical Conference. A few years ago a controversy over the doctrine of predestination caused a division in its ministry and congregations, resulting in the formation of what was known as the Anti-Missouri Brotherhood. The synod accepted the views of the Missouri Synod, which its type of Lutheranism resembles, while the brotherhood rejected these views as Calvinistic.

The synod is divided into 3 districts. It has 489 organizations, 275 church edifices, church property valued at $806,825, and 55,452 communicants. Its territory embraces 22 states, stretching from ocean to ocean and from the Lakes to the Gulf. Two-thirds of its communicants, however, are in the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin.

MICHIGAN SYNOD.

This is a German body, dating from 1860. It helped to organize the General Council, and was connected with it until 1888, when it withdrew because the position of the council on the question of pulpit and altar fellowship with other denominations was not sufficiently decided.

The synod is represented in the states of Michigan and Indiana, having in all 11,482 communicants, 53 church edifices, and church property valued at $164,770.

DANISH CHURCH IN AMERICA.

This is the oldest body of Danish Lutherans in this country, having been organized in 1872. It is connected with the church of Denmark, which sent missionaries to this country, who helped to organize Danish congregations and a little later to form them into a synod.

It has congregations in 14 states and in the territory of Utah. Its territory stretches from Maine to California, forming a belt across the northern portion of the country. It has 131 organizations, with 75 church edifices, and church property valued at $129,700. The total number of communicants is 10,181, more than half of whom are to be found in the states of Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Minnesota. The synod is divided into 9 districts.

DANISH CHURCH ASSOCIATION.

This association was formed in 1884, chiefly by Danish ministers, who withdrew from what was then called the Norwegian-Danish conference, not because of doctrinal or ecclesiastical differences, but because of reasons growing out of differences of nationality. It embraces 50 organizations, with 33 church edifices, church property valued at $44,775, and 3,493 members, divided among 9 states.

UNITED NORWEGIAN CHURCH OF AMERICA.

This body was constituted in 1890 by the union of 3 synods, namely, the Norwegian Augustana Synod, organized in 1860; the conference of the Norwegian-Danish Church, organized in 1870; and the Norwegian Anti-Missouri Brotherhood, organized in 1887. The latter separated from the Norwegian Synod because they could not accept the latter's views respecting the doctrine of absolute predestination. The union of these 3 bodies was due to a movement to bring together, as far as possible, all Norwegian Lutherans in one body. Hauges Synod and the Norwegian Synod, however, still maintain a separate attitude.

The United Norwegian Synod embraces 18 states in its territory. It has 1,122 organizatians, 669 church edifices, church property valued at $1,544,455, and 119,972 communicants; 49,541 communicants are in the single state of Minnesota.

INDEPENDENT CONGREGATIONS.

Besides the independent synods, there are a number of independent Lutheran congregations, that is, congregations which do not belong to any synod. In most cases the reason is not doctrinal but simply a love of independence. Not infrequently the pastor of an independent congregation is himself a member of some synod.

MENNONITES.

Menno Simons, a native of Friesland, Holland, born in 1492 and educated as a priest of the Roman Catholic Church, gave name and history to the Mennonites. Changing his faith in 1536, he became pastor of a church of Waldensians, but soon began to organize churches opposed to infant baptism and holding the principle of nonresistance. Attracted by the accounts they had heard of Penn's colony in America, a party of Mennonites crossed the ocean in 1683 and settled in Germantown, Pa., whither the Dunkards of Holland also came 36 years later. Upon the site where the first Mennonite church worshiped in Germantown, a plain stone meeting house, erected in 1770, now stands.

Successive immigrations from Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and, in recent years, from southern Russia have made the United States and Canada the home of the chief body of Mennonites.

All Mennonites accept the Confession of Faith, consisting of 18 articles, which was adopted by the Mennonites of Holland in 1632. In addition to articles declaring the doctrines usually held respecting God, the creation, the fall of man, the redemption, the scriptures, repentance, baptism, and the Lord's Supper, the confession enjoins the practice of washing the saints' feet, the marriage only of members of the same faith, the nonresistance of violence, counseling flight rather than the use of the sword, the use of the ban, or excommunication, and the shunning of expelled persons, and forbids the taking of oaths.

The ordinance of baptism is administered to candidates on their knees by a bishop or minister, who takes water with both hands from a vessel and pours it upon the head of the candidate, reciting the usual baptismal formula. After baptism he raises each person by the hand and bestows upon him the kiss of peace, the wife of the minister, or some other sister, giving the salutation to female candidates. Applicants who request it are baptized in the water, kneeling therein while the minister pours the element upon their heads. The Lord's Supper is observed twice a year, usually in the spring and fall. Every intending participant is carefully examined separately concerning his spiritual life before the day appointed for the celebration. After the communion comes the ceremony of feet washing. The members of the sexes perform this office among themselves, each in turn washing and wiping the feet of his brother or her sister, and giving at the same time the hand of fellowship and the kiss of peace.

Those who fulfill the office of the ministry are chosen from the congregation to be served. After an appropriate sermon has been preached, the bishop, with two or three other persons, retires to the council room, whence the members go one by one and name the person they believe to be the best qualified, record being made of each vote. If the choice is unanimous it is announced to the congregation, and the person thus chosen is, after due examination, ordained. Many Amish and Russian congregations make choice by a majority vote in the congregation. When more than one person has been nominated, a day is appointed to choose by lot one from among the persons so nominated. On this occasion, after a sermon, the deacons take as many books as there have been persons nominated, and place in one book a slip of paper on which has been written: "The lot is cast into the lap, but the whole disposing thereof is of the Lord", or "Herewith God has called thee to the ministry of the gospel". The books, which are alike in appearance, being thus prepared, are brought into the church and placed on the desk. Each of the brethren nominated then takes one of them, and he who gets the book containing the slip of paper is considered chosen and is ordained. Deacons are chosen in the same manner.

Bishops or elders are ministers having pastoral charge of a district in which there may be one or several places of worship and a number of ministers, all of whom are under his direction. Deacons are ordained to care for the poor and sick, to assist in administering the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper, and, in the absence of ministers, to pray and exhort.

Difficulties between brethren are settled by arbitration. If a contending party persistently refuses to submit to arbitration he is excluded from the church. The names of excommunicated persons are publicly announced. Mennonites accept no public offices except those connected with the management of schools.

MENNONITE CHURCH.

This may be regarded as the parent body. It traces its origin back not only to Menno Simons, but through the Waldensians of the twelfth century and through other churches holding the same faith to the earliest ages of the christian era. It is the most numerous body of Mennonites in this country, having 246 organizations and 17,078 communicants. This body is represented in 17 states, but 10,077 of its communicants are to be found in the state of Pennsylvania. Next to Pennsylvania, Ohio has the largest number, 1,736. Many of the organizations consist of very small companies, there being only 513 communicants in Kansas in 20 organizations, and only 700 in Indiana in 14 organizations.

There are 12 conferences, with which 223 of the 246 organizations are connected. The 23 organizations not connected with the conferences are independent congregations.

BRUEDERHOEF MENNONITE CHURCH.

This is a very old society. Jacob Huter, burned at the stake in 1536 at Innsbruck, in the Tyrol, was its founder. He instituted the communistic idea, he and all his followers "having all things in common". Driven from Moravia, where, at the beginning of the Thirty Years' war, they had 24 communities, they settled in Hungary, whence they fled to Roumania in 1767, and 2 years later to Russia. From Russia they all came to this country in 1874. They all speak German, in which language their books are preserved in manuscript. Their history, which is quite voluminous, is given in their Gemeinde Geschichtsbuche, consisting entirely of well executed manuscript. This remarkable volume contains accounts of the numerous martyrs of the society since its organization. Their communities are all in South Dakota, where they have 352 communicants and church property valued at $4,500. A number of their members have given up the communal idea and joined other Mennonite churches.

AMISH MENNONITE CHURCH.

The Amish go back in their history 200 years to their founder, Jacob Amen, who separated from the Mennonite Church in consequence of differences concerning church discipline. The designation "Amish" came from his name. They have been noted for plainness and peculiarity of dress. Formerly they were irreverently called "Hookers", because they used hooks instead of buttons on their clothes.

The Amish constitute the second largest body of Mennonites, numbering 10,101 communicants. Of these, 2,305 are in Illinois, 2,234 in Pennsylvania, and 1,965 in Ohio. The rest are divided among 11 states. The 97 organizations have 61 church edifices and church property valued at $76,450.

OLD AMISH MENNONITE CHURCH.

This branch of the Amish became a distinct body about 25 years ago. The separation was due to objection to what were regarded as innovations in forms of worship and the manner of conducting church work. The Old Amish are characterized by a very strict adherence to the ancient forms and practices of their church. There are 2,038 of them, divided among 7 states, 1,547 of them being in Indiana and Ohio. It is noteworthy that only 1 of their 22 organizations has a church edifice. All their meetings, except in this one instance, are held in private houses.

APOSTOLIC MENNONITE CHURCH.

This is a small body of 209 communicants, found only in Butler and Stark counties, Ohio. They came to this country from Europe about half a century ago. They are an Amish branch, but are less strict in their discipline than either the Amish or Old Amish churches.

REFORMED MENNONITE CHURCH.

The Reformed Mennonites are the result of a movement begun in 1812 for the "restoration of purity in teaching and the maintenance of discipline". They regarded the Mennonite Church as "a corrupt and dead body". John Herr was their leader. They are strict in their observances, severe in the use of the ban, and generally refuse to be present at religious services conducted by other denominations. They number 1,655 communicants, divided among 7 states, more than half of them being found in Pennsylvania. There are 34 organizations, with 29 church edifices, and church property valued at $52,650.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MENNONITES.

In 1848 a difficulty arose among the Mennonites in the eastern part of Pennsylvania in a matter of discipline. John Oberholtzer, a young minister, was charged by the older ministers with attempting to introduce new practices and a different teaching on some subjects. This led to the separation of Oberholtzer and a number of his followers from the church and to the organization of a body called New Mennonites. They suffered some divisions among themselves, but after awhile they entered into a union with churches in Illinois and Iowa, which had come from Germany, and the result was the formation of a general conference, wherefore the body is called General Conference Mennonites. These Mennonites are less strict in discipline than other branches, and are endeavoring to provide themselves with an educated and paid ministry.

The General Conference embraces 3 districts, the central, the eastern, and the western, and is represented in 10 states, its chief strength being in Kansas and Pennsylvania. It has 45 organizations, who occupy 43 church edifices, and own church property valued at $119,350.

CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST.

John Holdeman is the founder of this branch, which began its existence in 1859. Holdeman believed he was called of God to the ministry by visions and dreams. He claims by the spirit of prophecy "to understand the foreknowledge of God, to know mysteries, to settle difficulties, to keep peace, and to interpret visions and dreams". His followers strive to keep as closely as possible to the teachings of Menno Simons, Dietrich Philip, and the martyrs of the church of Europe.

The body consists of 18 organizations, with 3 church edifices, and 471 communicants. Their communicants are scattered over 8 states, there being only 3 each in Illinois and Indiana.

OLD (WISLER) MENNONITES.

This branch has maintained a distinct existence about 20 years. They separated from the main body of Mennonites because they are opposed to Sunday schools and evening meetings and other practices, which they regard as innovations. Originating in Elkhart county, Indiana, they are now represented in 3 states, having 15 organizations, 12 church edifices, church property valued at $8,015, and 610 communicants.

BUNDES CONFERENCE DER MENNONITEN BRUEDER-GERMEINDE.

This body originated in Russia about 50 years ago and came to this country in 1873–1876. They differ from other Mennonites in being immersionists, lay particular stress on the evidence of conversion, and are active and zealous in the performance of their religious duties. They have 12 organizations, with 11 church edifices, church property valued at $11,350, and 1,388 communicants; 5 of their organizations are in Kansas, 2 each in Minnesota and South Dakota, and 3 in Nebraska.

DEFENCELESS MENNONITES.

Henry Egli was the founder of the Defenceless Mennonites, who are strictly a branch of the Amish. They emphasize the importance of conversion and regeneration, and claim to have separated from the Amish on this account. They are represented in 5 states, with 9 organizations, 8 church edifices, church property valued at $10,540, and 856 communicants.

MENNONITE BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

This is the newest branch of the Mennonites, having originated only 10 or 12 years ago. It is methodistic in its form of organization, in its usages, and in its discipline. They are open communion Mennonites, and baptize in any form the applicant may prefer. There are 2 annual conferences of them in this country, and they also have churches in Canada. About one-half of them are in Pennsylvania, and the others are scattered among the states of Arkansas, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Nebraska, and Ohio. They have 45 organizations, 34 church edifices, church property valued at $39,600, and 1,113 communicants.

JULIUS BIEN & CO

METHODISTS.

Methodism, which counts many branches in Great Britain, America, and elsewhere, is the result of a movement begun at Oxford university, England, as early as 1729 by John and Charles Wesley. Their own account of its origin is given in these words:

> In 1729, two young men in England, reading the bible, saw they could not be saved without holiness, followed after it, and incited others so to do. In 1737, they saw likewise that men are justified before they are sanctified, but still holiness was their object. God then thrust them out to raise a holy people.

The Wesleys, with two others, began to meet together at Oxford for religious exercises in 1729. In derision they were called the "Holy Club", "Bible Bigots", "Methodists", etc. The last term was intended to describe their methodical habits, and it seems to have been accepted by them almost immediately, as the movement they led was soon widely known as the Methodist movement.

John and Charles Wesley and George Whitefield were ordained ministers of the Church of England, and it was as Church of England clergymen that they began and carried forward their stirring evangelistic work. Being excluded as preachers of "new doctrine" from many of the pulpits of the established church, they held meetings in private houses, halls, barns, and fields, receiving many converts, who were organized into societies for worship. As their work expanded, they introduced an order of lay preachers and established class meetings for the religious care and training of members. In 1744 the first conference was held, and thereafter Wesley and his helpers met together annually. Thus was organized the annual conference, one of the distinctive institutions of Methodism. Wesley grouped together several appointments and put them in charge of one of his helpers. This was the beginning of the circuit system. He then conceived the idea of increasing the efficiency of his preachers by frequent changes in their appointments. This is how the itinerancy came into existence. The itinerancy is maintained in nearly all the branches of Methodism throughout the world, though it has been greatly modified in many cases.

Though the Wesleyan movement was a movement within the Church of England, and the Wesleys lived and died in full ministerial relations with it, serious differences arose between the church and the Methodists. In 1745 John Wesley wrote that he was willing to make any concession which conscience would permit, in order to live in harmony with the clergy of the established church, but he could not, he said, give up the doctrine he was preaching, dissolve the societies, suppress lay preaching, or cease to preach in the open air. For many years he refused to sanction the administration of the sacraments by any except those who had been ordained by a bishop in the apostolic succession, and he himself hesitated to assume authority to ordain; but the bishop of London, having refused to ordain ministers for the Methodist societies in America, which were left by the Revolutionary war without the sacraments, Wesley, in 1784, by the imposition of hands, appointed or ordained men and gave them authority to ordain others. He ordained Thomas Coke, LL. D., who was already a presbyter of the Church of England, to be superintendent of the Methodist societies in America, and set apart for a similar purpose Alexander Mather, who had not been episcopally ordained. In England, Methodism continued to be a nonecclesiastical religious movement within the Church of England till after John Wesley's death, March 2, 1791. In America the separation took place several years previous to that event.

The peculiarities of Methodism are: (1) The probationary system, by which converts are received for 6 months or more on trial. If the test results favorably, they are then taken into "full connection" and have all the rights and privileges of full members. (2) The class meeting: the members and probationers of each church are divided into companies called classes, and meet under the care of a leader for prayer, testimony, and spiritual examination and advice. (3) Exhorters: members licensed to hold meetings for prayer and exhortation. (4) Local preachers: laymen adjudged to have "gifts, graces, and usefulness" sufficient to justify the issuance of a license, subject to annual renewal, to preach as occasion offers, without giving up their secular business; they may also be ordained as deacons and elders. (5) The itinerancy: there are rules requiring the bishop or a conference committee to station the regular ministers every year, and limiting the pastoral term to a fixed period; in the English Wesleyan Church it is 3 years; in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States it is 5 years, having been successively advanced from 2 to 3 and from 3 to 5. No pastor can serve the same church or circuit in the Methodist Episcopal Church more than 5 years successively, nor can he be returned to it until after the expiration of another period of 5 years. (6) Presiding elders: in most American Methodist branches each annual conference is divided into districts, 2 or more, and a presiding elder placed over each. His duty is to travel over his district, preside at quarterly conferences in each charge, report to the annual conference, and assist the presiding bishop in making out the list of appointments each year. His term of office is limited in the Methodist Episcopal Church to 6 years. (7) Bishops: the episcopal branches have bishops, elected by the general conference for life. They ordain ministers, preside over the annual conferences and at the general conference, and station the ministers, with the advice of the presiding elders. They are itinerant and general, not diocesan, officers.

Methodism also has a system of conferences: (1) The quarterly conference is held 4 times a year in each church; it is composed of the pastor, local preachers, trustees, stewards, class leaders, and other church officers. (2) The annual conference consists of all the itinerant preachers (and in some branches, of representatives of the churches) within its bounds; it examines the characters of the ministers, elects candidates to deacons' and elders' orders, and transacts various other business. (3) The general conference, composed of representatives, clerical and lay, from the various annual conferences, meets once in 4 years; it is the chief legislative and judicial court; it elects bishops and other general officers, creates new conferences, changes conference boundaries, and controls the administration of the general and benevolent interests of the church. In some branches a district conference is also provided for; it is composed of the pastors and representatives of the churches of a district, the presiding elder being the chairman.

In theology, Methodism, excepting the Welsh branch, is Arminian. Most of the American branches have adopted as their doctrinal symbol "Articles of Religion", 25 in number, prepared by John Wesley from the 39 articles of the Church of England. In common with other Arminian bodies, Methodists emphasize the doctrine of the freedom of the will and universal atonement, and deny the Calvinistic ideas of predestination and reprobation. Their more distinctive doctrines are those which Wesley revived, restated, and specially emphasized, namely, (1) present personal salvation by faith; (2) the witness of the Spirit; (3) sanctification. Upon the latter point Wesley taught that sanctification is obtainable instantaneously, between justification and death, and that it is not "sinless perfection", but perfection in love, so that those who possess it "feel no sin; nothing but love".

There are 17 branches of Methodism in the United States, as follows:

1. Methodist Episcopal.
2. Union American Methodist Episcopal.
3. African Methodist Episcopal.
4. African Union Methodist Protestant.
5. African Methodist Episcopal Zion.
6. Methodist Protestant.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

Though John and Charles Wesley crossed the ocean in 1735 and labored in Georgia, the latter about a year, the former 2 years, the beginnings of Methodism in this country are dated from 1766, in New York and Maryland. In that year a Wesleyan local preacher from Ireland, Philip Embury, gathered a few Methodists in the lower part of New York city for regular worship. Robert Strawbridge, likewise a Wesleyan local preacher and Irish immigrant, preached to a small number of people in Frederick county, Maryland, at about the same time. The first meetings in New York were held in Mr. Embury's house; then they were transferred to a sail loft, and in 1768 an edifice was erected at a cost of $3,000. This was the first Methodist church in the United States. Its site in John street is still occupied by a Methodist edifice. Captain Thomas Webb, of the British army, was an efficient colaborer with Mr. Embury. Mr. John Wesley sent over 2 missionaries in 1769, Richard Boardman and Joseph Pilmoor, to assist in the work of establishing Methodism in this country; 7 others subsequently arrived; 2 became Presbyterians, and only 1, Francis Asbury, remained through the Revolutionary war.

The first annual conference was held in Philadelphia in 1773, Thomas Rankin, one of Wesley's missionaries, presiding. At the close of 1784 a general conference met in Baltimore December 24, and the Methodist Episcopal Church was formally organized. This was in accordance with the plan of John Wesley himself. The societies had increased and the number of members had swelled from 1,160 in 1773 to 14,988, notwithstanding the adverse influences of the Revolutionary war; and these societies were without an ordained ministry and consequently without the sacraments during the period of the war, the clergy of the Church of England, from whom baptism and the Lord's Supper had previously been received, having in many cases left their parishes. Representations being made to Mr. Wesley concerning the condition of the Methodist societies, he set apart Dr. Thomas Coke, a presbyter of the Church of England, to be superintendent of the societies, and sent with him to America Francis Asbury and 2 others, directing him to organize the societies into a separate ecclesiastical body, and to have Asbury associated with him in the office of superintendent.

When the conference was assembled in Baltimore a letter from Mr. Wesley was read, stating that he had "appointed Dr. Coke and Mr. Francis Asbury to be joint superintendents over our brethren in North America, as also Richard Whatcoat and Thomas Vasey to act as elders among them by baptizing and ministering the Lord's Supper"; that he had prepared a liturgy to be used by the traveling preachers, and that as "our American brethren are now totally disentangled both from the state and from the English hierarchy", he dared not "entangle them again, either with the one or with the other. They are now," he added, "at full liberty simply to follow the scriptures and the primitive church".

The conference then proceeded to "form a Methodist Episcopal Church", electing both Coke and Asbury as superintendents or bishops. Asbury was successively ordained deacon, elder, and bishop. The Order of Worship and Articles of Religion prepared by Mr. Wesley were adopted, his Rules and Discipline were revised and accepted, a number of preachers were ordained, and the work of the conference was completed. The constitution of the church is generally held to consist of the General Rules of Conduct prepared by Mr. Wesley, the Articles of Religion, and 6 restrictive rules, limiting the power of the general conference, which is the supreme legislative body and the final court. The general conference elects bishops, who hold office for life or during good behavior, and who preside over its sessions, but have no vote or veto in its proceedings. They are not diocesan, but general and itinerant, visiting and presiding over the annual conferences successively, and appointing, with the aid and advice of the presiding elders, the preachers to the pastorates.

The progress of Methodism in the new and growing nation was extremely rapid. Bishop Asbury (Dr. Coke returned after a few years to England), who had large organizing and administrative power, was intensely active in extending the work as an evangelistic movement. He changed his preachers frequently, appointed them to large circuits, including several appointments, and raised up a body of class leaders, exhorters, local and itinerant preachers, by whom the gospel was propagated with great success. In 1800 Richard Whatcoat was elected to the bishopric, and in 1808 William McKendree also, the latter being the first native American to occupy that office. In the conference of 1808 a plan was adopted providing for a general conference, to be composed of delegates elected by the annual conferences, and to meet once every 4 years. In 1812, when the first delegated general conference was held, there were upwards of 195,000 communicants. In 1872 lay delegates appeared for the first time in the general conference. Though the Methodist Episcopal Church has suffered heavy losses at various times by secessions and divisions, it has grown very rapidly, and is by far the most numerous Methodist body in the world. It has in this country 102 annual conferences, besides 12 in mission fields in Europe, Asia, Africa, and Mexico, with missions in South America, Corea, and other countries. It is represented in all the states and territories, including the District of Columbia, except Alaska. In the following states it has congregations in every county:

	Number of counties.		Number of counties.		Number of counties.
Connecticut	8	Maine	16	New York	60
Delaware	3	Maryland	24	Ohio	88
Illinois	102	Massachusetts	14	Pennsylvania	67
Indiana	92	Montana	16	Rhode Island	5
Iowa	99	New Hampshire	10	Vermont	14
Kansas	106	New Jersey	21

Of the 2,790 counties in the various states and territories, it has organizations in all save 585. This number is made up chiefly of counties in the south where conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church were not formed after 1844, when the division occurred which resulted in the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, until the close of the late war. In the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is in fuller occupancy than the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The total of communicants, including both members and probationers (but not itinerant ministers), is 2,240,354. The total of organizations is 25,861; there are 22,844 church edifices and church property valued at $96,723,408. In addition to the church edifices, there are 2,873 halls, etc., used as places of worship. These have accommodations for 275,444.

An examination of the table by states shows that the largest number of communicants in any one state is to be found in New York, 242,492; Ohio comes second, with 240,650; Pennsylvania third, with 222,886; Illinois fourth, with 165,191; and Indiana fifth, with 162,989. There are 6 states in which there are more than 100,000 members, and 6 other states in which the number is more than 50,000. In the number of organizations and church edifices Ohio leads, and New York stands second. Of the 102 annual conferences, not including 9 missions, the largest numerically is the Philadelphia conference, which is also the oldest. The Philadelphia conference reports, 61,645 communicants; the East Ohio comes second, with 59,666; the Ohio third, with 58,089; the New York East fourth, with 55,724; and the New York fifth, with 53,644. There are 7 conferences which have 50,000 and upward each, and 30 which have between 25,000 and 50,000.

The lines of annual conferences do not correspond with those of the states. The New York East conference, for example, includes parts of New York, Connecticut, and New Jersey; the Troy conference includes appointments in New York, Massachusetts, and Vermont; the Wilmington conference, in Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia; the Baltimore conference, in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The conferences are not arranged on a plan similar to that of dioceses in the Protestant Episcopal and the Roman Catholic churches. Each diocese occupies its own territory exclusively; but the same territory in the Methodist Episcopal Church is often covered by different conferences. For example, there are white conferences in which the English language is spoken, and there are German, Swedish, and other conferences having foreign constituencies which cover parts of the same territory. The Northwest Swedish conference covers portions of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin. The Norwegian and Danish conference covers portions of the same territory; so, also, do the St. Louis German, the West German, the Northwest German, the Chicago German, and the following English speaking conferences: Rock River, St. Louis, Upper Iowa, West Nebraska, West Wisconsin, Wisconsin, Northwest Indiana, Northwest Iowa, Northwest Kansas, Central Illinois, Central Missouri, Des Moines, Detroit, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, and Nebraska. White English speaking conferences are also overlapped in many states by conferences composed of colored members.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has a large work among foreign populations. Following is a table showing the number of organizations, edifices, communicants, etc., among the Germans, Spaniards, and Scandinavians:

This is a body of colored Methodists, having the same general doctrines and usages as other branches of Methodism. It was organized in 1813 in Wilmington, Del., by a number of colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, led by Rev. Peter Spencer, a colored preacher.

The church has 42 organizations, with 35 church edifices, church property valued at $187,600, and 2,279 communicants. There are 3 annual conferences, with 2 general superintendents or bishops, who are elected for life.

AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

This branch of American Methodism was organized in Philadelphia in 1816 by a number of colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They withdrew from the parent body in order that they might have larger privileges and more freedom of action among themselves than they believed they could secure in continued association with their white brethren. The Rev. Richard Allen was elected the first bishop of the new church by the same convention that organized it. In the year 1787 Mr. Allen had been made the leader of a class of 40 persons of his own color. A few years later he purchased a lot at the corner of Sixth and Lombard streets, Philadelphia, where the first church erected in this country for colored Methodists was occupied in 1794. This site is now covered by an edifice, dedicated in 1890, valued at $50,000.

In doctrine, government, and usage the church does not essentially differ from the body from which it sprang. It has an itinerant and a local or nonitinerant ministry, and its territory is divided into annual conferences. It has a general conference, meeting once every 4 years; bishops or itinerant general superintendents, elected for life, who visit the annual conferences in the episcopal districts to which they are assigned, and presiding elders, who exercise subepiscopal oversight in the districts into which the annual conferences are divided, and it has the probationary system for new members, with exhorters, class leaders, stewards, stewardesses, etc.

The church in its first half century grew slowly, chiefly in the northern states, until the close of the war. At the end of the first decade of its existence it had 2 conferences and about 8,000 members. In 1856 it had 7 conferences and about 20,000 members; in 1866, 10 conferences and 75,000 members. Bishop B. W. Arnett, the ardent and industrious statistician of the church, in noting a decrease of 343 members in the decade ending in 1836, in the Baltimore conference, explains that it was due to the numerous sales of members as slaves. According to elaborate figures furnished by him the increase in the value of church property owned by the denomination was not less than $400,000 in the decade closing in 1866, or nearly 50 per cent. In the succeeding 10 years the increase was from $825,000 to $3,064,000, not including parsonages, which seem to have been embraced in the total for 1866. According to the returns for 1890, given herewith, the valuation is $6,468,280, indicating an increase of $3,404,280 in the last 14 years, or 111.11 per cent.

The church is widely distributed, having congregations in 41 states and territories. The states in which it is not represented are the two Dakotas, Idaho, Maine, Nevada, New Hampshire, and Vermont, the territories being Alaska, Oklahoma, and Arizona. Its members are most numerous in South Carolina, where there are 88,172. Georgia comes second, with 73,248; Alabama third, with 30,781; Arkansas fourth, with 27,956; Mississippi fifth, with 25,439. Tennessee has 23,718, Texas 23,392, and Florida 22,463. In no other state does the number reach 17,000. The 8 southern states above given report 315,169 members, or considerably more than two thirds of the entire membership of the church.

It will be observed that of the 2,481 organizations only 31 worship in halls, schoolhouses, etc. All the rest, 2,450, own the edifices in which their meetings are held.

AFRICAN UNION METHODIST PROTESTANT.

This body, which has a few congregations divided among 8 states, came into existence at about the same time the African Methodist Episcopal Church was organized (1816), differing from the latter chiefly in objection to the itinerancy, to a paid ministry, and to the episcopacy. It has 2 annual conferences, with 40 organizations, 27 church edifices, church property valued at $54,440, and 3,415 communicants.

AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL ZION.

A congregation of colored people, organized in New York city, in 1796, was the nucleus of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church. This congregation originated in a desire of colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church to hold separate meetings, in which they "might have an opportunity to exercise their spiritual gifts among themselves, and thereby be more useful to one another". They built a church which was dedicated in 1800, the full name of the denomination subsequently organized being given to it. The church entered into an agreement in 1801 by which it was to receive certain pastoral supervision from the Methodist Episcopal Church. It had preachers of its own who supplied its pulpit in part. In 1820 this arrangement terminated, and in the same year a union of colored churches in New York, New Haven, Long Island, and Philadelphia was formed, and rules of government adopted. Thus was the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church formally organized.

The first annual conference was held in 1821. It was attended by 19 preachers, representing 6 churches and 1,426 members. Next year James Varick was chosen superintendent of the denomination, which was extended over the states of the north, chiefly, until the close of the civil war, when it entered the south to organize many churches.

In its polity lay representation has long been a prominent feature. Laymen are in its annual conferences as well as in its general conference, and there is no bar to the ordination of women. Until 1880 its superintendents, or bishops, were elected for a term of 4 years. In that year the term of the office was made for life or during good behavior. Its system is almost identical with that of the Methodist Episcopal Church, except the presence of laymen in the annual conference, the election of presiding elders on the nomination of the presiding bishop, instead of their appointment by the bishop alone, and other small divergences. Its general conference meets quadrennially. Its territory is divided into 7 episcopal districts, to each of which a bishop is assigned by the general conference.

The church is represented in 28 states and the District of Columbia. It is strongest in North Carolina, where it has 111,949 communicants. Alabama comes next, with 79,231 communicants; South Carolina, third, with 45,880, and Florida, fourth, with 14,791. There are in all 1,704 organizations, 1,587 church edifices, church property valued at $2,714,128, and 349,788 communicants.

METHODIST PROTESTANT.

This branch of Methodism was organized in 1830 by ministers and members who had been expelled, or had seceded from the Methodist Episcopal Church. It was the outcome of a movement for a change in certain features of the government of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1824 a union society was formed in Baltimore having this object in view, and a periodical called "The Mutual Rights" was established to advocate it. The chief reform insisted upon was the admission of the laity to a share in the government of the church. The annual and general conferences were composed entirely of ministers, and the laymen had no place or voice in either. A convention, held in 1827, resolved to present a petition to the general conference of 1828 asking for lay representation. The conference returned an unfavorable reply to the petitioners. This only served to intensify the feeling. The union society entered into a campaign for "equal rights", and so great an agitation resulted that the leaders of the movement came to be regarded as disturbers of the peace. Some of them were brought to trial and expelled from the church. All efforts to have them restored having failed, many sympathizers withdrew from the church, and in 1828 a convention of the disaffected was held in Baltimore, and a provisional organization formed. Two years later (November 2, 1830) another convention was held and the Methodist Protestant Church was constituted. It began its separate existence with 83 ministers and about 5,000 members. In the first 4 years it increased its membership enormously. While equal rights were insisted upon in the new constitution, as between ministers and laymen, the right of suffrage and eligibility to office was restricted to the whites. When the antislavery agitation began in the new branch some years later the northern and western conferences raised an objection to the retention of the word "white" in the constitution. They also protested against any toleration of slavery by the church. Failing to secure such changes as they desired they held a convention in Springfield, Ill., in 1858, and resolved to suspend all relations with the Methodist Protestant Church. Later they united with a number of Wesleyan Methodists and formed the Methodist Church. After the close of the war negotiations for a reunion were begun, and in 1877 the two branches (the Methodist and the Methodist Protestant) were made one under the old title.

The Methodist Protestant Church is strongest numerically in the states of Ohio, North Carolina, Maryland, and West Virginia. It is represented in most of the border and southern states, but is not widely diffused among the northern and western states. At the reunion in 1877 there were in the Methodist branch 58,072 communicants, in the Methodist Protestant branch 58,470, making a total of 116,542. The increase since then has amounted to 25,447, the membership in 1890 aggregating 141,989.

In doctrine the Methodist Protestant does not differ from the Methodist Episcopal Church, except that it has 29 instead of 26 articles of religion. The general conference of 1888 appointed a committee to revise the doctrinal symbol. The committee made the revision in 1890, adding 5 new articles, with the following titles: "free grace", "freedom of the will", "regeneration", "sanctification", and "witness of the spirit". The revised articles were submitted to the annual conferences for amendment and approval. Few of the conferences, however, took action, and the revision failed by default.

WESLEYAN METHODIST CONNECTION OF AMERICA.

In this title "connection" is used in the sense common to Methodism, especially British Methodism. It indicates congregations bound together by the same doctrinal and ecclesiastical ties. This body was organized in 1843 by ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in consequence of dissatisfaction with the attitude of that body toward slavery and with some of the features of its governmental system. It began with about 6,000 members, most of whom were in the state of New York. In doctrine it does not differ from other branches of Methodism. It refuses to receive as members those who belong to secret societies, and as long as the institution existed it maintained the same bar against those connected with slavery. It has 22 annual conferences, with ministerial and lay members, and a general conference, the chief legislative body of the church, which meets quadrennially. There is no itinerancy, as in most other Methodist bodies, but pastorates are arranged by mutual agreement of ministers and congregations, and are not limited to a term of years. It has 565 organizations in 22 states, with 16,492 members, of whom nearly one-fourth, or 3,913, are in New York; Michigan second, with 2,942, and Indiana third, with 2,199 members. It reports 342 church edifices and church property valued at $393,250.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

This body was organized at a convention held in Louisville, Ky., in 1845, by annual conferences in the south which had accepted a plan of separation adopted by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at its meeting in New York in 1844. The cause of separation was the slavery question.

This question, which gave rise to much discussion and several divisions among Methodists, engaged their attention as early as 1780, 4 years before American Methodism was given organized form. A conference held in Baltimore in 1780 took action requiring traveling preachers who held slaves to set them free and advising lay slaveholders to do likewise. In 1789 the following appeared in the discipline among the rules prohibiting certain things:

> The buying or selling the bodies and souls of men, women, or children, with an intention to enslave them.

The conference of 1784, which organized the Methodist Episcopal Church, deemed it a "bounden duty" to take effective measures to "extirpate this abomination from among us". It accordingly insisted that all those holding slaves should adopt a system of manumission, failing in which they should be excluded from the church, and that in future no slaveholder should be admitted to the church until he had ceased to hold slaves. In 1800 the discipline provided that any minister becoming a slaveholder must, if legally possible under the laws of the state in which he lived, emancipate his slaves or "forfeit his ministerial character". In 1816 the general conference declared slaveholders ineligible to any official station in the church, except in states where the laws did not "admit of emancipation and permit the liberated slave to enjoy freedom". These provisions could not be observed in some of the states in the south, and were not insisted on in the Carolinas, Georgia, and Tennessee. In 1808 the general conference directed that a number of disciplines, "with the section and rule on slavery left out", be printed for use in South Carolina.

About 25 years later the antislavery agitation in the north began to affect Methodism. The general conference of 1836 exhorted the members of the church "to abstain from all abolition movements and associations", and censured 2 of its members for taking part in an antislavery meeting. In the south the rule concerning the connection of ministers with slavery had not been enforced, except in 6 of the border conferences. The episcopacy, however, had been kept free from any conflict with slaveholding. While the northern conferences would not have received a slaveholding bishop, the southern conferences could not agree that slaveholders ought to be excluded from the episcopacy. A serious conflict arose, therefore, when Bishop Andrew, a southern man, who was elected bishop in 1832, became by marriage in January, 1844, a slaveholder. At the general conference held in May of that year in New York city, after a long discussion it was declared, by a vote of 111 to 69, to be the sense of the conference that Bishop Andrew "desist from the exercise of his office so long as he is connected with slavery". The southern delegates protested against this action and insisted that under the circumstances the "continuance of the jurisdiction of this general conference" over the conferences in the slaveholding states was "inconsistent with the success of the ministry" in those states. The outcome was the adoption of a report of a committee of 9 embodying a plan of separation to become operative if the 13 annual conferences in the slaveholding states should "find it necessary to unite in a distinct ecclesiastical connection, and if the various annual conferences by a three-fourths vote should so change the constitution as to allow of a division of the property of the book concern".

The action of the general conference was followed in the south by a convention in Louisville, Ky., in May, 1845, representing the 13 annual conferences which had expressed their approval of the plan of separation. This convention declared the conferences represented a distinct body under the title, "The Methodist Episcopal Church, South". Two bishops, Andrew and Soule, cast their lot with the southern church, the former in 1845, the latter at the first general conference in 1846. The northern annual conferences disapproved the plan of separation and the general conference of 1848 declared it null and void. A suit for the division of the property, according to the plan of separation, was prosecuted, and the Supreme Court of the United States, in 1854, decided it in favor of the southern church. A fraternal messenger sent by the latter to the northern general conference of 1848 was not received officially by that body. It was not until after 1876 that fraternity was established between the two churches.

The southern church lost more heavily during the years of the war than the northern. The latter had in 1864 about 68,000 fewer members than in 1860, the decrease occurring chiefly in the border conferences. The former lost, between the years 1860 and 1866, 113,000 white members, while its colored membership, aggregating 207,766, dwindled to 78,742. Most of the colored members went, at the close of the war, into the Methodist Episcopal Church (which extended its operations into the south), and into the African Methodist Episcopal and African Methodist Episcopal Zion churches. In 1870 nearly all the remaining colored members were organized into the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. There are now only about 500 colored members in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and these are scattered among 27 annual conferences. In the Indian Mission conference about 3,500 of the 10,498 members are Indians.

The southern church reorganized its shattered forces at the close of the war, and in a few years was again in the full tide of prosperity. Its growth in the last decade has been rapid.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has the same articles of religion, the same system of conferences, annual and general, and substantially the same discipline as the Methodist Episcopal Church. It differs from the latter in admitting lay delegates (4 from each district) to the annual conferences, in making lay equal to ministerial representation in the general conference, in giving the bishops a modified veto over legislation which they deem unconstitutional, and in abolishing the probationary term of six months for candidates for membership. The changes respecting lay delegation and the probationary system were adopted in 1866. The pastoral term was in the same year extended from 2 to 4 years.

There are 42 annual conferences, covering the entire country south of the fortieth parallel of latitude, which nearly corresponds with Mason and Dixon's line, and also parts of Oregon, Montana, Idaho, and Washington; but the number of organizations in these states is not large. Nor are there many organizations in the southern portions of Indiana and Illinois. The church is strongest in Texas, where it has 139,347 members; in Georgia, where it has 134,600, and in Tennessee, where the number reaches 121,398. There are in all 1,209,976 members, with 15,017 organizations, 12,688 church edifices, and church property valued at $18,775,362. Of the organizations, 1,634 meet in halls, schoolhouses, and private houses.

CONGREGATIONAL METHODIST.

Dissatisfaction with certain features of the system of polity led a number of ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to withdraw and organize a body in which laymen should have an equal voice in church government, and local preachers should become pastors. The new church was organized in Georgia in 1852, and called the Congregational Methodist Church. The first district conference was formed the same year. A number of churches in harmony with the principles of the movement were organized in Georgia, Mississippi, and other states of the south, to which it has been confined. In 1888 many of the churches and ministers went over into the Congregational denomination, which appeared in the south after the war.

The system of the Congregational Methodists is not purely congregational. The local church has large powers, but appeals from its decisions may be taken to the district conference, and thence to the state conference, and also to the general conference. These bodies have likewise the power of censure or approval. The district conference may "condemn opinions and practices contrary to the word of truth and holiness", and may cite offending parties for trial and admonish, rebuke, suspend, or expel from the conference. Ministers and lay members have equal rights and privileges in the local church and all the conferences. The district conference is composed of representatives from the churches; the state conference of representatives of the district conferences and the general conference of delegates chosen by the state conferences. District conferences meet semiannually, state conferences annually, and the general conference quadrennially. The ministers are elders, ordained after examination and approval by the district conference. The elder, as pastor of a church, presides at its monthly conference. The other officers of a church are class leader, deacon or steward, and clerk. The itinerancy is not in force. In doctrine this branch does not differ from other Methodist bodies.

This body has in all 214 organizations, 150 church edifices, church property valued at $41,680, and 8,765 communicants. Its chief strength lies in Alabama, where it has 2,596 communicants. It is also represented in Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee, and Texas.

CONGREGATIONAL METHODIST (COLORED).

This body consists of congregations of colored members organized into conferences by presidents of the Congregational Methodist Church, to which it corresponds in all particulars of doctrine, polity, and usage. The only difference between the churches of the two bodies is that they are composed of white and colored persons, respectively. There are in all 9 organizations and 319 communicants.

NEW CONGREGATIONAL METHODIST.

This branch originated in Ware County, Georgia, in 1881. It was organized by members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who were aggrieved by a certain action of a quarterly conference of that body, which action they regarded as arbitrary. It has the same doctrines and substantially the same practical system as the Congregational Methodist Church. A number of its churches united with the Congregational denomination in 1888.

There are in all 24 organizations, 17 church edifices, church property valued at $3,750, and 1,059 members, found chiefly in Georgia.

COLORED METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in 1870 of colored members and ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Before the late civil war the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, did a large evangelistic work among the negroes. Bishop McTyeire, of that body, in his "History of Methodism", says:

> As a general rule negro slaves received the gospel by Methodism from the same preachers and in the same churches with their masters, the galleries or a portion of the body of the house being assigned to them. If a separate building was provided, the negro congregation was an appendage to the white, the pastor usually preaching once on Sunday for them, holding separate official meetings with their leaders, exhorters, and preachers, and administering discipline, and making return of members for the annual minutes.

For the negroes on plantations, who were not privileged to attend organized churches, special missions were begun as early as 1829. In 1845, the year which marks the beginning of the separate existence of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, there were in the southern conferences of Methodism, according to Bishop McTyeire, 124,000 members of the slave population, and in 1860 about 207,000.

In 1866, after the opening of the south to northern churches had given the negro members opportunity to join the African Methodist Episcopal, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion, and other Methodist bodies, it was found that of the 207,742 colored members which the church, south, had in 1860 only 78,742 remained. The general conference of 1866 authorized these colored members, with their preachers, to be organized into separate congregations and annual conferences, and the general conference of 1870 appointed 2 bishops to organize the colored conferences into a separate and independent church. This was done in December, 1870, the new body taking the name "Colored Methodist Episcopal Church". Its rules limited the privilege of membership to negroes.

The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church has the same articles of religion, the same form of government, and the same discipline as its parent body. Its bishops are elected for life. One of them, Bishop L. H. Holsey, says that for some years the body encountered strong opposition from colored people because of its relation to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but that this prejudice has now almost entirely disappeared. He says a separate organization was made necessary by the change in the relation between master and slave. "The former, though divested of his slaves, carried with him all the notions, feelings, and elements in his religious and social life that characterized his former years. On the other hand, the emancipated slave had but little in common with the former master; in fact, he had nothing but his religion, poverty, and ignorance. With social elements so distinct and dissimilar, the best results of a common church relation could not be expected." Bishop Holsey declares that the great aim of the church is (1) to evangelize the negroes, and (2) to educate and elevate them.

There are 23 annual conferences with 129,383 members. It will be noticed that the church is almost entirely confined to the south. It is strongest in Georgia, where it has 22,840 members; Mississippi comes next, with 20,107; Tennessee third, with 18,968, and Alabama fourth, with 18,940. There are 1,759 organizations, with 1,653 church edifices, and church property valued at $1,713,366.

ZION UNION APOSTOLIC.

This branch of colored Methodists, which is confined to Virginia and North Carolina, dates from the year 1816. Those who organized it differed from the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, opposing the itinerancy and a paid ministry. The church has 1 bishop.

PRIMITIVE METHODIST.

The Primitive Methodist Church is not a branch of American Methodism, but it came from England, being introduced first into Canada in 1843 and then into the United States. In England the Primitive Methodist Church came into existence in 1812. It was organized by ministers and members of the Wesleyan Methodist Church who believed in camp meetings and persisted in holding them. The Wesleyan conference declared camp meetings "highly improper and likely to be productive of considerable mischief".

Primitive Methodism differs from Wesleyan Methodism chiefly in the larger use it makes of the lay element.

For many years there were in the United States 2 annual conferences, the eastern and the western. These were separate until 1889, when they united in organizing a general conference. There are now 3 annual conferences, the eastern, the Pennsylvania, and the western. Each conference is subdivided into districts, as is the custom in other branches of Methodism. They also have itinerant and local ministers, class leaders, etc.

The Primitive Methodists are represented only in 8 states, nearly one-half of the total of communicants, 4,764, being found in Pennsylvania. They have 84 organizations, with 78 church edifices, and church property valued at $291,993.

FREE METHODIST.

This body was organized in 1860 at Pekin, N. Y., at a convention of ministers and members who had been expelled or had withdrawn from the Methodist Episcopal Church. The movement arose within the bounds of the Genesee conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church over differences concerning membership in secret societies, other questions of discipline, and the emphasis to be placed in preaching on certain doctrines, particularly sanctification. In the course of the controversy several ministers were tried and expelled from the church on charges of contumacy. A number of laymen were also excluded.

The new organization adopted the discipline of the mother church, with important changes. There are no bishops, but general superintendents are elected every 4 years. District chairmen take the place of presiding elders. Persons are not received on probation simply on the expression of a "desire to flee the wrath to come", but are required to give evidence of conversion. Members are required to "lay aside gold, pearls, and costly array", and dress plainly, and are forbidden to join secret societies or to indulge in the use of intoxicants and tobacco. Attendance at class meeting is a condition of membership. Church choirs and the pew system are not approved.

Two new numbers were added to the articles of religion, one setting forth the doctrine of entire sanctification, which is described as salvation "from all inward sin, from evil thoughts and evil tempers", and as taking place instantaneously subsequently to justification. The second pertains to future rewards and punishment.

The Free Methodists have quarterly, district, annual, and general conferences. Laymen are admitted to all on equal terms with ministers.

There are 27 annual conferences, with 1,102 organizations, which have 620 church edifices and church property valued at $805,085. Besides the church edifices, 439 halls, etc., are occupied for worship, which have an aggregate seating capacity of 48,285. The stronghold of the church is in Michigan, where it has 4,592 communicants. In New York it has 3,751, and in Illinois it has 3,395. It is represented in 26 states, chiefly the northern and western, the Indian territory, and the District of Columbia. The aggregate of communicants is 22,110.

INDEPENDENT METHODISTS.

These consist of organizations in Maryland, Tennessee, and the District of Columbia, which are not connected with any annual conference. They are members of an association which, however, has no ecclesiastical authority whatever. Each congregation is entirely independent.

EVANGELIST MISSIONARY CHURCH.

This organization of colored Methodists was formed in 1886 by ministers and members in Ohio who withdrew from the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church for various reasons. It has no creed but the bible; but, according to its bishop, it inclines in belief to the doctrine that there is but one divine person, Jesus Christ, "in whom dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily". It has 11 organizations in the states of Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

MORAVIANS.

MORAVIANS.

This is the name by which the members of the Unitas Fratrum are generally known. The Unitas Fratrum, or Unity of Brethren, originated in Germany, and has no connection with the United Brethren in Christ, a denomination which sprang up in this country near the beginning of the present century.

The Moravians trace their rise back to the times of Huss. The fruit of the Huss reformation appeared in the national church of Bohemia. The Bohemian Brethren were an organization formed within the Bohemian church, pledged to take the bible as their only rule of faith and practice and maintain a scriptural discipline. The Bohemian Brethren were persecuted and their organization was overthrown in Bohemia and Moravia, but it was resuscitated in 1722–1735, among a colony of refugees from Bohemia and Moravia, settled on the estate of Count Zinzendorf in Berthelsdorf, Saxony. There the colony built the town of Herrnhut, which became the center of the Renewed Brethren.

The first Moravians who came to the United States settled in Georgia in 1735, the year when the first bishop of the Renewed Church was consecrated. The colony left Georgia 5 years later and founded Bethlehem, in Pennsylvania. At Bethlehem, and also at Nazareth and Lititz, in the same state, Moravian church settlements were formed. "The lands were the property of the church, and the farms and the various departments of mechanical industry were stocked by it and worked for its benefit. In return, the church provided the inhabitants with all the necessaries of life. Whoever had private means retained them." There was, however, no common treasury, and the settlements did not adopt a communal life. The economical system was abolished in 1762, having lasted 20 years. The brethren, however, continued to maintain the church system of communal government until 1844–1856, when it disappeared. This system, in a modified form, is still maintained in Germany.

The Unity of Brethren consists of 3 provinces, the German, British, and American. There is a general synod, which meets once in 10 years. It consists of delegates from each of the provinces and also from the various foreign mission fields, and is empowered "to consult and legislate upon those matters which are of general import". It decides as to all questions of doctrine, all essential points of the liturgy, all fundamental rules of discipline, conditions of membership, nomination and appointment of bishops, etc. In the interim between its meetings it is represented by the Unity's elders' conference, which is a sort of executive committee. Each province has a synod of its own, which legislates for and controls provincial affairs.

Bishops, presbyters, and deacons are recognized in the ministry of the Brethren. Bishops are general, not diocesan in character. They are appointed by the general synod or under its authority. The American province has the right to nominate those for this country. Bishops are members of the general synod and also of provincial synods. They are chosen almost invariably to sit on provincial boards and in the Unity's elders' conference. They have the exclusive right to ordain to the ministry. Deacons are those who assist in preaching the gospel, administering the sacraments, and other church services. When deacons are appointed to preside over congregations they are usually ordained as presbyters.

The lot is not now used in the selection of bishops and appointments to office. Formerly it was used in the appointment of ministers and in connection with marriage. Marriages by lot were abolished by the general synod in 1818, and it is long since it was used in the United States in the appointment of ministers.

In public worship a liturgy is used. In addition to prescribed forms for baptism, the Lord's Supper, confirmation, ordination, etc., there is a litany to be used every Sunday morning; also special liturgical services for ecclesiastical festivals. Love feasts are held preparatory to the Lord's Supper.

The Moravians accept the scriptures as the only rule of faith and practice. They hold that it is not for them to "define what scripture has left undefined, or to contend about mysteries", such as the Holy Trinity and the Sacraments, "which are impenetrable to human understanding". They emphasize the doctrine of the "total depravity of human nature"; the love of God in the gift of his Son as the redeemer of the world; the real godhead and manhood of Christ; the atonement and satisfaction made by Christ as the ground for forgiveness of sins; the work of the Holy Ghost in convicting of sin, inspiring faith in Christ, and bearing witness of adoption as children of God; the fruits of faith as shown in willing obedience to God's commandments. Christ is the center of Moravian theology, and his death is proclaimed as "made of God unto us wisdom and righteousness and justification and redemption".

The Moravians have 94 organizations, scattered among 17 states and the Indian and Alaska territories. The total of members is 11,781. Of these 4,308 are in Pennsylvania, 1,734 in North Carolina, and 1,477 in Wisconsin. In no other state are there as many as 900. Half of the total valuation of church property, $681,250, is reported for the state of Pennsylvania.

PRESBYTERIANS.

The Presbyterians are those who hold to a system of ecclesiastical government by presbyters. They believe that bishops and presbyters, or elders, as spoken of in the New Testament, are of the same order, being different designations for the same office. Bishops were presbyters in charge of congregations. Presbyters both taught and governed. They were both in and over the congregations. The Presbyterians are Calvinistic in doctrine. The Cumberland Presbyterian Church, with its colored branch, holds to a modified Calvinism, rejecting a limited atonement and the Westminster statement respecting the decrees; but it is considered sufficiently in accord with what is called the Reformed system to be admitted to membership in the council of the Reformed churches, which includes the Continental Reformed churches and their branches as well as the British, American, and other Presbyterian bodies.

The Presbyterian polity provides for the following courts: The session, the presbytery, the synod, and (usually) the general assembly; and recognizes as officers bishops or pastors, ruling elders, and deacons. Candidates are ordained to the ministry and installed as pastors by the presbytery. There is but one order in the ministry, that of presbyter. Ruling elders are laymen chosen by congregations to exercise government and discipline therein, together with the pastor. Deacons are also laymen chosen by congregations to care for the poor, raise and distribute alms, and manage the temporal affairs of the church. Elders and deacons are ordained by ministers. The session is the court of the congregation. It is composed of the pastor and the ruling elders. The pastor is ex officio moderator. The session is charged with the care of the spiritual interests of the church. It receives members, inquires into their conduct, has power to admonish or suspend them for offenses, and elects representatives to the presbytery. The presbytery consists of all the ministers and 1 ruling elder from each church within its bounds. It has power to entertain and decide appeals from church sessions; examine and license candidates for the ministry; ordain, install, remove, and judge ministers; decide questions of discipline and doctrine; unite or divide congregations, or receive new congregations; condemn erroneous opinions, and in general to care for the welfare of the churches within its limits. The synod is constituted of delegates, ministerial and lay, elected by the presbyteries belonging to it. It hears and decides appeals from the presbyteries, constitutes new presbyteries, and in general exercises supervision over presbyteries and sessions. The general assembly is the supreme legislative and judicial court in the Presbyterian system. It is composed of commissioners, ministerial and lay (bishops and elders), elected by the presbyteries. It receives and decides appeals from presbyteries or synods, and decides all questions of doctrine and discipline. It meets yearly.

There are 12 Presbyterian bodies in the United States, as follows:

1. Presbyterian Church in the United States of America (Northern).
2. Cumberland.
3. Cumberland (colored).
4. Welsh Calvinistic Methodist.
5. United.
6. Presbyterian Church in the United States (Southern).
7. Associate Church of North America.
8. Associate Reformed Synod of the South.
9. Reformed in the United States (Synod).
10. Reformed in North America (General Synod).
11. Reformed (Covenanted).
12. Reformed in the United States and Canada.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA (NORTHERN).

The oldest Presbyterian churches in this country go back to the first half of the seventeenth century. The elements composing them were chiefly English Puritans and Scotch and Irish immigrants. On Long Island a church was organized as early as 1640 by a Puritan minister named John Young. Another church was organized at Hempstead 2 years later. Presbyterian services were held on Manhattan Island as early as 1643 by Francis Doughty, and a Presbyterian church was established in Newark, N. J., in 1667. Doughty, after serving a few years in New York and on Long Island, went to Maryland and became a pioneer in that state. The claim has recently been advanced that the oldest Presbyterian church is the First church, Norfolk, Va., which was established as a congregation on the Elizabeth river in the first quarter of the sixteenth century. Rev. Francis Makemie is one of the honored names in the early history of American Presbyterianism. He came to this country in 1683 from Ireland, where he had been a member of the Presbytery of Laggan. He preached in Virginia, Barbadoes, and elsewhere, and organized a Presbyterian church at Snow Hill, Md., at the close of that century. In 1706 Makemie, with 2 ministers he had secured on a visit to London and brought to this country in 1705, John Hampton, an Irishman, and George McNish, a Scotchman, and 4 other ministers, Jedediah Andrews (Philadelphia), Nathaniel Taylor (Maryland), and Samuel Davis and John Wilson (Delaware), organized the first presbytery in America, the Presbytery of Philadelphia. The last 4 were Puritan ministers who had come from New England; Makemie was Scotch Irish. The same year this presbytery ordained John Boyd at Freehold, N. J.

In 1716, the number of ministers having increased to 17 and covering an extensive territory, a synod, the Synod of Philadelphia, was formed, and the presbytery was divided into 3 "subordinate meetings, or presbyteries". In 1741 there was a division in the synod in consequence of differences respecting subscription to the Confession of Faith and doctrines and practices which an extensive revival movement brought into prominence. Those contending for a strict subscription and opposing what they regarded as errors of doctrine in the revival movement were known as Old Side, and the other party as New Side Presbyterians. The latter organized the Synod of New York. In 1758 the 2 bodies were reunited as the Synod of New York and Philadelphia. At the opening of the Revolutionary war in 1775 there were in connection with the synod 17 presbyteries and 170 ministers. The church suffered severely in the war for independence, but it became prosperous after peace was declared, and in 1788 the synod decided to organize a general assembly with 4 synods. It revised and adopted the Westminster Confession and Larger Catechism, Form of Government, Book of Discipline, and Directory of Worship. The first meeting of the general assembly was held in Philadelphia in 1789.

Early in the nineteenth century there was an extensive revival movement in the Cumberland valley, Tennessee. Differences in doctrine and practice were developed by this movement, and the Cumberland Presbyterian Church was organized.

In 1837, a little more than a century after the division in the Synod of Philadelphia into Old Side and New Side Presbyterians, the church was again divided into Old School and New School assemblies, chiefly as the result of doctrinal differences concerning the atonement, whether it was general or for the elect only, and of differences concerning creed subscription and polity and discipline. In 1840 the Old School body had about 126,583 communicants, and the New School 102,060. In 1869 the 2 assemblies agreed to a reunion, which was consummated in the same year.

At the outbreak of the civil war, in 1861, the churches in the south separated from the churches in the north adhering to the Old School assembly. The southern churches adhering to the New School assembly had also separated from the northern churches belonging to the New School assembly in 1858 on the question of slavery. The two bodies created in the south by this division united in 1865 and formed what is popularly known as the Southern Presbyterian Church.

The church in the north has grown rapidly since the reunion in 1869, and has extended into the south, where it has organized a number of presbyteries, chiefly of colored people. It is represented in all the states except Mississippi and in all the territories, including the District of Columbia. The largest number of communicants reported for a single state is 161,386 in Pennsylvania. New York comes second, with 154,083, and Ohio is third, with 82,444. Though there are more communicants in Pennsylvania by 7,303 than in New York, the value of the church property in the latter state is much greater than the value of the church property in the former. While the 939 organizations in Pennsylvania report an aggregate valuation of church property of $15,491,680, the 784 organizations in New York return an aggregate of $21,293,992. Only 26 buildings other than church edifices are occupied in these 2 states. The total valuation of church property is $74,455,200.

The general assembly of 1890 appointed a committee to revise the Westminster Confession, so as to soften, without impairing the integrity of the Calvinistic system, some of its expressions, particularly those setting forth the doctrine of preterition. The committee reported a revised confession to the general assembly of 1891, and the draft was sent down to the presbyteries for suggestions. The revision finally failed.

There are in all 214 presbyteries, of which 18 are in foreign lands. Of the 196 in this country, given in these tables, that of New York reports the largest number of communicants, 23,873, with 54 organizations, 68 church edifices, and church property valued at $8,628,000. The second presbytery in numerical order, the Philadelphia Central, has 38 organizations and 46 church edifices, church property valued at $2,470,500, and 17,600 communicants. The presbytery of Brooklyn has 17,170 communicants, with 39 church edifices, and church property valued at $1,536,927.

There are 30 synods, of which 2 are foreign, 1 being in India and 1 in China. Synods are composed of commissioners chosen by presbyteries. Within a few years they have been rearranged, so that their boundaries correspond with those of the various states as far as possible. There are, however, notable exceptions to this rule. The synod of the Atlantic includes South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida; that of Catawba, Virginia and North Carolina.

CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN.

This body owes its existence to a revival which began among the Presbyterian churches within the bounds of the Presbytery of Transylvania, Kentucky, in 1800. The awakening was first manifested in the congregation of the Rev. James McGready, at Gasper River, Logan county, and soon extended throughout the Cumberland valley in Kentucky and Tennessee. Existing congregations were enlarged and new congregations organized, and there being a lack of regular ministers to supply all the pulpits, men were received from the laity and licensed by the presbytery without the usual full literary qualifications. Some of the ministers looked upon the revival with disfavor and opposed the licensing and ordaining of laymen to preach, and members of the revival party were cited to appear before the synod to answer to a complaint that the Cumberland Presbytery, which had been formed out of the Transylvania Presbytery, and to which they then mostly belonged, had committed irregularities. The synod ultimately decided to dissolve the Cumberland Presbytery, suspend some of its ministers, and attach its ministers and members to the Transylvania Presbytery. The outcome of the matter was the organization of an independent presbytery in 1810, which was called the Cumberland Presbytery. The new body grew rapidly and was divided into three presbyteries in 1813. The same year the Cumberland Synod was constituted. The synod authorized an expression of dissent from the teaching of the Westminster Confession as to reprobation, a limited atonement, infant salvation, and the calling of the elect only. The new church was rapidly extended. In 1822 it had 46 ordained ministers; in 1827, 114. Two years later a general assembly was constituted.

In polity, the Cumberland Church is distinctively Presbyterian, differing little from other Presbyterian branches. Its doctrines are embodied in a confession of faith, which, as revised in 1883, consists of 119 short paragraphs. It follows the Westminster Confession except as to the doctrines of the decrees and limited atonement. It is claimed that it represents the medium between Calvinistic and Arminian theology. It acknowledges the sovereignty of God and declares the free agency of man. The atonement of Christ was made for all mankind; but only those who yield to the influences of the spirit, which are coextensive with the atonement, will be saved. The salvation of those who thus yield is certain because both divine and human agency co-operate to that end. The elect are those who believe on the Son, and the date of election is the beginning of regeneration and adoption, that is, when men are regenerated they are elected to eternal life, and will finally persevere not by virtue of God's election alone, but by the concurrent choice of both God and the believer. No truly regenerated man will ever finally fall away. Grace is not "irresistible". It may be accepted or rejected. If accepted, it is the cause of election; if rejected, reprobation follows. Election is therefore not unconditional, either to honor or dishonor. The divine decrees are regarded as immutable, but not as universal.

The Cumberland Church is not represented in many of the northern states. Its chief strength lies in the states of the border. In Tennessee it has 39,477 members; in Missouri, 23,990; in Texas, 22,297; and in Kentucky, 15,458. In these 4 states three-fifths of the membership of the church is found. The whole number of organizations is 2,791; church edifices, 2,024; value of church property, $3,515,510; members, 164,940.

CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN (COLORED).

This body was organized in May, 1869, at Murfreesboro, Tenn., under the direction of the General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. It was constituted of colored ministers and members who had been connected with that church. Its first synod, the Tennessee, was organized in 1871, and its general assembly in 1874. It has the same doctrinal symbol as the parent body and the same system of government and discipline, differing only in race. It has 23 presbyteries, and is represented in 9 states and 1 territory. It has 224 organizations, 183 church edifices, 12,956 communicants, and church property valued at $195,826.

WELSH CALVINISTIC METHODIST.

Historically this body is a part of the general Methodist movement of which the two Wesleys and Whitefield were the leaders in Great Britain. Doctrinally it is Calvinistic, its confession of faith being similar to that of Westminster. Until 1811 the Calvinistic Methodists in Wales were connected with the Church of England, as the followers of Wesley in England had been. Since that date they have been a distinct denomination, affiliating with the Presbyterians.

The first Welsh Calvinistic Methodist church in this country was organized in 1826 in Remsen, N. Y.; 4 years later a presbytery was constituted. A general assembly, which meets once in 3 years, was organized in 1869. The church system is very similar to that of the Presbyterian churches, with which it affiliates. There are 6 synods, as follows: New York and Vermont, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Western.

There are 19 presbyteries. The number of organizations is 187, with 12,722 communicants, and church property valued at $625,875.

The Welsh are, of course, the constituency of the church, and the Welsh language is used in its services and in the proceedings of its ecclesiastical judicatories.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS.

This body is not historically connected with the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland, though it was formed in a similar way and of similar elements. The Scottish body was organized in 1847 of Secession, or Associate. Burgher, and Relief Presbyterians. The American branch was constituted in 1858 of Associate and Associate Reformed Presbyterians. The Associate Presbyterians included both Burghers and Secession Presbyterians, and the Associate Reformed, Associate, and Reformed Presbyterians. All these divisions were brought to the United States by Scotch immigrants. In 1858 most of the Associate and Associate Reformed Presbyterians agreed to unite, and the United Presbyterian Church in North America was the result. A number of each of the 2 bodies, however, refused to enter the union and hold still a separate existence.

The United Presbyterian Church accepts the Westminster Confession of Faith and catechisms as its doctrinal standards, modifying somewhat the chapters on the power of civil magistrates. Accompanying these standards, as a part of the basis of the union, was a "judicial testimony", declaring the sense in which these symbols were received. It consisted of 18 declarations, including one against human slavery, another against all secret oath-bound societies as "inconsistent with the genius and spirit of christianity" and forbidden to church members, another opposed to extending the "communion in sealing ordinances" to those refusing adherence to the church's profession, subjection to its government and discipline, or abandonment of fellowship with those not in sympathy with the church's position; also another that it is the "will of God" that the songs contained in the Book of Psalms be sung, and these only, "to the exclusion of the devotional compositions of uninspired men", in public and private worship. In government and discipline the church is similar to other Presbyterian churches. It has presbyteries, synods, and a general assembly.

There are 56 presbyteries, not including 3 in foreign lands, 1 each in Canada, India, and Egypt. The number of organizations is 866 and 832 church edifices, church property valued at $5,408,084, and 94,402 communicants, In 1859, the year after the church was organized, it had 55,547 communicants. It has gained, therefore, in 31 years 38,855 communicants, or about 70 per cent.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES (SOUTHERN).

In 1858 the southern churches of the New School general assembly separated from the northern churches because of differences on the slavery question. There were 4 synods, with 15 presbyteries, in the south, and these organized the United Synod, South. In 1861 there was a similar division in the Old School Presbyterian Church, resulting in the organization of the Presbyterian Church in the Confederate States of America, with 11 synods and 47 presbyteries. In 1864 this body and the United Synod, South, were united, and soon after the name Presbyterian Church in the United States was adopted. On account of similarity of titles this church is commonly called the southern, and the parent body the northern church.

When the union of 1864 took place the southern church had 87,000 communicants. A number of presbyteries which had been connected with the northern church joined it after the close of the civil war, and it has increased rapidly. It now has 13 synods, 72 presbyteries, and 179,721 communicants. In 1882 fraternity was formally established between the northern and southern bodies, and in 1888 the general assemblies, respectively, held a joint meeting in Philadelphia in celebration of the centenary of the adoption of the constitution of the church.

The southern church has 2,391 organizations, with 2,288 church edifices, and church property valued at $8,812,152.

ASSOCIATE CHURCH OF NORTH AMERICA.

The Associate Presbyterians began with a secession in 1733 of Ebenezer Erskine and 3 other ministers from the Church of Scotland. Twenty years later the first Associate presbytery in this country, that of Pennsylvania, was organized. In 1782 most of these Presbyterians, who held what are known as the Marrow doctrines, united with Reformed Presbyterians, whence came, in course of time, various bodies of Associate Reformed Presbyterians. There were Associate Presbyterians, however, who did not join this union, and these organized in 1801 a synod, embracing several presbyteries. In 1858 there was a union of Associate and Associate Reformed Presbyterians, resulting in the United Presbyterian Church. Some Associate Presbyterians, however, remained separate still. These are known as the Associate Church of North America.

The Associate Presbyterians were very pronounced against slavery. As early as 1800 the Associate presbytery denounced slavery as immoral and unjustifiable. In 1811 it repeated this declaration, and in 1831 it resolved to exclude slaveholders from its communion, losing thereby its southern congregations.

There are now 4 presbyteries, with 31 organizations and 1,053 communicants, scattered among 8 states, the majority of them being in Pennsylvania and Iowa. They have 23 church edifices and church property valued at $29,200.

ASSOCIATE REFORMED SYNOD OF THE SOUTH.

The union of Associate and Reformed Presbyterians in 1782 resulted in a body called Associate Reformed Presbyterians. There have been various divisions bearing this name, but all have ceased to exist, having joined with Associate Presbyterians to form the United Presbyterian Church or having been absorbed by other Presbyterian bodies, except the Associate Reformed Synod of the South. In consequence of differences in the general synod of the Associate Reformed Church, which had been formed in 1804, on the psalmody and communion questions, the Associate Reformed Synod of the Carolinas withdrew in 1821 and became the next year an independent body, under the title of the Associate Reformed Synod of the South.

The synod accepts the Westminster Confession of Faith, with those sections treating of the power of civil magistrates in ecclesiastical matters changed so as to eliminate their "Erastian doctrine". In 1871 the synod adopted also a "Summary of Doctrines", consisting of 35 articles, together with a brief declaration of church order and terms of communion. Its distinctive principles are contained in the sections concerning psalmody and the communion. Psalms only, and not uninspired hymns, may be used in worship, and persons "holding to error or corrupt worship, or notoriously belonging to societies which so hold", may not be admitted to the Lord's table.

Connected with the synod are 8 presbyteries, with 116 organizations, the same number of church edifices, 8,501 communicants, and church property valued at $211,850. The main body of communicants is to be found in the two Carolinas and Tennessee.

THE REFORMED PRESBYTERIANS.

The Reformed Presbyterians of the United States, of whom there are several branches, are ecclesiastically descended from the Cameronians, or Reformed Presbyterians of Scotland, otherwise called Covenanters. The first presbytery in Scotland was organized in 1743. Eight years later the first Covenanter minister arrived in this country, and in 1744 the first presbytery of this church in America was constituted. A few years later the members of this presbytery, joining with a number of Seceders, as they were called (also a Scottish Presbyterian division) organized the Associate Reformed Church. A division in this body resulted in the formation of the Reformed Dissenting Presbytery. The original presbytery being resuscitated, there were before the close of the century 3 branches of Reformed Presbyterians.

The question of the relation of the christian church to civil government has ever been a prominent one among Reformed Presbyterians. All accept the Westminster Confession of Faith and Form of Church Government, and all occupy an attitude of protest against civil governments which do not recognize the headship of Christ and the authority of God and his law. They differ, however, among themselves as to the extent to which this protest should be carried. Some refuse, because the Constitution of the United States does not acknowledge the existence of Almighty God, the supremacy of Christ, and the authority of the scriptures, to "incorporate with the political body", and hence do not participate in elections and in certain other political rights and duties. Others continue to protest against "a godless government", but do not refrain from voting. Reformed Presbyterians deem the influence of secret societies pernicious and forbid communicants all connection with them. They do not use modern hymns, but sing psalms only. They were always opposed to slavery. In 1800, when attention was called to the fact that some of the members owned slaves, the presbytery enacted, without a dissenting voice, that "no slaveholder should be allowed the communion of the church".

REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES (SYNOD).

In 1809 a synod was organized. A motion brought before this body in 1825 to open fraternal correspondence with the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church being defeated, a number of ministers subsequently withdrew and joined the latter body. In 1833 a division occurred, resulting in 2 organizations, both of which retained the same subordinate standards unchanged, but differed in the application of them. The one, allowing its members to vote and hold office under the government, is known as the Reformed Presbyterian Church (New Light), or General Synod; the other, still adhering to the old practice, as the Reformed Presbyterian Church (Old Light), or Synod.

The synod's "terms of ecclesiastical communion" embrace an acknowledgment of the scriptures as the word of God and only rule of faith and manners; of the whole doctrine of the Westminster confession and catechisms as founded upon the scriptures; of the divine right of one unalterable form of church government, as set forth by the Westminster assembly; of the obligation upon the church of the covenant entered into in 1871, in which are embodied the engagement of the national covenant and of the solemn league and covenant, so far as applicable in this land. The covenant of 1871 declares that those accepting it are pledged to labor for "a constitutional recognition of God as the source of all power, of Jesus Christ as the ruler of nations, of the Holy Scriptures as the supreme rule, and of the true christian religion", and to refuse to "incorporate by any act with the political body until this blessed reformation is secured". The members of this branch, therefore, do not take part in state or national elections. They neither vote nor hold office.

The synod embraces 11 presbyteries, with 115 organizations, the same number of church edifices, 10,574 communicants, and church property valued at $1,071,400. Though it is represented in 19 states, more than half of its communicants are in Pennsylvania and New York.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN NORTH AMERICA (GENERAL SYNOD).

This is the other body resulting from the division of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in 1833. They used to be popularly distinguished as "New Lights". The general synod holds equally with the synod to the Westminster standards, to the headship of Christ over nations, to the doctrine of "public social covenanting", to the exclusive use of the psalms in singing, to restricted communion in the use of the sacraments, and to the principle of "dissent from all immoral civil institutions", but allows its members to decide for themselves whether the government of this country should be regarded as an immoral institution, and thus determine what duties of citizenship devolve upon them. They may, therefore, exercise the franchise and hold office, provided they do not in these civil acts violate the principle that forbids connection with immoral institutions. Many of them do participate in elections. Negotiations for the union of the general synod and the synod failed in 1890, because the latter would not agree to a basis which interpreted the phrase "incorporate with the political body" as meaning "such incorporation as involves sinful compliance with the religious defects of the written Constitution as it now stands, either in holding such offices as require an oath to support the Constitution or in voting for men to administer such offices".

The general synod embraces 5 presbyteries, with 33 organizations, the same number of church edifices, church property valued at $469,000, and 4,602 communicants.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN (COVENANTED).

This body was organized in 1840 by 2 ministers and 3 elders, who withdrew from the synod, or the branch known as the "Old Lights", on the ground that the latter maintained sinful ecclesiastical relations and patronized or indorsed moral reform societies with which persons of any religion or no religion were connected. Its terms of communion are somewhat stricter than those of the synod. It is a small body, having only 4 organizations, with 37 members, divided among 3 states.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

This body was organized in 1883, in consequence of dissatisfaction with the treatment of a question of discipline by the general synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church (New Lights). In the matter of participation in elections it holds with the general synod, and contrary to the synod, that christians may vote and be voted for, regarding the republic as essentially a christian republic. It has but 600 members in the United States, who belong to 1 congregation in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL BODIES.

Those commonly called Episcopalians constitute a part of the Anglican communion. This communion embraces the Church of England, the Church of Ireland, the Episcopal Church of Scotland, the Anglican Church in British North America, the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, and numerous bishoprics in India, Australia, and other countries. All branches of the church accept the XXXIX Articles of Religion and the Apostles' and Nicene creeds as their doctrinal symbols.

The Reformed Episcopal Church, which is represented in the United States, Canada, and England, is not in communion with any of the Anglican bodies. In the United States it is the result of a secession from the Protestant Episcopal Church.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

The beginnings of the Church of England on this continent reach back into the sixteenth century, although the Protestant Episcopal Church was not formally organized as an independent branch of the church of Christ until 1785–1789. Clergymen of the Church of England accompanied the early colonists of North Carolina across the sea, and one of them baptized an Indian chief in 1587 in a colony unsuccessfully begun by Sir Walter Raleigh, and also, 5 days later, the first white English child born on the American continent, Virginia Dare. It is very probable that the Rev. Francis Fletcher, a clergyman of the Church of England, who accompanied, as chaplain, the expedition of Sir Francis Drake to the Pacific coast, held services on California soil as early as 1579. He officiated for 6 weeks in the neighborhood of Drakes bay. In 1607 worship according to the Anglican ritual was established in the new colonies at Jamestown, Va., and Kennebec, Me. It was soon discontinued in Maine, but in Virginia it was not interrupted. An Episcopal congregation was gathered in New Hampshire in 1731, and parishes were formed in other parts of New England and the middle states in the early colonial days, Trinity parish, New York city, being constituted in 1693, and Christ Church parish, in Philadelphia, in 1695. The church became the established church in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, and Georgia. In Virginia, for a considerable period, no other form of worship was tolerated. In Massachusetts, on the other hand, the Anglican service was not allowed until liberty for it was secured by royal proclamation in 1662. The Episcopal Church received considerable assistance from England, particularly from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, organized in 1701, which sent over many missionaries. It is said that at the beginning of the Revolutionary war the society was maintaining about 80 missionaries in the colonies.

At the close of the struggle resulting in American independence many of the parishes were without ministerial oversight. The clergymen had left the country during the war, returning to England or going north to the British provinces. In Virginia, where, at the outbreak of the war, there had been 164 churches and chapels and 91 clergymen, it was found in 1784 that 95 parishes were either extinct or forsaken, and that only 28 clergymen remained. At a conference of clergymen and laymen from New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania held in New Brunswick, N. J., in May, 1784, steps were taken to form "a continental representation of the Episcopal Church". In the following October a convention representing Delaware and Maryland, in addition to the three states above named, assembled in New York city, and resolved to "recommend to the clergy and congregations of their communion" that "there be a general convention of the Episcopal Church"; that the first meeting of the convention be held in Philadelphia in September, 1785, and that clerical and lay deputies be appointed by the Episcopal churches in the several states, "duly instructed and authorized" to take part in its deliberations. At the convention of 1785 a committee was appointed to draft a constitution, to prepare such alterations in the liturgy as were necessary, and to report a plan for securing the consecrations of bishops. All of these matters were considered by the committee, and the convention acted upon the several reports it made. The first Episcopal consecration was that of Bishop Seabury, of Connecticut, which took place in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1784, the Scottish bishops officiating. In 1787 Drs. William White and Samuel Provoost were consecrated bishops in London by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The consecration of Bishop Seabury was recognized by the general convention of 1789, and the church was thus fully organized and fully equipped with bishops of the Scottish and English succession, a constitution, a general convention, and a prayer book. When the general convention of 1792 was held it was estimated that there were in this country about 200 clergymen. The church developed quite slowly until after the first quarter of the present century. The clerical list reported at the convention of 1832 contained nearly 600 names; 3 years later it had swelled to 763, and in 1838 it reached 951. In the next 30 years this number was considerably more than doubled. The church now has 51 dioceses and 13 missionary jurisdictions, besides 5 missionary jurisdictions in foreign lands. The number of its bishops is 75.

The doctrinal symbols of the Protestant Episcopal Church are the Apostles' and Nicene creeds, together with the 39 articles of the Church of England, slightly altered.

The legislative authority of the church is vested in a general convention which meets triennially. The convention consists of 2 houses, the house of bishops and the house of clerical and lay deputies. The deputies are elected by diocesan conventions. Every diocese, regardless of the number of clergymen and communicants within its bounds, is entitled to 8 deputies, 4 clerical and 4 lay. The concurrence of both orders in the house of deputies and the consent of both houses are necessary to the enactment of legislation. The general convention has the power to adopt, alter, or repeal canons pertaining to the regulation of the general affairs of the church, to ratify measures for the erection of new dioceses, and to make alterations in the constitution and Book of Common Prayer, under certain restrictions. It is the supreme legislative, executive, and judicial power. The legislation of the general convention is in the form of canons, which are arranged under 4 titles: "(1) of the orders in the ministry and of the doctrine and worship of the church; (2) of discipline; (3) of the organized bodies and officers of the church; (4) miscellaneous provisions".

There is in each diocese a convention consisting of the clergy and representatives of the laity. The bishop of the diocese is the presiding officer. The diocesan convention has power to provide by legislation for such diocesan matters as are not regulated by the general canons of the church. The unit of the diocese is the parish, with its rector, church wardens, vestrymen, and congregation. The vestrymen are the trustees and hold the property for the corporations. The wardens, of whom there are usually 2, represent the body of the parish, and have charge of the records, collect the alms, and look after the repairs of the church. Vestry meetings to be valid require the presence of at least 1 warden. The rector, who must be a priest, presides, and has exclusive direction of the spiritual affairs of the church.

Three orders are recognized in the ministry: bishops, priests, and deacons. A bishop is elected by the diocesan convention, and consecrated by bishops, after consent has been given by the standing committees of the various dioceses and by the bishops. He licenses lay readers, ordains deacons and priests, administers the rite of confirmation to members, institutes rectors, and is required to visit every parish in his diocese at least once in 3 years.

The number of organizations is 5,019, of church edifices 5,019, and the church property valued at $81,220,317. Worship is also held in 312 halls, etc., with an aggregate seating capacity of 28,007. There are in all 532,054 communicants. Of these, New York reports the largest number, 127,218, among the states. Pennsylvania comes second, with 54,720; New Jersey third, with 30,103; Massachusetts fourth, with 26,855. The church is represented in all the states and territories except Indian territory. The largest diocese is that of New York, with 53,593 communicants. Pennsylvania comes second, with 33,459; Maryland third, with 28,273; and Massachusetts fourth, with 26,855.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

This body was organized in 1873. Bishop Cummins, of Kentucky, withdrew from the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church that year, in consequence of certain criticisms which had been uttered respecting his participation in a union communion service in connection with the sixth conference of the Evangelical Alliance. Bishop Cummins met, in December, 1873, with 7 clergymen and 20 laymen in the city of New York, and it was resolved to inaugurate a separate movement. Bishop Cummins was chosen presiding officer of the new church, and the Rev. C. E. Cheney, D. D., of Chicago, was elected bishop, and subsequently consecrated by Bishop Cummins. A declaration of principles was adopted setting forth the views of the new body respecting doctrine, polity, worship, and discipline. These principles were as follows:

1. The Reformed Episcopal Church, holding "the faith once delivered unto the saints", declares its belief in the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as the word of God, and the sole rule of faith and practice; in the creed "commonly called the Apostles' Creed"; in the divine institution of the sacraments of baptism and the Lord's Supper; and in the doctrines of grace substantially as they are set forth in the 39 Articles of Religion.

2. This church recognizes and adheres to episcopacy, not as of divine right, but as a very ancient and desirable form of church polity.

3. This church, retaining a liturgy which shall not be imperative or repressive of freedom in prayer, accepts the Book of Common Prayer, as it was revised, proposed, and recommended for use by the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church A. D. 1785, reserving full liberty to alter, abridge, enlarge, and amend the same, as may seem most conducive to the edification of the people, "provided that the substance of the faith be kept entire".

4. This church condemns and rejects the following erroneous and strange doctrines as contrary to God's word:

First. That the church of Christ exists only in one order or form of ecclesiastical polity.

Second. That christian ministers are "priests" in another sense than that in which all believers are "a royal priesthood".

Third. That the Lord's table is an altar on which the oblation of the body and blood of Christ is offered anew to the Father.

Fourth. That the presence of Christ in the Lord's Supper is a presence in the elements of bread and wine.

Fifth. That regeneration is inseparably connected with baptism.

At a general council of the Reformed Episcopal Church, held at Chicago, Ill., in May, 1874, articles of religion were adopted, 35 in number. They follow closely the Anglican articles of religion, with such changes as are indicated by the principles adopted in 1873. At the same meeting of the general council a revised Book of Common Prayer was also adopted. The church recognizes but 2 orders in the ministry, that of presbyter and that of deacon. It holds that the episcopate is not an order but an office, the bishop being simply first presbyter. The bishops do not constitute a separate house in the general council as in the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church. They preside over synods or jurisdictions, which correspond more or less closely to dioceses and jurisdictions of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The Reformed Episcopal Church has 83 organizations, 84 church edifices, church property valued at $1,615,101, and 8,455 communicants. It is represented in 12 states, including Virginia and South Carolina, and it has 2 synods and 3 missionary jurisdictions.

REFORMED BODIES.

REFORMED CHURCH IN AMERICA. REFORMED CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES.
CHRISTIAN REFORMED CHURCH.

REFORMED BODIES.

There are three Reformed churches in this country, the chief of which are the Reformed Church in America and the Reformed Church in the United States. The Reformed churches belong to the Presbyterian family in polity and doctrine, though their standards are not those of Westminster and their ecclesiastical terms differ somewhat from those generally used by the Presbyterian churches. They have consistories instead of sessions, classes instead of presbyteries, and general synods instead of general assemblies. The origin of the Reformed Church in America is traced to the Reformed Church of Holland; that of the Reformed Church in the United States to the Reformed Church in Germany. For the sake of distinction the former is popularly called the Reformed Dutch and the latter the Reformed German Church. These two bodies, both of which looked for aid and direction to the classis of Amsterdam until late in the eighteenth century, have lately agreed, through their general synods, upon a plan of federal union, by which, if it should be ratified by the classes, while each retained its autonomy, a community of interest would be established respecting missionary and educational matters, and a federal synod, representing both churches and having advisory powers, would be held annually. The plan, however, failed, the classes of the Reformed Dutch Church declining to ratify it, and the general synod of that body regretfully declared the fact.

REFORMED CHURCH IN AMERICA.

The Rev. Jonas Michaelius organized in New Amsterdam in 1628 the first church of this order in this country. It embraced 50 communicants, "Walloons and Dutch". As the Dutch immigrants settled along the Hudson, on Long island, and in New Jersey, congregations of their faith were gathered. A number of these churches are still in existence, upward of 2 centuries old. The first organization, termed the "cœtus", was formed in 1747 by permission of the classis of Amsterdam. It had no ecclesiastical power, but was merely advisory, the classis reserving all power to itself. In 1755 a minority of the "cœtus", dissatisfied with the assumption by that body of larger powers, formed a "conferentie". This was the beginning of a sharp controversy, which was ended in 1770 in the union of the 2 bodies in a self-governing organization. This system was further developed in 1793, and finally perfected in the present ecclesiastical government of the church.

The stream of Dutch immigration ceased to flow in the latter half of the seventeenth century. This fact, with certain peculiar difficulties encountered by the church, accounts for its failure to attain to greater numerical strength. The Dutch language having ceased to be the language of its worship many years ago, the word "Dutch" was eliminated from its title in 1867. In consequence of a considerable immigration from Holland in late years, which has settled in Michigan and other western states, there are many congregations in that section in which the Dutch tongue is now used.

The Reformed Church accepts the Apostles', the Nicene, and the Athanasian creeds, the Belgic confession, the canons of the Synod of Dort, and the Heidelberg catechism as its doctrinal symbols. It is a distinctively Calvinistic body. The church has a liturgy for use in public worship, including an order of scripture lessons, an order of worship, and forms of prayer. These, however, are not obligatory and are not generally used. Forms for the administration of baptism and the Lord's Supper, for the ordination of ministers, etc., are imperative.

The church has 33 classes in this country. There are also 4 particular synods, which consist of representatives from classes. Above the particular synods is a general synod, which meets annually. The Particular Synod of New York embraces the classes of Hudson, Kingston, North Long Island, South Long Island, New York, Orange, Poughkeepsie, and Westchester, 8; the Particular Synod of Albany, the classes of Albany, Greene, Montgomery, Rensselaer, Rochester, Saratoga, Schoharie, Schenectady, and Ulster, 9; the Particular Synod of Chicago, the classes of Dakota, Grand River, Holland, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin, 7; and the Particular Synod of New Brunswick, the classes of Bergen, South Bergen, Monmouth, Newark, New Brunswick, Paramus, Passaic, Philadelphia, and Raritan, 9.

The largest classis is that of New York, which has 8,881 communicants, with church property valued at $3,308,000. The total number of communicants is 92,970. These belong to 572 organizations and own 670 church edifices, only 8 buildings other than churches being used for public worship. The total value of church property is $10,340,159.

The denomination is represented only in 14 states. New York has 52,228 communicants and New Jersey 24,057. In these 2 states, therefore, are more than four-fifths of the entire number of communicants, with church property valued at $9,536,309, or within $803,850 of the entire valuation for the denomination.

REFORMED CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES.

The original source of this body was the Reformed Church established in the Palatinate, one of the provinces of Germany. On account of severe persecution the Palatine reformers were scattered, many finding refuge in this country in the early part of the eighteenth century. There were Germans among the American colonists, however, before this period. From 1700 to 1746 many thousand settled in Pennsylvania and elsewhere, and a number of Reformed congregations having been gathered, a "cœtus" (an ecclesiastical organization having advisory powers) was formed in 1747, the same year that the Reformed Dutch organized their "cœtus" in New York.

In response to most earnest appeals from the Rev. Michael Schlatter, who was a sort of general missionary and organizer, gathering scattered members together and ministering to pastorless organizations, the Reformed Church of Holland raised nearly $60,000, the interest of which was devoted to the erection of churches and schoolhouses and the support of ministers. Help was also received for the education of youth from a society in London.

In 1793 the "cœtus" became a synod and the Reformed German Church an entirely independent body. There are now 8 synods, 6 of which are English and 2 German. The Eastern Synod embraces the classes of East Pennsylvania, Lebanon, Philadelphia, Lancaster (Pennsylvania), East Susquehanna, West Susquehanna, Goshenhoppen, Tohickon, Lehigh, Schuylkill, and Wyoming, 11; the Synod of Ohio, the classes of Miami, Lancaster (Ohio), Tuscarawas, Tiffin, Eastern Ohio, and St. Joseph, 6; the Synod of the Northwest, the classes of Zion's (Indiana), Sheboygan, Indiana, Milwaukee, Minnesota, Nebraska, Ursinus, Missouri, Chicago, and South Dakota, 10; the Synod of Pittsburg, the classes of Westmoreland, Clarion, St. Paul's, Somerset, and Allegheny, 5; the Synod of the Potomac, the classes of Zion's (Pennsylvania), Maryland, Mercersburg, Virginia, North Carolina, Gettysburg, Carlisle, Juniata, and Portland, 9; the German Synod of the East, the classes of New York, West New York, German Philadelphia, German Maryland, and West Pennsylvania, 5; the Central Synod, the classes of Heidelberg, Erie, St. John's, and Cincinnati, 4; the Synod of the Interior, the classes of Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Wichita, and Lincoln, 5.

Below the synods are classes, corresponding to presbyteries in the Presbyterian churches, and above the synods is a general synod, which is the supreme legislative and judicial body of the church. It meets once every 3 years, and was organized in 1863.

Like the Reformed (Dutch) Church, the Reformed (German) Church is Calvinistic in doctrine. Its symbol is the Heidelberg catechism, which is also accepted by the former body. In substance the Heidelberg catechism is Augustinian, says Prof. T. G. Apple, respecting the doctrines of natural depravity and salvation by free grace alone, but it does not, like some other Calvinistic symbols, teach a decree of reprobation as well as a decree of election. The Reformed Church has a liturgical system of worship, but its use is optional with congregations.

The Reformed (German) Church (it dropped the word German from its title in 1869) has 55 classes, besides many congregations in foreign mission fields. It is represented in 28 states and in the District of Columbia. Half its organizations and considerably more than half its communicants are in the state of Pennsylvania. It is also particularly strong in the state of Ohio, Maryland ranking third. It has 1,510 organizations, 1,304 church edifices, and church property valued at $7,975,583.

CHRISTIAN REFORMED CHURCH.

This body is a branch of an organization of the same name in Holland. In 1835 there was a secession from the Reformed Church of Holland of ministers and others who were dissatisfied with the prevailing tone of the doctrinal teaching of the state church and with some features of its government. This was the origin of the Christian Reformed Church of Holland. It has been represented in this country many years. In 1882 its numbers were increased by a secession of ministers and members of the Particular Synod of Chicago, Reformed (Dutch) Church, because of the refusal of the general synod of the latter body to condemn freemasonry and to make connection with that order a subject of church discipline. Finding the position of the Christian Reformed Church more to their mind they united with it. In 1889 the church was still further increased by the accession of a number of congregations belonging to the True Reformed Church organized in 1822 by a number of ministers who had seceded from the Reformed (Dutch) Church.

The Christian Reformed Church has 7 classes and 1 synod. Connected with the classes are 99 organizations, with 106 church edifices, church property valued at $428,500, and 12,470 communicants. More than half of the latter are to be found in the state of Michigan.

SALVATION ARMY.

SALVATION ARMY.

This body was organized in London, England, in 1876, by William Booth. He had been engaged for several years previously in evangelistic work in the east of London, chiefly among those who were beyond the reach of ordinary religious influences. He was formerly a minister of the Methodist New Connexion, withdrawing from the regular ministry in 1861 for independent evangelistic work. The new organization was speedily introduced into various countries of Europe, into the United States, Australia, and elsewhere.

In doctrine, the Salvation Army is evangelical. Its doctrines are described in a book which has been prepared by the "general" of the army, Mr. Booth. This book of doctrine and discipline sets forth the ordinary doctrines respecting God and Christ; the sinfulness of man; the work of redemption; the atonement, which is described as general; election, of which the Arminian view is taken; the Holy Ghost; repentance and faith as conditions of salvation; the forgiveness of sins; conversion; the two natures of man; assurance. setting forth the Methodist view; sanctification, which is emphasized as one of the more important doctrines. Entire sanctification is described as a "complete deliverance"; "sin is destroyed out of the soul, and all the powers, faculties, possessions, and influences of the soul are given up to the service and glory of God". No fewer than 7 sections of the book of discipline are given to the doctrine of sanctification; backsliding also forms a section, and final perseverance, "death and after", hell, the bible, and baptism are duly set forth. The army recognizes women's right to preach, and full directions are given how to proceed "in getting men saved". The Lord's Supper is not celebrated.

The government is military in form, and military titles are used in designating the various officers and military terms in describing the various departments of the work. The officers are (1) the commander-in-chief, who has the general direction of the entire army; (2) the chief of staff, who has the oversight of all the business at the war office, known as headquarters; (3) a lieutenant-general, who travels under the direction of the commander-in-chief and inspects various divisions; (4) a general, who has command of a division; (5) a captain, who commands a single corps; (6) a lieutenant, who is under the direction of the captain; (7) a color-sergeant, who has charge of the colors and carries them in procession; (8) a paymaster-sergeant, or treasurer, who cares for all the moneys of the corps; (9) a paymaster-secretary. There are also sergeants who lead bands, and various other officers. The sergeants are appointed by the captains. The treasurers and secretaries are recommended for appointment to the generals of divisions, and the commissions are issued by the commander-in-chief. The term of office is indefinite.

All members of the Salvation Army on active duty wear uniform. The places where meetings are regularly held are usually called "barracks".

The Salvation Army in the United States is represented in 30 states, also in the territory of Utah and the District of Columbia. It has 329 organizations, with 27 church edifices, or barracks, and church property valued at $38,150. There are in all 8,742 communicants or members. It is not the chief aim of the army to make converts for membership in its own organization. Many of those who are converted through its labors join various other denominations.

SCHWENKFELDIANS.

SCHWENKFELDIANS.

Kaspar von Schwenkfeld, a nobleman of Germany, born in the fifteenth century, differed from other reformers of the period on a number of points concerning the Lord's Supper, the efficacy of the external word, and Christ's human nature. He did not form a separate sect, but his followers did so after his death, taking his name. Early in the eighteenth century they were scattered by persecution. Some fled to Denmark, whence they came to this country, near the close of the first half of that century. They settled in Pennsylvania, where a remnant of them still exists. They celebrate the arrival from Denmark annually, making it a kind of festival.

They hold in general to the doctrines of the German reformation with a few peculiarities. The words of Christ, "This is my body", they interpret as meaning, "My body is this", that is, such as this bread, which is broken and consumed, and affords true and real food for the soul. The external word, as they believe, has no power to renew; only the internal word, which is Christ himself. The human nature of Christ was not a created substance; being associated with the divine essence it had a majestic dignity of its own.

Among the customs peculiar to the Schwenkfeldians is a service of prayer and exhortation over newly-born infants, repeated in church when the mother and child appear. The churches are congregational in government, each electing its minister and officers annually. The former is chosen by lot. They have 4 organizations, with 6 church edifices, church property valued at $12,200, and 306 members.

SOCIAL BRETHREN.

This is a small body confined to 5 counties in Illinois and 3 in Arkansas. It was organized in 1867 by a number of persons who had become dissatisfied with certain teachings and practices in the denominations to which they belonged.

The Social Brethren baptize by sprinkling, pouring, or immersion, as the applicant may prefer ; but accept only true believers as proper candidates, rejecting infant baptism. They have a confession of faith consisting of 10 articles. One of these pronounces against "political preaching" and another declares the right of all lay members to free speech and free suffrage in the church.

There are 3 annual associations composed of ministers and delegates. Besides ordained ministers, the church has licensed ministers and licensed exhorters.

There are 20 organizations, with 11 church edifices, church property valued at $8,700, and 913 members.

SOCIETY FOR ETHICAL CULTURE.

SOCIETY FOR ETHICAL CULTURE.

This society was founde l in New York in 1876 by Professor Felix Adler. It was announced as "the new religion of morality, whose God was The Good, whose church was the universe, whose heaven was here on earth and not in the clouds". Its aims have been thus defined by Professor Adler:

(1) To teach the supremacy of the moral ends above all other human ends and interests.
(2) To teach that the moral law has an immediate authority not contingent on the truth of religious beliefs or of philosophical theories
(3) To advance the science and art of right living.

Meetings are held on Sunday, at which addresses or lectures are delivered. Societies having been organized in Chicago, Philadelphia, and St. Louis, as well as in New York, a convention was held in 1886, and "The Union of the Societies for Ethical Culture" formed with a constitution calling for annual meetings. The 4 societies have an aggregate of 1,064 members. The New York society reports a cash fund in hand of $60,000.

SPIRITUALISTS.

SPIRITUALISTS.

What is known as modern spiritualism began with "demonstrations" in the Fox family in Hydesville, N. Y., in March, 1848. The same phenomena had been common in Shaker communities before that date, and, indeed, in almost all ages and among many different peoples; but it was then that these demonstrations, generally in the form of rappings, began to be interpreted as communications from the disembodied spirits of men and women who had, in the ordinary course of nature, passed away, but whose spirits were still in a living and active state. From this time individuals began to investigate these spirit manifestations, circles began to be formed, mediums were discovered, lecturers recognized, and a literature established.

Spiritualists claim that the miracles of Christ are explained by the central doctrine of their belief, and they regard the demonstrations of spiritualism as establishing by evidence the fact of a future life. They do not hold that God is a personal being, but that he exists in all things. Eternal progression is the law of the spirit world, and every individual will attain supreme wisdom and unalloyed happiness.

A few Spiritualist societies employ permanent speakers, but usually they appoint lecturers for limited terms, varying from a week to several months. A large proportion of the lecturers are mediums, who are believed to speak under the influence or direction of the spirit who guides or controls them. They follow the scriptural injunction: "Take no thought how or what ye shall speak, for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak". When a lecturer appears before an audience therefore he asks that a subject be given him, and when he receives it begins to speak upon it without hesitation. Summer gatherings or camp meetings, which continue from 1 to 10 weeks, have become prominent among the Spiritualists. In 1891, 22 such meetings were held.

The Spiritualists report 334 organizations, with 30 regular church edifices, not including halls, pavilions, and other places owned or occupied by them. There are 45,030 members, and the value of the property reported, which includes camp grounds as well as church edifices, pavilions, etc., is $573,650. Not many of the halls are owned by them. There are members in 36 states, besides the District of Columbia and the territories of Oklahoma and Utah. Among the states, Massachusetts has the greatest number, 7,345; New York stands second, with 6,351, and Pennsylvania third, with 4,569.

THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY.

THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY.

The first branch of this society in the United States was founded in New York in November, 1875. Its declared objects are:

(1) To form a nucleus of a universal brotherhood of humanity, without distinction of race, creed, or color.

(2) To promote the study of Aryan and other eastern literatures, religions, and sciences, and demonstrate the importance of that study.

(3) To investigate unexplained laws of nature and the psychical powers latent in man.

A circular, issued for the information of inquirers by the general secretary of the American section, states that the society is unsectarian, and interferes with no person's religious belief. Another circular, entitled "An Epitome of Theosophy", issued by the secretary of the executive committee of the Pacific coast, states that some of the fundamental propositions of theosophy, or "wisdom religion", are: that the spirit in man is the only real and permanent portion of his being; that between the spirit and the intellect is a "plane of consciousness in which experiences are noted", and that this spiritual nature is "as susceptible of culture as the body or intellect"; that spiritual culture is only attainable as the grosser interests and passions of the flesh are subordinated; that men, systematically trained, may, by their interior faculties, "attain to clear insight into the immaterial, spiritual world"; that, as a result of this spiritual training, men become able to perform works usually called "miraculous".

The Theosophical Society has branches in 17 states and the District of Columbia; 40 organizations are reported, with 695 members. Of the 40 organizations, 14 are in California.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST (OLD CONSTITUTION).

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

The United Brethren in Christ are sometimes confounded with the Unitas Fratrum, or Moravian Brethren. Though some of the historians of the former body claim that it was connected in some way with the Ancient and Renewed Brethren of Bohemia and Moravia, the United Brethren in Christ and the Moravians are wholly separate and distinct and have no actual historical relations. The Moravians were represented in this country long before the United Brethren in Christ arose, which was about the year 1800.

Philip William Otterbein, a native of Prussia and a minister of the German Reformed Church, and Martin Boehm, a Mennonite pastor in Pennsylvania, of Swiss descent, were the chief founders of the church of the United Brethren in Christ. These men, preaching with great earnestness and fervency, had revivals of religion in Pennsylvania and Maryland, resulting in many accessions to membership of the churches they served. Others of like mind assisted them in the ministry, and they met occasionally in conference concerning their work. The first of these informal conferences was held in Baltimore, Md., in 1789. The movement, though meeting with some opposition, gradually developed into a separate denomination. At a conference held in Frederick county, Maryland, in 1800, attended by Otterbein, Boehm, Geeting, Newcomer, and 9 others, an organization was formed under the title "United Brethren in Christ", and Otterbein and Boehm were elected superintendents, or bishops. The preachers increased and new churches arose, and it soon became necessary to have 2 annual conferences, the second one being formed in the state of Ohio. In 1815 the denomination completed its organization by the adoption, at a general conference, of a discipline, rules of order, and a confession of faith.

For some years the work of the church was mainly among the German element. It still has German conferences, but the great bulk of its members are English speaking people.

In doctrine, practice, and usage the United Brethren are methodistic. They have classes and class leaders, stewards, exhorters, local and itinerant preachers, presiding elders, circuits, quarterly and annual conferences, and other Methodist features. Their founders were in fraternal intercourse with the fathers of American Methodism, and in spirit and purpose the two bodies were not dissimilar. The United Brethren, though not historically a Methodist branch, affiliate with the Methodist churches, sending representatives to the ecumenical Methodist conferences.

Their annual conferences are composed of itinerant and local preachers and lay delegates representing the churches. The bishops preside in turn over these conferences and, in conjunction with a committee of presiding elders and preachers, fix the appointments of the preachers for the ensuing year. The pastoral term is 3 years, but in particular cases it may be extended with the consent of the conference. There is but one order among the ordained preachers, that of elder. Since 1889 it has been lawful to license and ordain women. Bishops are elected by the general conference, not to life service, but for a quadrennium. They are, however, eligible to re-election. The general conference, which is composed of ministerial and lay delegates elected by the annual conferences, meets once in every 4 years, and has full authority, under certain constitutional restrictions, to legislate for the whole church, to hear and decide appeals, etc.

Their doctrines, which are Arminian, are expressed in a confession of faith, consisting of 13 brief articles, which set forth the generally accepted view of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, the scriptures, justification and regeneration, the christian Sabbath, and the future state. Concerning the sacraments, it holds that baptism and the Lord's Supper should be observed by all christians, but the mode of baptism and the manner of celebrating the Lord's Supper should be left to the judgment of individuals. The baptism of children is also left to the choice of parents. Sanctification is described as the "work of God's grace, through the Word and the Spirit, by which those who have been born again are separated in their acts, words, and thoughts from sin, and are enabled to live unto God".

The confession first adopted in 1815 was revised in 1889 and slightly enlarged. The constitution was also changed in the same year, resulting in a division, those who held that the changes were not effected in a constitutional way withdrawing from the general conference of 1889 and holding a separate session. These brethren hold to the unchanged confession and constitution, and insist that they are the legal body known as United Brethren in Christ. Many cases to settle the validity of the action of the general conference of 1889 have been before the courts, and considerable church property is involved in the final decision, which may not be reached for some years to come. As both bodies claim the same title, it has been deemed necessary, in one case, to put after it, in parentheses, for the sake of distinction, the words "old constitution". This designates the smaller body, which refuses to recognize the constitutionality of the revision.

The general conference of 1885 created a commission to revise the confession of faith and the constitution, expressing, at the same time, its opinion that two clauses in the existing constitution, one forbidding the changing of or doing away with the confession, and the other likewise forbidding any change in the constitution except upon "request of two-thirds of the whole society", were "extraordinary and impracticable as articles of constitutional law".

The commission submitted a revised confession and constitution to the churches, as directed, for their approval. A number of members of the general conference of 1885 protested against the act creating the commission as unconstitutional and revolutionary. When the work of the commission was submitted for approval, they and those who agreed with them refused to vote on it, insisting that the matter was not legally before the church. Of those who voted, more than two-thirds approved the revised documents, and they were accordingly formally proclaimed by the general conference of 1889 as the "fundamental belief and organic law of the church".

The vote of the conference was 111 to 21. When the chairman announced that the conference would proceed under the amended constitution, Bishop Milton Wright and 11 delegates withdrew to meet elsewhere for legislation under the old constitution. The majority claim that the constitution of 1841 was never submitted to the members of conferences of the church, and only adopted by the general conference.

Two important changes were made in the constitution, one admitting laymen to the general conference and one modifying the section prohibiting membership in secret societies. The old constitution had this section: "There shall be no connection with secret combinations". The new constitution modifies this by providing that all secret combinations which infringe upon the rights of others and whose principles are injurious to the christian character of their members are contrary to the word of God, and christians should have no connection with them. The new section also empowers the general conference to enact "rules of discipline concerning such combinations".

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

There are in this country 45 annual conferences; also one in Canada, and mission districts in Africa and Germany. The denomination is not represented in any of the New England states, nor in any of the states south of Virginia, Tennessee, and Missouri. It is strongest in members in the 3 states of Ohio (47,678), Indiana (35,824), and Pennsylvania (33,951). Its total membership is 202,474, divided among 3,731 organizations, with 2,837 church edifices, and church property valued at $4,292,643.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST (OLD CONSTITUTION).

This body consists of those who hold that the act of the general conference of 1885 creating a commission to revise the confession of faith and constitution was unconstitutional, and that all proceedings under it were null and void. Bishop Milton Wright and 11 delegates withdrew from the general conference of 1889 because of the announcement that its proceedings would conform to the revised constitution. They immediately convened in conference and proceeded to legislate and elect bishops and general church officers under the old constitution. The division begun in this way was soon widely extended, involving many of the conferences and placing the ownership and occupancy of much church property in dispute. The "Liberals", as the majority are called, continued in possession of the general church property and offices and also of most of the churches and parsonages. The "Radicals", those who adhere to the old confession and constitution, have churches, ministers, and members in many of the conferences, the titles of which they have preserved. There are therefore 2 sets of conferences bearing the same name and covering the same territory. Many suits have been entered in the courts to test the control of the property involved. A final decision has not yet been reached. Those who adhere to the unamended constitution insist that the general conference of 1885 had no constitutional power to provide for the revision of the constitution and confession; that the general conference of 1889 had no right to act under the revised constitution, and that the existing constitution was and still is the organic law of the church. They maintain an exclusive attitude toward all secret societies, according to the provision of the old constitution forbidding connection with any of them.

When the statistics for the Eleventh Census were obtained the line of division had not in all cases become distinct, and it was difficult to get returns from some of the districts. A number of presiding elders reported that much of the church property in their respective districts was in dispute, being claimed by both parties. In some states the courts have decided one way and in other states the other way. In tabulating from the schedules returned by the presiding elders of each branch, care has been taken not to count the same edifices and property twice. It is possible, however, that in some cases duplication has not been prevented.

There are 22,807 members, 795 organizations, 578 church edifices, and church property valued at $644,940.

UNITARIANS.

UNITARIANS.

Unitarianism, as its name indicates, is distinguished from other systems of christian belief chiefly by its rejection of the doctrine of the trinity and the deity of Jesus Christ. It denies that 3 persons (the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit) are united in one God, and holds that God is one, that he is uni, not tripersonal. This view is not modern. Arius, a presbyter of Alexandria, in the fourth century, held that Christ, though the greatest of created beings, was not equal in nature and dignity to God.

Unitarian organizations were formed in Poland and Hungary as early as the middle of the sixteenth century and in the United States and England in the first quarter of the present century. King's chapel, Boston, a Protestant Episcopal congregation, adopted in 1785 a liturgy so revised as to exclude all recognition of the trinity, and ordained in 1787, as its pastor, on the refusal of the bishop of the diocese to do so, James Freeman, who was unitarian in his views. Arian ideas began to influence ministers and laymen in the Congregational churches in New England at the beginning of the present century. In 1805 a unitarian, Dr. Henry Ware, was elected to the divinity chair in Harvard university, and in 1819 a separate divinity school was organized in connection with the university, with a unitarian faculty.

Those holding Arian views became generally known as Unitarian in 1815, which is usually given as the beginning of the Unitarian denomination in America. In 1819 a Unitarian congregation was formed in Baltimore. William Ellery Channing preached the installation sermon, in which he clearly defined the differences between orthodox and unitarian doctrines. Many Congregational churches in eastern Massachusetts, including the oldest, that at Plymouth, the church founded by the Pilgrims in 1620, became Unitarian without changing their covenants or names. In the course of the controversy 120 Congregational churches in New England, founded before the war of the revolution, went over to the Unitarians. In 1830 there were, in all, 193 churches of the unitarian faith; in 1865, 340. The present number of church edifices is 424.

The Unitarians acknowledge no binding creed. They contend for the fullest liberty in belief, and exclude no one from their fellowship for difference in doctrinal views. Unitarianism is declared to be "not a fixed dogmatic statement, but a movement of ever enlarging faith", welcoming "inquiry, progress, and diversity of individual thought in the unity of spiritual thought". In the denomination are included those who stand upon a simple basis of theism and are represented in the Western Unitarian Conference, for example, and those who accept the messiahship of Jesus Christ. In general terms they believe in God as the All-in-All; "in eternal life as the great hope; in the inspiration of all truth; in man's great possibilities, and in the divineness of sanctified humanity".

The Unitarian churches are congregational in polity, each congregation being independent in the management of its own affairs. There are societies for the conduct of missionary work, such as the American Unitarian Association, organized in 1825, the Western Unitarian Conference, which attends to the general interests of the societies represented in it, and the Western Unitarian Association, whose object is to "diffuse the knowledge and promote the interests of pure christianity". There are also conferences, national, and state, and local. The national conference, which is biennial, declares in its constitution its "allegiance to the gospel of Jesus Christ" and its "desire to secure the largest unity of spirit and the widest practical co-operation" in the cause of christian faith and work. It confines itself to recommending to existing Unitarian organizations "such undertakings and methods as it judges to be in the heart of the Unitarian denomination". It is composed of delegates from the churches and representatives of certain Unitarian organizations. The conference provides for a committee of fellowship, for the consideration of applications of persons not graduates of Unitarian schools to enter the Unitarian ministry.

The 421 organizations report 424 church edifices and church property valued at $10,335,100.

Of the 67,749 communicants, or more properly members, as the Unitarian custom is to admit any one to the communion, a little more than half are in Massachusetts. New York has the second largest number, 4,470; California is third, with 3,819, and New Hampshire fourth, with 3,252. The denomination has organizations in 32 states and the District of Columbia. In the southern states it has less than a dozen organizations.

UNIVERSALISTS.

UNIVERSALISTS.

The first regular preacher in America of the distinctive doctrines of universalism was the Rev. John Murray, a disciple of James Relly, who had gathered a congregation of Universalists in London. As early as 1684 Joseph Gatchell, of Marblehead, Mass., was sentenced by the Suffolk county court to have his "tongue drawn forth and pierced with a hot iron" for declaring that all men would be saved. The names of a number of ministers of different denominations are included in the list of those who held or published universalist views before Murray arrived from England in 1770. Mr. Murray preached at various places, settling at Gloucester, Mass., in 1774, and in Boston in 1793. By him and a few others a number of Universalist churches were established. At the close of the eighteenth century there were about a score of Universalist ministers.

The Rev. Hosea Ballou, whose name is honored as the father of universalism in its present form, became prominent in the movement at the beginning of the present century. His views differed radically from those of Mr. Murray. In a "Treatise on Atonement", published in 1795, he denied the doctrine of the vicarious sacrifice, and insisted that punishment for the sins of mortality is confined to this life. If there were any punishment in the future life it would be, he contended, for sins committed in that life. Some years later he expressed the belief that there is no sin beyond the grave and consequently no punishment. Mr. Murray had held that Christ himself bore the punishment due the sins of mankind, and therefore there would be no future punishment. Of the early Universalists Murray had been a Methodist; Winchester and Ballou, Baptists.

There being quite a number of Universalists who held, contrary to the views of Mr. Ballou, to a limited future punishment, a division occurred in 1830, and an association was organized in the interests of the doctrine of restoration. This association existed for about 11 years and then became extinct, some of its preachers returning to the Universalist denomination, others becoming Unitarians. The Restorationists held that there would be a future retribution, but that God would, in his own time, "restore the whole family of mankind to holiness and happiness":

The symbol of the Universalist faith is the Winchester "Profession of Belief", which was adopted in 1803 by the New England convention, held in Winchester, N. H. It is as follows:

Article 1. We believe that the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments contain a revelation of the character of God, and of the duty, interest, and final destination of mankind.

Article 2. We believe that there is one God, whose nature is love, revealed in one Lord Jesus Christ, by one Holy Spirit of Grace, who will finally restore the whole family of mankind to holiness and happiness.

Article 3. We believe that holiness and true happiness are inseparably connected, and that believers ought to be careful to maintain order and practice good works, for these things are good and profitable unto men.

This profession of belief has remained unaltered since it was formulated. It is regarded as a sufficient general declaration of the fundamental doctrine of Universalists for the purpose of fellowship. A more particular knowledge of their general belief may be gathered from the utterances of leading Universalist writers.

Universalists believe that God is not only almighty, all wise, and omniscient, but that he is perfectly holy. As a holy God he is hostile to sin. He forbade it at the first, has never consented to it, and can never be reconciled to it. His power, wisdom, goodness, and holiness are all pledges that there "shall be an end of it in the moral universe", and that "universal righteousness" shall be established. Sin is to be ended through the conversion and salvation of all sinners, who are to come ultimately into holiness and perfection. This is to be done by Jesus Christ, whose function it is to bring man into harmony with God. In Christ God has set forth in a single human life his great scheme of reconciliation. There was perfect harmony between this life and God; and Christ, the derived from the underived, most intimately shared the nature of God and represents him to man in complete fullness. There is no shadow of variance between Christ and God. Christ's work in the world is to bring men to light and strengthen the will in resolution against sin. He helps to overcome and destroy sin in the individual soul. Salvation is not from the demands of justice nor from punishment, endless or otherwise. The demands of justice must be met; the consequences of sin can not be avoided. It is the bondage of present sin from which salvation is necessary. Salvation is not exemption from the consequences of sin, but redemption from the disposition to sin; also from imperfection. Beginning with repentance and receiving God's forgiveness for past sins, the soul must put off the old man with all his sins and put on the new man created in God's likeness. Punishment is a necessary penalty for violating law. Divine punishment is "not the manifestation of hatred, but the sign and instrument of love". The punishment of sin is its inevitable consequences: "the wounds, the damage, the shame which sin impresses" upon the individual consciousness. It is wholly within the soul. The purpose of punishment is to deter from sin and to recover from sin. It is therefore beneficent, whence it follows that it can not be endless, for endless punishment would be vindictive and not beneficent. The soul is immortal. It survives death and enters upon the disembodied state in the same condition in which it quits the embodied. If it has been "dwarfed" in the present life "by neglect", or "weakened" by abuse, or "corrupted" by sin, then dwarfed, weakened, corrupt it must enter the next life. Disciplinary processes will be continued in that life, and the soul that goes into it unrepentant must suffer the "thraldom or retribution" until the "will consents to the divine order". Even the penitent will be subject to "such discipline and chastening experiences as contribute to moral progress".

These are not to be taken as authoritative expressions of denominational belief. The Winchester Profession is the only acknowledged symbol. They simply represent the current teaching of the Universalist ministry. Probably some Universalists would differ from them in some respect.

The Universalist system of government is a modified presbyterianism. The parish manages its own financial and general interests and calls or dismisses a pastor, but it "acknowledges allegiance both to the state and general conventions and is bound to observe the laws they enact". No state conventions can be formed "without a constituency of at least 4 parishes". Such conventions exercise authority in their own territory under rules and limitations prescribed by the general convention. They are composed of all Universalist ministers in fellowship and of lay delegates from the parishes. They meet every year.

The general convention, which is held in October annually, consists of clerical and lay delegates from each state convention, in the proportion of 1 of the former to 2 of the latter. Every convention is entitled to send at least 1 clerical and 2 lay delegates. If it has 50 parishes and clergymen, it can send twice as many delegates, with an additional 3 for every additional 25 parishes and clergymen. The general convention "exercises ecclesiastical authority throughout the United States and Canada. It is the court of final appeal in cases of dispute between state conventions and in all cases of discipline not provided for and settled by subordinate bodies," and has original jurisdiction in states and territories where subordinate conventions have not been organized. The general convention is an incorporated body and controls various denominational funds. Ministers are ordained by councils, consisting of 10 ordained ministers and lay delegates from 10 parishes, called by the parish desiring the ordination, with the consent of the convention (state) committee on fellowship, ordination, and discipline. There are also licentiates, both of the clerical and lay order.

Among the usages of the church is the observance of the second Sunday in June as "Children's Sunday". The churches are decorated with flowers and children are baptized. Christmas and Easter are generally observed, and a Sunday in October is set apart for services in memory of members who have died during the year. The sacraments observed are baptism and the Lord's Supper. The mode of baptism is left to the choice of the applicant.

There are 40 state conventions, besides those of Canada and Scotland, the oldest of which, that of New York, was organized in 1825. New York leads in the number of members, reporting 8,526; Massachusetts comes second, with 7,142; Ohio third, with 4,961; and Maine fourth, with 3,750. The total of members is 49,194, and the aggregate value of church property $8,054,333.

INDEPENDENT CONGREGATIONS.

INDEPENDENT CONGREGATIONS.

Under this title are embraced congregations having no connection with any of the denominations. They vary widely in faith. Some are akin to Presbyterian, others to Methodist, and others to Adventist bodies. They have no general organization among themselves. Some are organized on a union basis and receive part of their support from members of several denominations. There are 156 organizations, with 14,126 members, and church property valued at $1,486,000.
